No Exceptions To Restraints, Nixon Pledges

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — President Nixon promises that wage-price restraints to take effect Nov. 14 will "cover the whole economy" and—depending on interest rate trends—could encompass regulation of rates on consumer credit.

Nixon parceled out a few more clues to his thinking on future anti-inflation policy in a question-and-answer session at a Thursday night dinner meeting of the Detroit Economic Club.

The hour-long quiz was broadcast nationally by some radio networks.

At a Sept. 9 news conference, Nixon spoke of wage-price restraints on major industries following the Nov. 13 expiration of the current freeze. This was widely interpreted at the time as indicating Nixon leaned toward very selective curbs.

Phase 2

His new pronouncement, however, embraced all segments of the economy, although he emphasized that his Phase 2 program to be announced in mid-October will concentrate on areas which, in the absence of restraints, could contribute most strongly to continued inflation.

The chief executive was asked by one member of a 10-man panel how soon he planned to return to a "free economy."

Nixon said his wage-price stabilization effort will continue until "we have cooled the fires of inflation."

Most panelists were leading members of Detroit's industrial-mercantile-financial community and the questions reflected business concerns and viewpoints.

Outside cavernous Cobo Hall, several thousand demonstrators paraded for a variety of causes. Some opposed the freeze, some the Vietnam war, some the handling of the Attica, N.Y., prison revolt. The President, arriving and departing by a rear entrance, at most caught only a glimpse of the protesters as he left to return to Washington.

Nixon, who had never before talked of possible curbs on interest rates, told his listeners "the matter is still open." He noted the Federal Reserve Board has standby authority to regulate consumer credit.

He suggested he might urge use of those powers if he is dissatisfied with the trend of interest rates during the balance of the freeze. But he noted that interest rates are lower than when he imposed the lid Aug. 15.

Only one question dealt with foreign policy outside the economic area. Nixon was asked what he hoped to achieve by his planned visit to Peking and whether recent mystery-clouded events in Communist China might alter his intentions.

"I do not expect the current developments to change our travel plans," he said. He was not asked to interpret or explain those developments, nor did he volunteer any elaboration.

As for his motive, he said he and Premier Chou En-lai of mainland China recognize the "deep differences" between their two countries. He said it is his aim to "talk about them and not fight about them, now or 15 years from now."

In 10 or 15 years, Nixon predicted, Communist China will be a "significant nuclear power" with a population of 900 million to one billion. If kept outside the family of nations, he contended, China could become a great danger.

No. 1 Problem Is Economy

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — The Gallup Poll says the chief concern of the American people is the state of the economy, not the Vietnam war.

Gallup surveys over the last seven years have indicated the war was considered by more people to be of primary importance than any other issue.

But 45 per cent of the 1,495 persons interviewed last month said the economy was uppermost, with 25 per cent saying the war was the No. 1 problem, the poll reported Thursday.

In a June poll, 33 per cent of those interviewed said the war was the primary problem and 22 per cent cited the economy.

Those interviewed in the August poll also said the economy would be the major issue in the 1972 presidential campaign.

Two Vacancies on Supreme Court

Lawmaker Hinted as Justice Nominee

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has thrown out a broad hint that he may nominate Rep. Richard H. Poff, a Virginia Republican, to fill one of two openings on the Supreme Court.

Poff's chances appeared brighter after Nixon discussed with members of the Economic Club of Detroit the kind of candidates he was considering. "Teachers, legislators for example with great experience on the House and Senate Judiciary Committees—this gives you an idea," he said Thursday.

Poff, 47, is the second-ranked Republican on the House Judiciary Committee. He helped pilot Nixon's crime control legislation through Congress last year and is considered a "law and order" conservative of the sort the President would turn to for the high court.

Against Bills

He already has the backing of the committee chairman, Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., and the ranking Republican, Rep. William M. McCulloch of Ohio, though he voted against civil rights bills they sponsored in the 1960s.

A second place on the Court opened Thursday when Justice John M. Harlan retired. Harlan, 72, and suffering cancer of the spine, stepped down six days after Justice Hugo L. Black, who is in critical condition at the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

In announcing Harlan's retirement, White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon was expected "to move as swiftly as possible to find two highly qualified individuals to fill the vacancies."

Death Penalty

The court opens its new term Oct. 4. Hearings are scheduled to begin Oct. 12 with argument on the constitutionality of the death penalty. Only justices on the bench when a case is argued are permitted to take part in the eventual decision.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said that once the nominations are made the Senate would act on them as quickly as possible. In the past the Senate readily approved two Nixon nominees, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice Harry A. Blackmun, and rejected two others, Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. and G. Harrold Carswell.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said Burger and Blackmun "reflected the conservative element" and that he hoped the nominees to succed Black and Harlan would represent "more moderate elements of American opinion."

Ziegler said Nixon would use the same "strict constructionist" standard he used in the past. This means a restrained view of the Court's functions and a reluctance to upset state or federal laws.

Woman Appointee

Speaking in Detroit the President said appointment of a woman was a possibility and that he was more interested in a prospect's judicial philosophy than his region.

Most prominently mentioned as a potential woman nominee is Rita Hauser, a New York lawyer who was active in Nixon's 1968 campaign and has served as the U.S. representative to the United Nations Commission on Human Rights.

The hint about Poff came about when Nixon said he might select someone other than an experienced judge.

"Justice (Felix) Frankfurter, a teacher, was a great justice," he said. "Justice Louis D. Brandeis, one of my heroes, was a great practicing lawyer."

He then went on to speak of teachers and legislators.

Burger, Blackmun, Haynesworth and Carswell all were federal appeals court judges when they were named for the Supreme Court. Justices William J. Brennan Jr., Potter Stewart and Thurgood Marshall also had judicial experience. Justices William O. Douglas and Byron R. White had none when they took their seats.

Harlan's retirement ends a 16-year Court career noted principally for judicial scholarship and the theory that Bill of Rights safeguards should be applied to the states only when necessary to ensure "fundamental fairness."

Dissenting Opinions

He wrote more than 200 dissenting opinions and was recognized as the leader of the conservative wing, a distinct minority following the departure of Frankfurter in 1962.

Harlan's philosophy was probably best expressed in a 1964 dissent from one of the apportionment rulings that have required states to make legislative districts equal in population.

"The Constitution," wrote Harlan, "is not a panacea for every blot upon the public welfare; nor should this Court, ordained as a judicial body, be thought of as a general haven for reform movements. If the time comes when this Court is looked upon by well-meaning people—or, worse yet, by the Court itself—as the repository for all reforms, I think the seeds of trouble are being sown for this institution."

Tall and serene, he looked the part of a Justice and was the grandson of one, the first John Marshall Harlan, who served for 34 years. He took on

50,000 Minnesota Turkeys Tested for Contamination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government inspectors are checking 50,000 Minnesota turkeys slaughtered for Thanksgiving tables to see how many contain harmful residues of an industrial chemical that also was discovered in chickens this summer.

The turkeys were impounded over the past six weeks at Swift Dairy & Poultry Company in Detroit Lakes, Minn., a subsidiary of Swift & Company, the nation's largest meat packer.

Dr. Kenneth M. McEnroe, head of Meat and Poultry inspection for the Agriculture Department, said Thursday the turkeys were from "six or seven flocks" grown by producer Peterson-Bidding of Wadena, Minn.

Source of Contamination

There was no indication of the source of the chemical PCB contamination, McEnroe said. Not all the turkeys were thought to be tainted, but to be sure, he said, all were held at the plant for further tests.

Comparatively little is known of the PCBs, or polychlorinated biphenals, chemically similar to the pesticide DDT. But laboratory tests have linked them with skin disease, liver damage, and birth defects.

Officials said Swift & Co. voluntarily kept the suspected turkeys from the market after "a number" of the 50,000 birds showed PCB residues larger than the five parts per million allowed by the Food and Drug Administration.

Swift said it notified the government on Aug. 6 that a PCB problem existed. The Agriculture Department did not announce it until a week ago and did not identify the plant.

Asked if the USDA attempted to hide the contamination from the public by waiting so long, McEnroe replied:

"This is totally wrong. We didn't deliberately withhold anything from the public. We wanted to find out first if we had a problem."

The department was involved in another PCB episode in July when 88,000 broiler chickens, thousands of eggs and tons of feed were destroyed. At that time the source of contamination was a PCB leak into fish meal at a feed plant in Wilmington, N.C

Harris Declares Himself Candidate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma announced today his candidacy for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, saying he will try to "call this country back to the greatness that is in us."

'I intend to try to turn this country around before it's too late," the 40-year-old senator said as he became the second declared entry in a crowded field of Democratic White House prospects.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., is the other announced candidate. Both are liberals.

Harris had been a certain presidential entry since July 16, when he announced he would not run again for the Senate but would instead explore the prospects for a White House race.

Harris already has made campaign-style appearances in 19 states, concentrating most heavily on Florida, New Mexico and California, three presidential primary states around which his advance strategy has been fashioned.

"Most people don't believe that it makes much difference what politician is elected," Harris said. "They don't really believe things are going to change. . .

"I believe that a president can call this country back to the greatness that is in us," Harris said. "I mean to try."

Harris began his announcement statement by talking about his family. He said his father is a small farmer in southwest Oklahoma who "works twice as hard as most Americans" and cannot now pay his mother's medical bills. "He's hurt and angry about this," Harris said. "He knows it doesn't have to be that way."

Militant Wife

Harris said his wife, LaDonna is "a militant woman and an activist member of the Comanche Indian tribe.

"She resents the fact that maximum security prisons are mostly peopled by blacks, chicanos, American Indians, Puerto Ricans and poor people," Harris said. "She never believed that George Jackson was shot in the top of the head from a guard tower. Something told her that the Attica hostages didn't die at the hands of the prisoners. She was right."

Harris said his daughter, Kathryn, a college senior, 'wonders why a government that can trace Angela Davis to a motel room can't stop the heroin traffic."

Federal Center Provides a New Start

RFK Rehabilitation Center Lets Youths See the Light

By CRAIG AMMERMAN
Associated Press Writer

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) — One night this week, three young men climbed out a dormitory window, raced across a dimly lit campus and disappeared into the darkness.

Another evening at the same campus, a young man looked up from a pool game during a dormitory dance. "Man, this place is called prison," he said. "but it's the first decent chance I've had to do anything in 17 years."

He had gotten a message that the three who ran away had missed.

Most inmates at the Robert F Kennedy Youth Center do see the light—a light that the federal government is trying to find for a troubled correctional system that has led to Atticas and San Quentins.

"What we're trying to do," says a youth center official, "is to say to troubled young men and women that we want to help, how about giving us a chance."

Rehabilitation Experiment

The chance—for 235 young offenders here—is a multimillion-dollar rehabilitation experiment which has produced convincing results in less than three years.

Without bars or high wire fences, the Kennedy Youth center is easy to leave. And many have escaped—about 100 since the facility opened in December 1968.

But records also show that more than 300 of the 400 who have been released from the center are still free—a success rate of about 75 per cent.

"That's not an ideal figure," says Roy Gerrard, former director of the center who is now deputy director of the U.S. Bureau of Prisons "But it's a lot better than any other place I know of."

Federal prison officials in Washington, said that no comparative figures are available on the success ratio of conventional correction institutions for young offenders.

No Sound Chance

Inmates who escape from the Kennedy center don't get a second chance there Records show that most of the 100 escapees were apprehended and sent elsewhere, mostly to maximum security institutions.

There are no cells at the Kennedy center. Instead, there are individual rooms in seven dormitories that dot a 250-acre campus just outside Morgantown, home of West Virginia University.

Scattered on the grounds are athletic fields, a gymnasium, classroom buildings and an indoor swimming pool, part of an $11-million physical plant.

For the center's 210 males and 25 females, who range in age from 16-23, life is far different than at practically any other penal institution.

"The objective is to normalize the environment, to keep an offender in the same community environment in which he must eventually live," says Jay Flamm, center director

All inmates are involved in some kind of educational or work program.

Money Important

An important ingredient in the formula is money. Flamm says the government spends about $34 per day on each inmate, easily the highest per capita expenditure of any federal penal facility. This cost includes the $11 million price tag on the physical plant.

The average expenditure for all federal prisons is about $10.50 a day for inmate, according to federal prison officials in Washington.

All Kennedy Center Inmates receive at least six hours of instruction per day in areas lavishly equipped to teach electronics, woodworking, power technology, graphics, aeromechanics, basic and remedial education courses and data processing

Classes are taught by 22 instructors hired as guidance counselors and then trained to teach vocationally

Discussion Groups

The counselors attempt to work in small discusston groups outside of classes. Gerrard says they have been quite successful in avoiding the problems of race and homosexuality that plague most penal institutions. The center population is about 50 per cent black.

Most of the inmates here are persons who have stepped outside the federal law for the first time. They are referred here by the courts and by other penal institutions when officials spot a potential for rehabilitation.

"Society hasn't come up with many answers for corrections," Gerrard says. "A lot of the things we're doing at Kennedy might point the way to a better future."

Friday Dances

A typical Friday night at the center will find a dance in one of the dormitories, where coeds and social workers from West Virginia University come for the evening

"The mission of the center is a pioneering one," says Flamm. "What we're finding is that you can do things differently and make go of it."

"At the center the students know we care and will try to help them," Gerrard says "That's what it's all about anyway. The answers we're finding can be applied in other places, if the public is willing to pay the price."

Outside a dance one recent Friday night, an inmate who was to be released in two days said his life may have been turned around in the past nine months.

"If you could see where some of us come from," he said, "you'd know why more don't run away. This place is better than most of our homes. And some of us have found out here that this might be our last honest chance to turn our life round."

Auburn's Sullivan Main Concern for No. 9 Tennessee

By BERT ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bill Battle, Tennessee football coach, says he is fully aware of the capabilities of Auburn's deadly passing combination of Pat Sullivan to Terry Beasley

"But we can't afford to concentrate on them alone," said Battle as he prepared to send his ninth-ranked Volunteers against the fifth-ranked Tigers in one of Saturday's key matchups.

"We know that the Sullivan-Beasley combination will give us a lot of trouble," added Battle "But Auburn can give us other trouble as well"

Despite Battle's comments, the result of the game should hinge on Tennessee's ability to contain Sullivan, the nation's total offense leader last season, and Beasley, the leading scorer in the Southeastern Conference in 1970.

59 Per Cent

Sullivan, who completed 59 per cent of his passes last year in leading Auburn to a 9-2 record, got off to an even better start in 1971, completing 13 of 16 aerials, including two for touchdowns, as the Tigers opened their season with a 60-7 rout over UT-Chattanooga

Tennessee, 11-1 last year, also began its 1971 campaign with a romp, crushing UC-Santa Barbara 48-6 The Volunteers' only setback last season was a 36-23 beating by Auburn Naturally, they will be looking for revenge

Another confrontation between two members of the Top Ten Saturday will be No 10 Colorado at Ohio State, ranked sixth.

Irish at Purdue

Meanwhile, the other members of the elite also will see action Top-rated Nebraska will entertain Texas A&M Notre Dame, No. 2 will be at Purdue. Third-ranked Texas will be home against Southwest Conference rival Texas Tech Michigan, No. 4 will be host to UCLA, Arkansas, rates seventh, plays Tulsa in Fayetteville, Ark, and Alabama, ranked eighth, visits Florida

Among the second 10, it will be Oklahoma, No 11 at Pitt; Penn State, ranked 12th, at Iowa, Stanford, rated 13th, at home against Oregon; Georgia, No 14 at Clemson; 15th-ranked Arizona State at Utah, 16th-rated Southern California at home against Illinois in a night game, No 17 Washington against visiting Texas Christian, Louisiana State, ranked 18th, at Wisconsin; Toledo, rated 19th, at Texas-Arlington in a night game, and No 20 Duke at Virginia

Director Warns Athletes At NCSU About Drug Use

RALEIGH (AP) — Willis Casey, athletic director at North Carolina State University, has cautioned NCSU athletes that the use of drugs "will not be condoned by the athletic department"

He warned them that if "an athlete is accused of such an offense, the situation will be taken very seriously"

Casey did not specify what "very seriously" means, but he did say that if athletes on scholarships are found guilty of drug use, action will be taken

"I just reaffirmed what has always been in existence," Casey said Thursday when asked about his warning

Two Arrested

The action followed the arrest of two State basketball stars, Captain Paul Coder and part-time starter Bob Huets, on charges of possessing marijuana

Casey said that as long as the two students were still in good standing and have not been found guilty of the offense charged against them, they would be eligible to start the season

"We are not going to prejudge them," he said.

Surrenders Draft Pick

KC Recalls Moorman

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs had to surrender a high 1972 draft choice to get back guard Mo Moorman after he was claimed by the New England Patriots.

Coach Hank Stram of the Chiefs explained Thursday he thought the severity of Moorman's shoulder injury would let him go unclaimed on the injured-waiver list.

"If he was claimed, I planned to withdraw him from waivers and put him on our move list, from which he could not be claimed."

Upton Bell, Patriots general manager, said Stram overlooked a technicality — that no player can be recalled from the injured-waiver list after the final cut-down to the 40-man squad limit.

"It was an honest mistake," Bell said. "I've made my share and so have a lot of other people."

Madison Wins Frosh Opener

Quinney, Gerritts And Conant Also Post Triumphs

Madison edged Maplewood, 6-0. Gerritts downed Mann, 14-8; Butte des Morts deadlocked Roosevelt, 6-6; Conant defeated Wilson, 14-6; and Quinney rapped Einstein, 34-14.

Bob Marx skirted end on a 17-yard run for the only score of the game for Madison. It was defending champion Madison's 10th straight victory and 18th in the last 19 outings.

Pat Gaffney scored all of Gerritts points on a 3-yard run in the first period and a 2-point conversion and a 6-yard jaunt in the third Chuck Buxton ran three yards for Mann's TD and Kurt Zimmerman passed to Dan Varborg for the conversion in the fourth quarter.

Bill Kolasinski ran two yards for Butte des Morts for a third quarter TD to tie the game. Roosevelt scored in the first after a Menasha fumble.

Steve Pausig ran 3 yards for Conant's first TD and Herb Hubert connected with Jeff Ellis on a 22-yard play in the fourth period for the clincher. Hubert passed to Marty Suchting for the 2-points. Pat Reddy ran 7 yards for Wilson's only score

Jeff Nelson led Quinney with TD runs of 6, 32 and 36 yards and four PATs Einstein's only scores came with 1:38 left in the first half and five seconds in the game. Kaukauna totalled 399 yards to Einstein's 93.

Petrie Will Have Left Knee Surgery

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Geoff Petrie, the 6-foot-5 backcourt man of the Portland Trail Blazers of the National Basketball Association, was to undergo surgery to repair damaged cartilage in his left knee today.

Petrie, who shared rookie of the year honors in the National Basketball Assn last season with Dave Cowens of the Boston Celtics, may be lost to the team for eight to ten weeks.

Portland's team physician, Dr. Frank B. Smith, said Petrie apparently damaged the cartilage during a practice session Aug. 12.

Petrie's left knee was operated on nine years ago after he injured it playing football in high school

Dr. Smith said it was possible Petrie, 23, could return to action in less than two months. Portland's first exhibition game will be against Seattle Friday night in Spokane, Wash

Board Takes Steps To Hire Architect

WAUPACA — A special meeting has been called for 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, by the board of education to consider hiring an architect.

On Sept. 14, the board accepted the advisory recommendations, and the hiring of an architect would be the first step in obtaining a design and cost estimate for the project

Architects have been screened with a tight timetable in mind, to obtain preliminary plans and costs within six weeks The board hopes to bring the school proposal to a referendum before the end of the year.

Freedom Begins Teaching Plan

FREEDOM — An individualized non-graded communicative arts program, developed by teachers in cooperation with parents, began this fall at Freedom Elementary School.

The program, which has been in the works for three years, is totally comprehensive because it involves preschool children through those age 13. It is built around a single curriculum area — communicative arts — and does away with such subdivisions as reading, language, spelling and penmanship.

"It is our goal that every child be treated as an individual with defined needs. And it is our goal that every child will be helped to develop to his fullest potential, placing success within reach," explained Duane Doersch, reading consultant.

The program is built around a three-unit system, with all children involved in one of the units. Teachers are assigned to each unit in a non-graded situation, treating children of different ages at predetermined levels of development.

A guide has been developed for each teacher, which is skill oriented and is used to check the necessary skill weaknesses of each child.

Freedom YAK

The new phase of the program, according to Doersch, is known as "Freedom YAK," which stands for "you and kids," and involves parents of preschool children

The parents of these preschoolers are organized into neighborhood units to discuss and share information with each other

Besides drawing on their own knowledge, an established guide is designed by a group of parents from the school district as well as other school personnel such as kindergarten teachers, speech therapists, psychologist, guidance counselors, school nurse, reading consultant, the principal and the superintendent.

"It is our belief that parents have many good ideas to share with each other so that their children will become better equipped for a more formal learning situation," Doersch commented

He also added that this program does not suggest parents establish formal learning situations in their home, but rather valuable, informal everyday suggestions that could be practiced in the home

Louis Marshall Completes Century of Caring

BY LILLIAN MACKESY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Appleton's Louis J. Marshall celebrated his 100th birthday Thursday. Remarkable as this achievement is in itself, there's more to this centenarian than mere years — much more.

The hundreds of birthday cards and personal greetings from friends and admirers attest this. So does the collection of handsomely framed citations, awards and plaques that decorate his bedroom at the Marshall home at 925 N. Leminwah St., where his wife still resides. They tell the story of his life as a humanitarian who cares about his fellow man, who is proud of his community and deeply interested in children and youth His interest shows in his long years of service in the organizations to which he belongs.

There's one citation that's missing from his wall at home. Simply because he took it along with him when he moved into quarters at the Oak Ridge Nursing Home on Midway Road. This is the award presented to him earlier this year by Rotary International during the time he was in a hospital.

Highest Honor

He was made a Paul Harris Fellow, the highest honor bestowed by Rotary and always presented for outstanding service to the organization He has other Rotary citations for service during his long membership in the Appleton club. He was chairman of the student loan fund committee for 17 years. from 1924 to 1941. But the Paul Harris Fellow award is treasured because not many men own this one.

He has been honored by the Elks and is a life member of Appleton Lodge, No. 337. He is one of the original members of Butte des Morts Golf Club, the last living charter member of Appleton Rotary Club and a 65-year member of United Commercial Travelers, which he served both as president and treasurer. He has the distinctive honor of being the oldest Mason in Wisconsin.

It was during his longtime membership in Waverly Lodge 51, Free and Accepted Masons, that he became interested in the Shrine organization and its work with children When he became a member of the Shriners, he swung into years of enthusiastic service for their hospitals for crippled children; he has several citations for this work.

Interest in Boy Scouts

Today, from his bedroom window on his good days, Mr. Marshall watches with keen interest the happeinings at the new Boy Scout office on Midway Road. He was one of the men who started the Boy Scout movement in Appleton.

Mr. Marshall is a member of Zion Congregation and was its president for many years. He also has been active in B'nai B'rith, Jewish men's organization. One of his greatest interests was in Zion Cemetery, keeping it beautified and orderly; this program was important to him.

Among his most treasured mementos is a plaque and clock from the First National Bank of Appleton, noting that 1971 is the centennial year for both the bank and himself. Another that came this week is a birthday greeting from the top man in Social Security, Commissioner Robert Ball of the Baltimore office. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall have been in the Social Security program since 1950.

Family Business

There's also the business and family story of Louis Marshall. He was a successful businessman, connected with the Marshall Paper Co. from 1901 until he sold the business and retired in 1942 By that time he was president and treasurer of the family firm.

He was born in De Pere in 1871, the son of Simon and Rose Strauss Marshall. He was educated in De Pere and Green Bay, attending a business college in the latter city in order to help his father in the business side of operating a general store. When his parents came to Appleton in 1890, his father went into the grain, flour and wool business. In 1893, young Louis was sent to Syracuse, N. Y., to work with his uncle in a similar field, only specializing in hides, wool and leather.

By 1901, brothers Samuel and Harry already had established the wholesale paper merchandising firm. This was the year Louis joined them A sister, Irene, was married to M F Levy and lived with her husband in Chicago Another brother, Dr Victor Marshall, had an established medical practice in Appleton and in those years was helping the new St Elizabeth Hospital get under way

69th Anniversary

The family was well acquainted with Appleton long before they moved here because they were members of the Zion Congregation in the 1880s and attended services at the synagogue on Durkee Street. The girl Louis Marshall married, Miss Elsie Hammel, of Appleton, was someone he knew since they were children (he was 13 and she was only 2 when they met). Their wedding day was Sept. 10, 1902. They marked their 69th anniversary this month.

The Marshalls had three children — their well-known doctor son Dr. Fred S. Marshall, an orthopedic surgeon who died in 1965, and two daughters, Mrs Arthur Kovacs of Milwaukee, and Mrs E Leon Foreman Redlands, Calif Two more generations are represented in their six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren

All of which proves a century is a long time in one man's life, but Louis J Marshall has more than made his mark in its span Maybe many will remember him best as the man who always had the gift of a paper-wrapped piece of hard candy in his pocket, a friendly gesture that became his trademark, but he will be remembered

State DNR Is Not Popular

Milwaukee, questioned whether the department had fallen under the influence of the special interest groups it was created to regulate, including outdoorsmen and industry. What pressures from special interests are felt by board members, he asked?

"It's surprising, but there are many less pressures from special interest groups than I expected," said Potter Most of the pressures we get from special interest groups are from the environmental groups," he said

"The main pressure on the board is from people who are pro-environment and who want more restrictive management," he added Little is felt from groups such as the Wisconsin Manufacturers' Association or the Pulp and Sulfite League in the paper industry, said Potter.

"Pressure is what you use when you are on the outside," said Jackamonis "If you are already on the inside, you don't have to use it"

The hearing was to be continued Thursday

Assembly Debate Set Tuesday on University Merger

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Assembly debate on the Senate-passed measure to merge Wisconsin's two university systems has been set for Tueday, following refusal Thursday to take it up as a special order of business.

The Democratic majority in the lower house failed by one vote to gain the two-thirds majority necessary to take the bill up out of order.

Democrats Midge Miller of Madison and William Atkinson of South Milwaukee oppposed acting on merger immediately while Republican Kenneth Schricker of Spooner favored. The vote was 64-33.

The Assembly minority leader, Republican Harold Froehlich of Appleton, accused the Democratic leadership of following every wish of Democratic Gov. Patrick Lucey—who proposed the merger.

"When is this legislature going to start being a legislature, instead of a bunch of puppets on a string for the governor?" he asked.

Other Bills

The Assembly passed several relatively noncontroversial bills in other action Thursday and sent them to the Senate.

A bill to establish the office of credit union commissioner and relax borrowing and business investment restrictions was endorsed.

A measure was approved which would permit local governments to issue certain types of public improvement bonds. The bonds covered could be secured by either revenue derived from the improvement or from general tax revenues.

A proposal was also passed which would repeal the personal property tax exemption for banks and trust companies.

Kiwanis Club Members had an Orange Bowl celebration during their regular meeting Thursday and were treated to special entertainment by fathers of Appleton High School-East band members. Band member Bonnie School leads the songsters with an orange. They are, from left, Wayne Berkley, Fred Froehlich, Robert Boeing, Carl Stracka, Arno Seifert and Ralph Boettcher. The program was planned to kick off Appleton's official Orange Bowl Week beginning Sunday to promote the band's trip to those festivities. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Menominees Told to Take Dispute to Court

NEOPIT, Wis. (AP) — Disputes between the Menominee Common Stock and Voting Trust and the Determination of Rights and Unity to Menominee Stockholders (DRUMS) should be settled in court, the chairman of the Wisconsin Judicare Board said Thursday.

Douglas Moodie commented after the chairman of the trust, George Kenote, requested trust attorneys be given a hearing before the Judicare board to discuss the practice of Judicare attorneys representing the Menominee Indian group which opposes the trust.

Although Moodie said he felt the disputes between the two groups should be settled in court, he said he would forward the request for an appearance to the Judicare board at its next meeting He said he was not opposed to such a hearing.

The federal government, which provides most of Judicare's funds, has said it wants the organization to spend more time representing individual Indians. Judicare attorneys have been representing DRUMS in their opposition to the trust's sale of Menominee County land for the Legend Lake development

Revenue Loss Feared

Assembly OKs End of Liquor Tax Stamps

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A bill which could scrap the use of liquor tax stamps in Wisconsin passed the state Assembly Thursday, despite fears it would lead to lower tax revenues.

Passage came on a voice vote after opponents failed on a 54-44 vote to kill the measure

Opponents claimed the bill could lead to rum-running across the Illinois border. It would be possible to put the liquor on store shelves they said, without state officials being able to detect as easily whether the tax was paid.

The opponents also said the bill could interrupt the flow of dollars to local governments as distillers depleted their $3.1 million stock of the stamps.

Well-Organized

"I've been here 14 years and I've never seen a time when the liquor industry has been as well organized as on this," Rep. Harvey Dueholm, D-Luck, said

The bill removes a monthly reporting system as the only legal alternative to the stamp setup, and allows the secretary of revenue to set up a system of his own The argument against the monthly report system was that it would cost the state $5.4 million.

"The lobbyists are just waiting for us to pass it so they can run over to the secretary of revenue and begin pressuring him," Rep. David Berger, D-Milwaukee, said.

The bill would eliminate the costly process of affixing revenue stamps by hand, argued Rep. Earl McEssy, R-Fond du Lac, a supporter

Illinois' liquor tax, presently 25 cents per gallon less than Wisconsin's, would be 70 cents less if the budget and tax sharing bills before the legislature become law.

The tax stamp bill has already been passed by the Senate, but the upper house must agree to an amendment adopted in the Assembly before it goes to the governor's desk.

Even if it does become law, it could never be implemented by the revenue department, said Rep Thomas Hanson, D-Bear Creek, because of the tax loss involved.

President Proclaims Veterans Day Oct. 25

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has issued his annual Veteran's Day proclamation and designated Oct. 4 as Child Health Day.

Area Men Included In Drug Arrests

SHEBOYGAN — Four Winnebago County residents and one from Calumet County were among the 37 persons arrested in a drug crackdown in Sheboygan County Thursday.

The four from Winnebago County are Jeffery C. Smith, 19, of 799 Main St, Neenah, two counts; Arthur J Strong, 29, of 1014 Brighton Drive, Menasha, two counts; Thomas G Potter, 21, of 1124 Elmwood Ave, Oshkosh, one count, and Harold DeKarske, 20, also listed at 1124 Elmwood Ave Oshkosh one count. DeKarske is formerly from Sheboygan

The man from Calumet County is John A Lulloff, 20, of 26 Columbia St., Chilton. He is charged with one count of selling drugs.

The arrests came after nine months of investigation by a special detachment from the county district attorney's office. The arrests were made in a five-county area with 21 of the arrests made in Sheboygan

Two other persons were picked up in Sheboygan Falls, seven in Sheboygan County, one in Fond du Lac County, and one in Milwaukee County

According to a sheriff's deputy working in the county jail, more arrests were to be made today in other counties

The warrants against the 35 men and two women involved in the raid ranged from one to four counts on sale of marijuana, barbituates, amphetamines, LSD, MDA, STP and cocaine.

The roundup was called a "warrant-serving operation" by Sheboygan Police Inspector John Zindar He said the arrests were not made on the strength of possession of drugs at the time of arrest, but on information gathered through the past nine months.

He also said the crackdown was not tied in with drug raids conducted earlier this week in Manitowoc and Stevens Point.

The arrests were a result of a program laid out in December which involved the county board law enforcement committee, the City Council's public protection and safety committee, the city mayor, county board chairman and law enforcement agencies from the county.

The program called for one detective from both city police and county police to work full time with the county district attorney's office to investigate drug sales.

Sheboygan police Chief Oakley Frank said that no arrests of drug purchasers were made and that people who purchased drugs were not promised immunity to obtain their help.

Obey Dislikes Property Tax For Education

Congressman Says California Ruling Is Applicable Here

WASHINGTON — The recent California Supreme Court decision that ruled it unconstitutional to support education by property taxes "is just as applicable to Wisconsin" in its reasoning, said Rep. David Obey, D-Wis.

In a newsletter to publications in his 7th District, the Wausau congressman said he believes the property tax bears too large a portion of educational costs, particularly in Northern Wisconsin.

"Instead of having to rely on the property tax, which hits hardest at people least able to pay, local school districts should be given greater assistance by state and federal governments," said Obey.

The California ruling said that education financed by local property taxes creates inequities since wealthy communities are able to afford higher-quality school systems than poor communities.

Obey said Wisconsin relies even more heavily on the property tax for schools than California does, paying 65 per cent of education costs through levies on property, compared to 56 per cent in California.

He added that Wisconsin's expected 3.2 per cent share of school costs to be financed by federal funds in the 1969-70 school year placed the state at the bottom of the list of the 50 states, in order of the portion of costs paid by federal aids.

Abernathy Finds Moscow Students Unenthusiastic

MOSCOW (AP) — The Rev Ralph David Abernathy says he found in a visit to Moscow State University none of the enthusiasm found in the U S university classrooms

"Presumably, what the professor had to say was the last word," the head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference said Thursday. "There was very little participation and dialogue.

"I found, amazingly, that the students were much older than in American universities. And I didn't see the ray of jubilance and youth and sunshine that is often seen on the American campus."

Abernathy, in Russia to "give our nonviolent movement worldwide exposure," also visied Lenin's tomb in Red Square and a display of military and industrial equipment in a Moscow park.

Medina Won't Comment on Rumor of Job

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Capt. Ernest L Medina, acquitted Wednesday of all charges arising from the massacre of civilians at My Lai, has refused comment on reports he has been offered a job by a Florida promoter who paid a large share of his legal defense.

A spokesman for businessman Glenn W. Turner of Orlando confirmed Thursday that Turner had offered Medina a job, but he said the type of job and salary specifics had not been discussed.

After his court-martial ended, Medina told newsmen his only immediate plans are to get out of the Army.

The Turner spokesman said Medina's civilian attorney, F. Lee Bailey, is a business associate of Turner.

Turner heads the conglomerate Turner Enterprises, which operates 58 corporations with a total of 300,000 employes, most of them door-to-door cosmetic salesmen.

It is two inches longer than the Volkswagen Beetle but has more head and leg room than a limousine. Its five-foot-high door makes it easy to step into and it carries four passengers. A platform beside the driver holds luggage. The floor is flat because the engine is in the rear. The car handles easier and is more economical than today's taxi.

Tradition of Neglect Hampers Prison Reform

By MARK BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — As police stormed New York State's Attica prison on the morning of Sept. 13, a hundred convicts in four South Carolina cities walked quietly away from their guards.

That evening, as Attica counted its dead and wounded, the South Carolina convicted returned to custody, a day's pay richer and a day closer to freedom, a bank account and a job.

They were participating in work-release, a program adopted in varying forms by more than half the states and the Federal Bureau of Prisons since it was pioneered by Wisconsin in 1913.

Still, work-release touches only a fraction of the nation's 200,000 prison inmates. The program, for instance, is available to only 500 of the federal system's 20,000 convicts.

19th Century

In terms of cost to society and to those who come in contact with it, America's system of corrections is for the most part mired in the 19th Century.

Attempts by corrections officials to shift from their traditional role as mere keepers of society's misfits to agents of rehabilitation have been met with parsimony by the budget-makers and apathy by the public.

"I suppose," said Ellis McDougal, Georgia's director of corrections, "that we suffer from being invisible until the Atticas."

"The American system for correcting and rehabilitating criminals presents a convincing case of failure," said President Nixon nearly two years ago in urging reform of "the appalling deficiencies of our prisons and rehabilitation efforts."

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger has made prison reform a major personal crusade. Calling prisons "the most neglected, the most crucial and probably the least understood phase of the administration of justice," Burger has pestered lawyers to support corrections efforts at the state and local level.

Change Society

Yet the reformers are up against two centuries of neglect, and many believe that true reform will come only when society changes the conditions that cause crime.

"We're really just a crutch," said Leighton W. Dudley, Maryland's deputy secretary for correctional services. "We're given society's defective materials and expected to perform miracles."

All but a fortunate few of the nation's prison and jail population are housed in facilities built years ago for a much smaller number. Staffs are underpaid and spread too thin. Sanitation, health and education services range from barely adequate to nonexistent.

In a nation that has come to associate much criminal behavior with mental instability, there are but 60 full-time psychiatrists to deal with the country's prison population.

oCst of Crime

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice estimated in 1967 that the calculable costs of crime exceeded $14 billion.

Yet federal, state and local governments combined last year spent only half that amount on all phases of the criminal justice system—police, courts and corrections.

Of that amount, corrections received $1.5 billion. Richard W. Velde, associate administrator of the Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, estimates the total cost of replacing unfit prison facilities alone at $15 billion.

The FBI's Uniform Crime Reports for 1970 indicate law enforcement officials received reports of 5.5 billion crimes during the year, half a billion more than in 1969.

Johnson's crime commission estimated that half the crimes committed annually in the United States go unreported. Of those reported, FBI records show police make an arrest in only one of five.

Juvenile Arrests

Of the 6.2 million persons arrested in 1970, nearly half were juveniles, more than half were under 25 years old, and 27 per cent were black.

Of the 6.2 million, 1.25 million will spend time in one of the nation's 4,000 jails awaiting trial, sentencing or expiration of a term. Fewer will go on to a federal or state prison, where the inmate population has declined from a high of 213,000 in 1960.

The success or failure of a system that seeks to rehabilitate offenders is measured by the rate of recidivism—the "repeater" rate.

Velde has estimated that on a national basis, recidivism runs as high as 60 per cent. Individual states, such as California with 30 per cent and Texas with 15 per cent, report widely divergent rates.

Probation Group.

Despite their limited use, the so-called community-based corrections programs—work-release half-way houses and limited-security centers—report comparatively favorable recidicism rates.

But the group that has the fewest repeaters, say federal officials, remains the 800,000 offenders who never enter prison at all, but remains free on probation.

Yet, says former LEAA corrections expert Lawrence Carpenter, "probation simply does not exist in many areas of the country." And where it does exist, surveys indicate officers often carry as many as 100 cases each, allowing perhaps 15 minutes per month with individual offenders.

Perhaps the brightest spot in the future of corrections is the potential of LEAA, which is providing funds to back up its advocacy of prison reform.

From $3 million in fiscal 1969, LEAA grants to states and local governments for corrections has risen to $179 million this year and may go as high as $250 million next year.

Emphasize Expansion

While some of the money will go for construction of prison facilities, Velde says the emphasis will be on expansion of community-based programs of rehabilitation, job training and job-finding. Unemployment among released prisoners, Velde notes, is three to four times that of society as a whole.

States themselves have begun innovative programs. In addition to work release, some institutions allow inmates to take college credit courses and more than 400 inmates at Massachusetts' Walpole State Prison have been trained in computer programming since 1967.

At Chief Justice Burger's urging, the American Bar Association last spring established a Commission on Correctional Facilities and Services. With grants from the Labor Department's Manpower Administration and the LEAA, the commission is operating a nationwide clearing house on job assistance for ex-convicts and an eight-state parole assistance program using volunteer lawyers.

Partly as a result of recent court decisions, conditions inside prisons are slowly beginning to improve. Courts have broadened rights of convicts to religious freedom, legal assistance and due process in disciplinary proceedings.

In addition, federal courts have held, in cases involving the Arkansas prison system and the Orleans Parish Prison in New Orleans, that imprisonment in substandard conditions is cruel and unusual punishment in violation of the Constitution.

Yugoslavs Worried About Soviet Design for Future

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Yugoslavia is like the harried character who met a man who wasn't there and wished heartily he would go away.

Leonid Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist party chief now visiting Belgrade, publicly denied there was any such thing as a Brezhnev Doctrine. The denial will serve to keep alive a Balkans fear that the doctrine that was there yesterday when Moscow needed it will be there tomorrow if Moscow so chooses.

Right now Soviet policy aims at soothing West Europe while trying to force West Germany to accept the finality of an East German state. Moscow has worries in the Orient and doesn't want worries in the West at the same time.

But in all probability Brezhnev went to Yugoslavia because he finds that craggy old Tito and his Yugoslavs remain a problem 16 years after Nikita Khrushchev ostensibly made peace with them. Tito wants to know if the Russians meant what they said then: that Yugoslavia is entitled to independence in her domestic development and foreign affairs. Brezhnev says yes but the Yugoslavs can't help wondering: Is he saying there is no Brezhnev Doctrine just for the time being?

Limited Soverneignty

The Brezhnev Doctrine says that Communist-ruled nations have only limited sovereignty. They are sovereign only so long as their policies don't endanger Communist rule elsewhere or do not offend the Russians. Czechoslovakia offended the Russians in 1968 and its reform movement was crushed by Soviet and Warsaw Pact armies.

Brezhnev now says it's slanderous to suggest that the Russians had any intention of limiting anybody's sovereignty. Then, perhaps unconsciously contradicting himself, he informs the Yugoslavs that their social system is unacceptable to the Soviet Union. The warning is clear.

Brezhnev insists that the "Brezhnev Doctrine" is something invented by "the imperialists." The record shows it was invented in Moscow.

Founded on Sand

—Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, June 27, 1968: "The calculations of those who want to tear at least one limb from the Socialist community are shortsighted and founded on sand. The Socialist community will not tolerate this."

—Warsaw Pact letter to members, July 15, 1968: "We are determined never to allow imperialism, peacefully or otherwise, from within or from without, to cause a breach in the Socialist system . . . Every one of our parties is responsible not only to its own working class, but to workers throughout the world."

—Pravda, Sept. 26, 1969: "The sovereignty of individual countries cannot be maintained against the interests of world socialism and the world revolutionary movement . . . Those who speak about illegality of actions of the allied Socialist countries in Czechoslovakia forget that in a class society there is not and cannot be nonclass law."

—Gromyko, U.N. speech, Oct. 3, 1968. "The Soviet Union considers it necessary to declare . . . that Socialist countries cannot and will not tolerate a situation in which vital conditions of socialism are violated and encroachments are made on boundaries of the Socialist community."

—International Life, Moscow, Oct. 10, 1968: "For months a situation had been maturing in Czechoslovakia in which counterrevolutionary anti-Socialist forces under the pretext of 'democratization and liberalization' of the existing system had worked for the restoration of capitalism . . . As a result there evolved a direct threat to the Socialist system . . . It is to be hoped that past developments will be a lesson to all those who have plans of encroaching on the Socialist community."

—Pravda, June 1, 1970: "The borders of the Soviet Union and other Socialist countries are borders of a new type. Their new quality consists in that they are borders of unbreakable friendship."

Brezhnev has reminded Tito that Moscow considers Yugoslavia's social system a bad example for the "Socialist" community, and her improving relations with Red China a source of unhappiness. He has reminded Communist rulers that the Brezhnev Doctrine is indeed still in the Kremlin toolkit, ready to repair Eastern Europe's cage if and when necessary.

Sneezing Comedian Billy Gilbert Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Comedian Billy Gilbert's lengthy, wheezy sneeze became a cinema trademark in numerous musical comedies.

"Funny thing is that I didn't use it in more than five or six of all those films I made, but the way it sticks in people's memories, you'd think that was all I ever did," he once told an interviewer.

The hefty, wide-eyed actor, who died Thursday at the age of 77 after suffering a stroke two months ago, started his career in vaudeville and wound up in television.

Despite more than 20 films, in which he portrayed humorous characters — generally nervous father types—Gilbert gained fame when he was cast as the voice of Sneezy, the dwarf in the Walt Disney cartoon production of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

In real life, the mustachioed Gilbert said he hardly ever sneezed—"The last sneezing cold I had was in 1918," he told an interviewer in 1940.

His film debut, after 23 years in burlesque and vaudeville, was in the 1929 movie, "Noisy Neighbors." In 1937 he joined Eleanor Powell and Nelson Eddy in the musical "Rosalie," and followed that with the 1938 musical "Happy Landing" opposite Sonja Henie.

In recent years he was a guest star on numerous television series.

Gilbert, who was born in Louisville, Ky., is survived by his widow Lolly.

Lucey Wants Information On Poison Fish

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. Patrick J. Lucey directed state officials Thursday to speed up their investigation of potentially poisonous fish in Wisconsin waters.

Lucey's directive was issued on the heels of Michigan Gov. William Milliken's order Wednesday to ban the sale of coho salmon caught in Lake Michigan.

"I am very concerned that Gov. Milliken's order to ban the sale of coho salmon in Michigan may be necessary in Wisconsin," Lucey said in a statement.

"I have asked the Department of Natural Resources to speed up their present investigation of PCB (polychlorinated biphenyl) levels in coho salmon caught in Lake Michigan," Lucey said.

Milliken ordered a ban on the commercial sale of coho in Michigan after authorities said the poison PCB exceeded levels determined safe by the Food and Drug Administration.

Fulbright Warns Essay Winner of 'Righteousness'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Patricia Kluka, 20, of Kenosha, Wis., was told by Sen. J. William Fulbright that Americans "shouldn't be too self-righteous" after she praised the country's "visible achievements of peace."

The Alverno College senior appeared Thursday at a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing after receiving honorable mention in a U.N. essay contest. The committee chairman said there is not much difference in the hopes of the peoples of the world.

"We don't achieve some special roles as the chosen people simply because we are Americans," the Democratic senator from Arkansas told her. But, he said, Miss Kluka had presented "an excellent statement."

Princess Margaret In Canada 4 Days

WINNIPEG, Man. (AP) — Princess Margaret and her husband, Lord Snowdon, began a four-day visit to this Manitoba capital Thursday.

The focus of the trip is the official opening of the $4.5 million Winnipeg Art Gallery Saturday. The visit was planned as a low-key affair, with a minimum of government involvement.

Israel to Oust Meyer Lansky

TEL AVIV (AP) — The Israeli Interior Ministry announced today it would not extend the tourist visa of Meyer Lansky, but a lawyer for the American gambling figure said Lansky would fight the decision.

Yoram Alroy said he would take his client's case to the Israel Supreme Court and "fight for his immigrant status."

Lansky is sought by U.S. authorities on charges of illegal gambling activities and for refusing to appear before a federal grand jury.

He has been living in Israel since July 1970 on a tourist visa that has been extended several times by the Israelis.

The ministry announced that his present visa would expire next Monday and would not be renewed.

Alroy said the ministry has been studying Lansky's application for immigrant status but now, in view of the nonextension of the tourist visa, this meant "we must now take the issue to the courts."

The 69-year-old Polish-born American Jew was indicted earlier this year by a federal grand jury in Miami, Fla., on charges of skimming—illegally taking—profits from a Las Vegas gambling casino and for refusing to appear before the investigating jury.

A federal judge last week ordered that Lansky be tried in Las Vegas.

Ruess Praises Pollution Action As a Beginning

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency's referral of 30 firms to the U.S. Justice Department Thursday for alleged failure to obtain waste dumping permits was commended by Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., as a beginning.

But Reuss said the Justice Department has failed to act on nearly 200 alleged violations which he called to its attention earlier under the same 1899 water pollution law the EPA cited.

"It looks to me like the big shots are escaping and the little people are bearing the brunt," he said.

The congressman said, however, he felt the 30 cases referred Thursday were a signal to other industries that the law will now be enforced.

Two Wisconsin firms were among the 30 cited. They were the Armstrong Chemical Co. of Janesville, which has nine employes, and the Indian-owned sawmill of Menominee Enterprises, Inc., of Nepoit.

'Love Story' Director To Produce 'La Mancha'

NEW YORK (AP) — Arthur Hiller, film director of "Love Story" and "Plaza Suite," will produce and direct the movie version of "Man of La Mancha," United Artists has announced.

The film of the musical, to star Peter O'Toole and Sophia Loren, is set to start production in Italy early next year.

Jetliner Serves as Delivery Room for Bouncing Baby Boy

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A Miami to Detroit jetliner was the delivery room for a six pound, 8 ounce boy Thursday.

Eastern Airlines said Mrs. Bonnie Wilson, a stewardess from Atlanta, delivered the baby while the plane was flying over Augusta, Ga.

The mother requested that her name not be released, an airline spokesman said. The plane was routed to Atlanta and the mother and child were taken to a hospital. Their conditions were reported good.

The baby was delivered on the floor of the plane's galley.

Hirohito to Meet Nixon in Alaska

WASHINGTON (AP) — Emperor Hirohito, the first reigning Japanese monarch to leave home soil, will meet privately with President Nixon for 30 to 40 minutes when he touches down at Anchorage, Alaska, Sunday night en route to Europe.

The White House said Wednesday that Hirohito and Empress Nagako are scheduled to land at Elmendorf Air Force Base near Anchorage about 10 p.m. to a welcome by the President, Mrs. Nixon and Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

The party will then go to the air base home of Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Robert G. Ruegg. Mrs. Nixon and the empress will remain with the emperor and the President for a few minutes, then leave them in private conversation.

The Japanese monarch is scheduled to remain on the ground for about an hour and 40 minutes and then continue on to Europe. The Nixons plan to return to Washington Monday.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

World Champions

TEAM CAPTAIN

Hair breadth (Half-done) Harry is to the bridge world what a half-baked cake is to the dining table. The planning and preparation may be great but the execution is usually gooey

Today's slam hand was played by Hairbreadth Harry in a recent duplicate game It illustrates Harry's main weakness.

| 6 ♠ | Pass | Pass | Pass |

Opening lead: Jack of clubs.

North's first two responses to South's game demand bid showed little strength. However, when South continued to probe with a cue bid of four clubs, North justifiably offered some encouragement by bidding four hearts. It was all South needed to bid the slam

West opened the jack of clubs and Harry studied his dummy Harry quickly saw that his slam was iced if the heart suit behaved nicely. However, if the more probably four-two division existed, Harry would have to ruff a heart in dummy. All that would be required was an even trump division and the third trump in the same hand as the fourth heart

As you can see, Harry has no trouble in analysis. His problems lie in execution.

Harry won the club lead and played one high trump. Next, he played the king, ace and another heart. (He played only one trump because he could not afford to have the defense lead the last trump when in with the heart.) East won the third round of hearts and led his last one. Harry followed suit helplessly while West's nine of trumps scored the setting trick

Unlucky? No. Harry should have made the hand. His reasoning was excellent — to a point. He just didn't go far enough.

Instead of playing three rounds of hearts, Harry should have ducked the first heart trick completely. Harry could then win any return, draw the second round of trumps and ruff his last heart with dummy's last trump

See why the defenders are "wild about Harry?" He plans the best cakes and then forgets to put on the frosting.

League Begins Sale of Tickets for 1971-72 Fox Valley Symphony Season

"Lets Hear It for Symphony," theme for 1971 Symphony Week, was adapted for use as the title of a fashion showing and dessert which kicked off the 1971-72 ticket sales Tuesday afternoon at Gimbels' Forum Restaurant

More than 90 women of the 172 season ticket team members gathered to get kits and ask questions at the initial meeting of the campaign of the Symphony League to "sellout" Lawrence Memorial Chapel.

Use of the instruction kits, prepared by Mrs William Heckrodt, ticket chairman, was explained by Mrs Harold Adams, Appleton area chairman.

Mrs. Adams pointed out that since this is the year our capital city has dedicated the country's first Performing Arts Center, this is also the year that symphony should be able to chalk up its second-in-a-row full house.

Mrs Heckrodt, not expected to be at the meeting, had flown in from Germany that morning, and added emphasis to her message to ticket sellers, "It's work, but a labor of love to bring to our community, especially our children in today's difficult world, such a beautiful and worthwhile thing."

Style show, "Let's Wear It for Symphony," was presented with professional models from Gimbels by Mary Ellen Ducklow.

Arrangements for the party were made by Mrs. William Spears, Mrs. E. R. Callaway, Mrs Stuart Koch and Mrs Charles Cheney

Captains of Appleton teams are Mmes Adams, O. C Boldt, Earl Fetting, Charles Green, James Grist, Miles Mercer. Ole Moe, Harold Ornstein, Robert Parnell, LeRoy Stohlman, Carl Stracka, Norman Strandwitz, Clayton Weber, Victor Zaremba, Edward Zeiss and John Zeiss

Neenah captains are Mmes John Helms, G P Gill, Lorren Schroeder, William Sickles and Warren Wilson, and in Menasha, Mmes Lynn Cooper Jr, Russell Gilligan and Robert Strauss

'Out of Silence' Is Published in England

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr Thosteson A Mrs E R wrote to you recommending a book called "Out of Silence" by Mary Sorrell, written by a woman journalist who was left speechless by a cerebral hemorrhage Mrs E R said she had received a "small pocket edition" for Christmas

Thosteson

Is there any way we might find out the cost of this pocket edition? — M D D.

This letter is from the secretary of a Hearing and Speech Center, interested in getting one or several copies I have had enough similar inquiries, from people who just wanted to know where to get the book, to warrant giving such further information as I have

Many said book dealers couldn't find a record of the book The reason for that may be because the publishers are in England — Hodder & Stoughton, St Paul's House, Warwick Lane, London E C 4

Doubtless some of the larger book dealers, such as Brentano's, would have no difficulty finding the book, but for the smaller dealers, the information that the publishers are English should be helpful

As to price, I have no information, but airmail letters can get to England in a day or two, and those interested can get an answer more quickly than I could get and publish it I would suggest asking the publishers whether they know of dealers handling the book this side of the Atlantic

Dear Dr Thosteson Please send booklet, "Hiatal Hernia and Eight Ways to Combat It," for which I enclose 25 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope Does such a hernia, if small, ever heal itself by proper diet etc? — M N

A hiatal hernia does not "heal itself," and that is true with most hernias A small one can be detected by X-ray examination at one time and not another, but this does not mean that it has disappeared

However weight control and other methods more often than not can keep a hiatal hernia under control so it does not bother the patient — and that's what your goal is

There are cases in which surgery is required, but in the majority of cases it is not

Dear Dr Thosteson Several years ago, during a previous marriage, my husband had a vasectomy Now we have been married a year and would very much like to have a child. We have heard that a vasectomy can possibly be reversed through surgery Would appreciate any information — Mrs D C

Sometimes it can; sometimes it can't It depends in part on how the operation was done in the first place, but "reversing" a vasectomy is subject to some speculation in any event

Only way to find out is to have your husband go to a urologist and try

Dear Dr Thosteson The practice of taking lemon juice straight or slightly diluted is to be discouraged I have seen cases where the dental enamel has been dissolved by continued use of lemon or lemon juice — R A F (D D S)

I've warned that it could harm the teeth, but since you are a doctor of dental surgery, probably people will pay more attention to hearing it from you

Keynoter Charges Family With Responsibility of Stability

BY SANDRA SHACKELFORD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

DE PERE — "We have become kind of a neurotic generation" in dealing with what has come to be called "our times," said the Rev. J. Ellsworth Kalas, graduate of Garrett Theological Seminary and present senior minister of First Church, Madison, as he opened Wednesday's one-day area conference on "The Emerging Family" at St Norbert Abbey.

Referring to the adult populace, Kalas pointed to the "neurotic" tendency of 'keeping up with the times," a change less frustrating to the young

Glorification of Individuality

While admitting that the changing life style is inevitable, he called for finding "securities for change" telling the 600 women present that cultural stability rests with the family.

The recipient of an honorary doctorate from Lawrence University traced history, recalling a style of family living in which "family life was the whole family unit sacrificing the good of individual worth."

Kalas used as an example the housewife of 50 or even 25 years ago whose usefulness was exclusively home-centered with little hope for creative expression or community involvement.

Then came the "great emphasis on the rights of the individual" with its glorification evolving into the disintegration of the family structure as it had been known — a "do your own thing" attitude at the expense of the unit

Outlining the role each family member played, he focused on the father whose "only obligation was to make a living and as good a living as possible."

Male Stereotype

Kalas reflected on some of his magazine articles written in the pre-"Playboy" era with its stereotyping of the male role.

"All men seemed to be people who loved cars, fishing and sports. It was assumed that he was to be a success in his career."

Today's concept finds the individual member each finding his or her own area of satisfaction and meaning.

Women are finding their "sense of significance," said the minister and "young people are breaking family ties. Fifty or 25 years ago it was assumed that a young person would do something his parents did." Future statistics will have to bear out if this is to be the case when today's youth reaches maturity.

While the child should honor his mother and father, stated the speaker, this does not necessarily mean love. "We should give them something to respect."

He was firm in his conviction that it is only through "this first unit of social order," the family, that school, government and the world can survive.

"If a child does not honor his parents, he will find it hard to honor any other kind of authority."

In conclusion the keynote speaker presented a picture of what he considered to be a healthy, vital family unit.

"A man should feel as husband or father that there is more to life than becoming an executive or junior executive. A woman should be more than a bearer of children, a cook or housekeeper. A child must believe that his or her potential is without bounds.

"This must be the responsibility of the seventies if greater change is to come," Kalas concluded.

The conference was jointly sponsored by the University Extension and the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay.

Lecturer Zeros in on Changing Concepts

GREEN BAY — With new horizons and changing vistas for men and women in the 1970s, Kaye Noe, lecturer and former research associate for American Institutes for Research, Washington, D. C., took exception with Wednesday's keynote speaker when she insisted that there are varieties of 'family.'

Zeroing in on social change rather than stability, she concurred that the "family does have a long and varied history" but there are alternatives to the family as the majority of Americans know it today.

As history developed, man ran the family with the womans' role "somewhat above chattel level," she stated. "Love was not important in the family until the last 100 years."

Mrs. Noe found the difference today being that both men and women "choose marriage" rather than using it as a means to an economic end.

In the past there were three basic family functions: the unit of sex, procreation, children: the unit of care of the elderly and young; the unit as in rural areas as economically geared.

"Look at what has happened to some of these functions," she said. The care-taking role has been delegated to hospitals, homes for the elderly, Social Security and day care centers. Schools are taking over more of a role in rearing and carirg for children. The economic role of the family has become that of the consumer rather than producer and labor saving devices have left more time for the woman.

Another radical change lies in mobility in today's society with "one-fifth of the families in the United States moving each year." The former stable family unit has become a separate entity with relatives separated by space and the former closeness of the nuclear family "remains intact through feelings."

Adaptation to family change has caused many a dilemma for those who cannot adjust to it. Said Mrs. Noe, "Social change is fine when it hits somewhere else out there" but when it hits close to home one loses objectivity.

Divorce Creates Change

Another change leading to another family form is divorce which affects from a third to a fourth of the American population. She stated that one cause that splits the family unit is boredom, when the brunt of responsibility falls squarely on the husband and wife who are separated from friends and relatives.

Speaking realistically she stated that "there aren't that many pairs of people that are compatible."

An ever increasing cause of divorce is the ability to "get out of a bad situation," she said.

Mrs. Noe elaborated on other forms of family such as group marriage, tribal marriage, communal living and the democratic family with its shared responsibility. While less obvious statistically, they exist in a real sense, she said.

With much of the adult population agahst at these seemingly new forms of marriage or living, Mrs. Noe pointed out that they were nothing new, likening them to the remissence of the matriarchial Chinese family unit.

As for rural communes, she gave the current estimate as being somewhere around 1,000 existing mostly in the western states.

"Families are permanent," she affirmed, but the form and prior concept of the nuclear family has changed.

"We think that there must be only one alternative" to family living, Mrs. Noe stated, adding that this is not so. "There will be an evolution of many forms but it can't meet the needs of everybody.

"Since social circumstances change . . . family structures must change."

BPW Travels Far With Octogenarian

"These Are Some of the Clothes I Wear," Mrs. Peeples explained as she told how she had purchased representative brocades, silks and chiffons on her travels in the Far East, Africa, Egypt and Europe.

BY ALICE K. HUCK
Post-Crescent Women's Editor

An amazing lesson on how to stay young was artistically presented to a constantly amazed and amused group of the Appleton Business and Professional Women's Club (BPW) Tuesday evening at the Columbus Club.

"Around the World with Mary Florine" was the "show" presented by Mrs. Cornelius James Peeples, who, when not travelling, makes her home in Chicago.

Mrs. Peeples, who returned from her latest world tour in August, amazed the group because at 86 she was able to sing French songs in good voice, presented a Japanese dance in full costume and swiftly, during her lecture, changed to and from some of the scores of lovely robes and gowns she has purchased in Europe, Africa and the Far East. Mrs. Faye Beglinger was Mrs. Peeples' accompaniest on the piano.

The world traveler, artist and lecturer explained that she buys nothing she does not wear, and there can't possibly be a mood she can't match with her collection of orange, red, green, blue and yellow brocades, silks and chiffons, many embroidered with jewels.

Of her accumulation of 460 scarves, carefully selected for the stories they tell of the countries they represent, Mrs. Peeples says, "When I need one, I just grab the right color from the pile."

For purposes of showing Tuesday, Mrs. Peeples had hung each of many scarves from slim sticks. Fans, jewelry and knick knacks in her exhibit included many gorgeous butterflies, about which she says she is never without one, on a dress, coat or in her hair.

Shoes obviously also attract Mrs. Peeples who seems to prefer heels, except when tramping around the ruins of India, Egypt or Greece.

Her doll and small statue collection provided interesting centerpieces at the dinner which preceded her program.

Mrs. Peeples' program ended with color slides and a running commentary on scenes she has shot "mostly with my box Brownie," and most of which rival the color photos appearing in the slick magazines.

Her slide presentation, which she also gives in Chicago-area schools, ends with shots of the Statue of Liberty in the New York harbor and photos of our "beautiful" buildings in Washington, D. C. and the comment, "It's nice to travel, but oh, how good it is to know I can come back to the United States as a citizen, and that this is really my home.

In a short business session the BPW women were asked to give their comments, "yes" or "no" on Senate bill 585, which will be sent to State Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek. The bill provides "that newsmen shall not be required to disclose sources of information obtained for disseminating news."

Ruth Duginski explained that all remarks would remain confidential, and be sent in as written.

Lone Woman Finishes Rescue Course

BOLTON MOUNTAIN, Vt. (AP) — It took six days of scratching across boulders and dangling from cliffs 100-feet high for Frances Tyson to become the first woman to finish a mountain rescue training course run by Norwich University.

She says the experience was "lovely."

A professional artist and illustrator, Mrs. Tyson, 33, of South Strafford, was the only woman in a group of 23 trainees—including six paratroopers—trying to earn the university's "Ramshead" insigna.

It was the first group of climbers not connected with Norwich, a private military college to complete the program.

Mrs. Tyson said she joined the group because she "loves to climb, and likes to spend time in the mountains."

For six days, the group was led through five phases of instruction by Army Sgt. Gordon Dewey.

In the final phase, climbers were tested for skill and endurance. Using pitons, hangers and other hardware designed for tension climbing, teams of three trainees inched their way up cliff faces and overhangs.

With only manmade footholds to use in the ascent, and rain water pouring down the cliffs, the climbers sometimes spent three hours navigating less than 20 feet of precipitous terrain.

Despite precautions, two members of the group received minor injuries.

But Mrs. Tyson was not hurt. "I was never in any danger," she said, "Sgt. Dewey runs a tight camp.

"Besides, it wouldn't do any good to get hurt if we were really rescuing someone. We can't afford to get injured."

Also in the training group were six paratroopers from the long range reconnaissance patrol of the 82nd Airborne Division of Ft. Bragg, N.C.

As for being the only woman in the group, Mrs. Tyson said, "It didn't matter; we were all equal out there."

Woman's Dollar Dilemma

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Women, by their very nature, do not understand the economy. There are probably only two of us in the country who have any idea what is happening to the U. S. dollar.

You take the woman who received a statement from her bank saying she was $17 overdrawn. Not understanding what it was all about, she promptly sat down and wrote the bank a check for her deficiency. Had she stopped to figure it out, she should have charged it to her gasoline credit card as that is the lowest credit card expenditure and her husband would never have known.

I won't bore you with the basics of our U. S. economy, only to say that during the past few years, never has so much bought so little for such a high price for so many.

The point is, what do President Nixon's recent changes in the economy mean to the average family.

1. My husband will still not get to see the alligators in the Everglades at summer prices. Every winter since the Everglades was invented, the alligators show themselves only to the rich, winter, tourists. For a few weeks when the President froze summer accommodation prices, it seems my husband might be able to afford the alligators. Then the ban was lifted It is not easy watching your husband cry.

2. I do not have to go through with our original plan to get a little spending money by having a baby in a Volkswagen. For the past several years, Volkswagen has offered $100 to women who deliver in one of their cars. At 44, this means a lot to me.

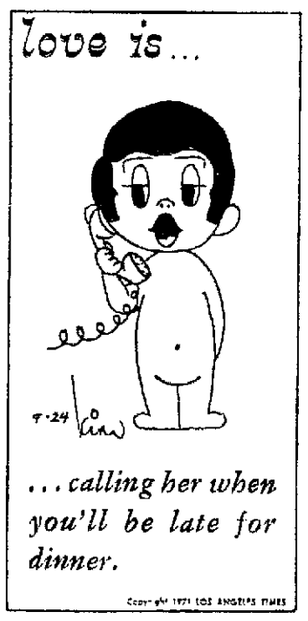

3. We have a new reason for not "going abroad" this season. In the past, it has been tough coming up with new excuses for not keeping up with our neighbors. Now we can simply say, "I cannot imagine anything more tacky that being stuck on the Riviera with a trunk full of useless American money."

4. The Domestic Peace Corps (housewives) will continue working at her present salary with no raise until after Nov. 1. Army enlistments among women is expected to soar as their salaries are exempt.

5. More good news. Those of you who need an attorney to figure out what is frozen and what is not under the new law will be happy to know that lawyer's fees are also frozen. Also, those of you in business who will suffer physical, mental and financial anxiety can also secure a doctor's services without any increase in his prices until after Nov. 1.

I say until they thaw TV dinners, we've nothing to worry about. (Eat your heart out, Sylvia Porter.)

Your Problems

It's Usually True That He Won't Divorce

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope you will print this. It might help some unfortunate girl get wise to her situation.

When a man keeps a mistress in the shadows he does so for a very interesting reason, one which most mistresses do not understand. She is, of course, lead to believe that if it were only possible, the man would leave his wife and marry her so the whole world could know of their great love.

But usually the truth is he will not divorce his wife and marry her because it would defeat his purpose. If he married her, she would then be a part of the real world which is exactly what he is trying to escape. She would be no different from his present wife. The excitement would vanish. The man who takes a mistress, does so not because she is the love of his life, who he met too late, but because he wants to flee from the demands of everyday living which have become too heavy. The fact of the matter is, if he had the guts to stand up to life, he wouldn't need her. — Standing Up in Wilmington, N. C.

Dear Standing: You sound like a guy who has been there. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell me what to do about our 15-year-old daughter. Several months ago,

Landers

Lisa started to hang around the service station a few blocks from here. When we discovered she had a crush on a 19-year-old boy who works the night shift, we checked into the boy's background and found out he is no good.

We told Lisa she was not to see the boy again. For several days she was quiet and sullen but seemed to be behaving. On a hunch, I checked her bed at 11:30 p.m. one night and she was not in it. I sent my husband down to the service station and sure enough, she was there. He brought her home.

Last week the boy's picture was in the paper in connection with a holdup. We are relieved because now he is in jail and Lisa knows he's a bad actor. But she is taking it so hard we don't know how to deal with her. The girl will not eat with the family and she looks like the wrath of God. I discovered that she's been sleeping in the dress she was wearing when she was last with him "because it smells like him." (Gasoline.) Se wants to go see him in jail and we will not allow it. Are we wrong? Please, Ann, suggest something to get our daughter back on the track. — Distraught Parents in Shomokin

Dear Parents: Your daughter needs more than a suggestion from me. She needs professional counseling and I urge you to see that she gets it. It sounds as if this girl's been out of control for quite some time. Get going.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You outsmarted yourself when you told the man who wrote about going steady with the same girl for 32 years to quit bothering you with phony letters. Again you made a point of the fact that the letter came from New Haven and accused the Yalies of playing games. Don't you think anybody in New Haven has real problems? I used to live in that town and I can tell you that there are plenty of mixed-up people there.

Do you actually think it's impossible for a couple to go together for 32 years? If so, you've got a lot to learn. My personal opinion is that anyone who writes to you from anywhere has got to be nuts. — Green Bay

Dear G.B.: You wrote, didn't you? I don't think you're nuts. But then I live in Chicago. What do I know?

Appleton Family of 12 Wants to Live Under One Roof

At 8 a.m., Sept. 7, an Appleton family of 12 was "sitting out in the street with no place to live."

They're off the street now, but they still have no place to live.

For 8½ years they lived in a six-bedroom, rented home on the south side. The landlord spent amost nothing to maintain it. City officials finally condemned it for code violations.

The family had been warned more than a year ago that the house would be condemned. They were told it would be razed Sept. 8. It's still standing.

"It was inadequate, but it was a roof," said the father, who asked that he not be identified in the interest of the children. "At least I could sleep with my wife rather than on the floor here." Bed now is a mattress on the concrete floor of the garage where he works.

When told they might be homeless, the family started checking into a government loan to purchase a house.

Things looked promising at first. "We were told we qualified. We were told to go ahead," the father explained. At one point last spring, it looked like the loan might go through channels in a matter of a couple of days.

Suddenly there was one roadblock after another. Most of the red tape problems resulted from some unsecured debts Optimism turned to despair.

They had counted on the loan so they could have their own home. Now it was a matter of trying to find something to rent — in a hurry.

"Every way we turned there was another kick in the pants," the father recalled. Landlords willing to rent houses to families with 10 children are hard to find.

The family contacted public and private welfare and charitable agencies. One real estate firm came up with a place for $250 a month and a $250 security deposit.

"We're not poor, but we sure can't afford that," the father said. His wife also works, as a switchboard operator. The family at one point passed up a house that the county was renting out pending its removal. But that was at a time when it looked like the government loan was assured Now the house is rented to someone else.

The father hasn't seen all 10 of his children together since the split up Sept. 7. The children are 9 months to 17 years old.

He was able to be with three of them last weekend when he took a group of Boy Scouts on a campout.

Two children are with a friend who has two of her own. Three are with a relative who already had five children. And the mother and the five remaining children are at the home of her parents, who still have two of their own children at home.

Nine of the children are in three different Appleton schools. The mother gets to see them as a group when she shuttles them to school in the morning and picks them up in the afternoon, in the old station wagon that is running on borrowed time.

The family's possessions are even more scattered than the children. "When we finally do find a place, I'm not so sure I'll be able to remember where everything is," the father said

Most of the children's clothes are stored So are their toys.

The father thinks he and the government may have finally arrived at a way of securing the home loan. But final action could take another three to six months.

Meanwhile the family is willing to settle for just about anything with a roof so they can get back together. The father can pay up to $125 a month. Because he must be close to his job, lodging is limited to the Appleton area.

Anyone having information on such lodging is asked to contact the Appleton Apostolate.

Classes which got under way Thursday at Lawrence University prompted the usual flurry of buying and studying. # County Gets Extra 1,300 From Census

Outagamie County has grown by nearly 1,300 people over preliminary census figures, according to the verified census report received from the state today by County Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt.

According to the now official figures, Outagamie's population is 119,356. Preliminary figures had put the population at 118,069

Receipt of the official figures removes the last roadblock to reapportionment of the county board. DeLaHunt said he plans to push for quick action to get a reapportionment plan through the county board before the end of the year.

Legally, the county has one year from today to come up with a reapportionment plan.

DeLaHunt said, however, "I can't see any justification for procrastinating on this." He said he felt there were many districts which were now malapportioned.

A special committee has been appointed by DeLaHunt to come up with a reapportionment plan. That committee is headed by Supv. Charles Wussow, Appleton, and has Supvs. Marvin Babbitt, Seymour; Harold Miller, Town of Grand Chute; George Kroes, Town of Vanden Broek, and Gene Retzlaff, Hortonville, as members.

Meet Next Week

DeLaHunt had unsuccessfully attempted to reach Wussow this morning. He said, however, he expected the special committee would probably meet early next week.

Three members of the reapportionment committee, Wussow, Miller and Babbitt, also are members of the rules and legislative committee which has a meeting scheduled for Monday.

In addition to coming up with districts of equal population (within 6 per cent above or below the ideal, according to one state-issued guideline) the committee also will recommend changes, if any, in board size.

In an informal poll at the September county board meeting, supervisors indicated they wanted little, if any, reduction. A majority of the board said they wanted to keep the number of supervisors between 41 and 47.

Three informal public hearings have been held in the county by the special committee to get citizen reaction on reapportionment, but officials generally outnumbered private citizens at the hearings.

One of the proposals which will face the reapportionment committee is that supervisory districts in Appleton coincide with ward lines. Presently, there are 20 wards and 21 supervisory districts. A proposed new ward plan has 19 wards within the Outagamie County portion of Appleton.

Appleton Is Example

Nation Has Safe Water

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Some people may have the idea that much of the nation's drinking water supply is unsafe.

It's not so, according to Clifford W. Hamblin, president-elect of the American Water Works Association.

The water utility industry has been getting a bum publicity rap, and steps are about to be taken to improve its public image, he declared here Thursday.

Addressing the 50th annual meeting of the AWWA's Wisconsin Section, Hamblin told some 300 members about a public relations program starting next January to put the water picture in proper perspective

Why and how Appleton settled for second best and went to Lake Winnebago for a new water supply was explained by another speaker.

Failing Wells

Use of chemicals and explosive charges for effective restoration of failing wells also was discussed at the meeting.

Hamblin, a civil engineer, is general manager of the water department at St. Paul, Minn. He is a past president of both the Iowa and Minnesota Sections of the AWWA.

"Water has been getting a lot of publicity, but so much of it goes to our cohorts on the dirty water end," Hamblin remarked. "We would like to get some publicity, too."

He said talk and concern about dirty and polluted water have cast undeserved reflection on drinking water supplies. He conceded, though, the questions raised about drinking water have resulted in a beneficial shaking-up for the industry.

"Allegations about poor quality and poor supply in many cases are true, but implications that the water is unsafe are not true," Hamblin asserted.

"We must convince the public that there is no reason for alarm, but at the same time we must realize there are potential hazards in many cases which are cause for concern."

Bottled Water

Certain business enterprises are capitalizing on the allegations, according to Hamblin. He mentioned a big increase in bottled water sales, and flourishing activity in kitchen or faucet gadgets, with claims even made that they will remove chlorine from drinking water.

"We don't know yet just what the public relations program is going to cost us," Hamblin said, "but there is talk of spending up to $100,000 a year over a three-year period." He pointed out that dues will be raised, stepping up the present AWWA budget of approximately $600,000

Appleton's new water facility was described by Garv Stegemann, manager of the city's water plant He explained that concern about the polluted Fox River, historic source of drinking water, led to the retaining of two engineering firms several years ago to study the problem.

Fox River Unsuitable

"The Fox River didn't even come close as a suitable source," Stegemann commented

Four alternatives were considered

Wells were ruled out because of their probable limited capacity. The Wolf River was eliminated because of the likelihood of fertilizer wastes causing complications

Lake Michigan, to which Green Bay went some years ago when its wells were running out, was regarded as the best source from the quality standpoint. But the distance from Appleton raised objections. Proposals for a joint project involving neighboring communities got cold reception.

"Going it alone would have

Ferber School Defeat Adds To Central City Problems

The central city school committee continued to look for solutions Thursday afternoon to midcity school building problems, but with a significant change in the central city situation.

The committee — named several months ago to determine what if any improved facilities should be sought for the central city — now is looking at the area without the Edna Ferber Elementary School to take pressure off the northern fringe of the central city area. Ferber was defeated in this month's bonding referendum.

Committeemen still are awaiting most subcommittee reports, but Gordon Myse, an Appleton attorney, and the Rev. James Putman, pastor of St. Mary Catholic Church, informally discussed what they were doing.

They said they had toured four parochial schools in the central area and found them all structurally more sound than Columbus and Jackson, the oft-criticized public elementary schools in the central city area

Seek Questions

They emphasized that this wasn't a formal presentation of their report, which still isn't completed, but they sought to stimulate questions from other committee members.

The schools visited were St. Mary, St. Joseph, St. Pius and St Therese, all parochial elementary schools

There was a call for a speedup of the subcommittee reports Other special study areas are educational goals and philosophy, economic influences and other aspects and population chahge, City Planning Director Jack Hetu, committee chairman, said.

Hetu said he still needed more time to read data on population mobility, the possibility of future schools being built on the fringe of the school district and other problems.

The committee discussed long range and short range solutions.

Leasing Possibility

Myse envisioned a short-range solution of leasing a facility for three to five years He said that possibly at that time the decision could be made whether to seek a permanent different facility to handle youngsters in the central city area.

Kenneth Sager, board of education president, said that Myse was assuming the existing Columbus and Jackson buildings were in bad condition. He suggested that a short-term solution might be unnecessary

James Kissinger, Appleton, said that the school could go with the temporary solution and find in five years it didn't want to effect a permanent solution.

One solution might be a school-community complex, Myse said, with the facility versatile enough to serve certain community needs

Practical Report

Myse noted that his and Putman's report wouldn't carry any recommendations regarding closing Columbus and Jackson. He said he felt that was outside the committee's realm.

Myse said that he felt the

Menominee Mill Taken Off EPA List

CHICAGO — A regional official from the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency said today that Menominee Enterprises, Inc., Neopit, Wis., was included by error on a list of firms to be prosecuted by the Justice Department for failing to apply for permits to discharge waste into waterways.

The official said the Indian-owned and operated sawmill has not filed an application as required by recently enacted federal law. But he said discharges from the sawmill into a branch of the Wolf River have been greatly reduced by installation of new bark-removing equipment.

The EPA moved Thursday to prosecute 30 firms around the nation for missing a July 1 deadline for filing permit applications, required under recent legislation which was added to an 1899 federal refuse law. The list included one other Wisconsin firm, Armstrong Chemical Co., Janesville

Menominee Enterprises, according to the official, was included by his office on a list sent to the Washington EPA headquarters and named for possible prosecution. But the regional office subsequently inspected the Neopit plant's discharge pipe and found the magnitude of waste entering the river had dropped substantially since the new equipment was installed.

As a result, the regional office sent word to Washington advising against including the Enterprises among firms to be prosecuted. The word "apparently didn't catch up to the list" in time for Enterprises to be removed Thursday, said the regional spokesman.

Upon hearing that the sawmill was among the 30 firms referred Thursday to the Justice Department, Chicago Officials telephoned Washington and "asked that they (Enterprises) be deleted from the list, and I believe that they have been," said the spokesman.

The old bark-removing equipment used water pressure to strip logs. The new mechanical system, installed after the hydrolic equipment was destroyed in a July, 1970 fire, eliminated "a significant amount of waste," he said.

But inspection by an EPA field team this year found that a 36-inch discharge pipe to the river which formerly carried waste from the hydrolic equipment still discharges a 2-inch deep liquid described as hot water, approaching boiling temperature.

The spokesman stressed that the federal law requires any firm discharging waste into a waterway to apply for a permit, whether the substance discharged is harmful or not. The EPA then determines whether to allow the discharge.

Menominee Enterprises operates the sawmill and holds and manages tribal land and timber resources in Menominee County, formerly the Menominee Reservation.

Drug Alert Day Is Saturday in County

A dragon will be loose Saturday in Outagamie County.

Saturday is Drug Alert Day, and the dragon — actually a 20-foot float — will dramatize the volunteer collection of old and potentially dangerous drugs from family medicine chests

Students in a woodworking class at Seymour High School built the frame work of the float, which is being decorated by county 4-H junior leaders at a barn north of the city.

A Drug Alert Day message will be broadcast from the auto pulling the float on its tour of the county. The schedule of the tour is. Seymour at 10 a.m.; Black Creek at 10·20; Shiocton at 11: Stephensville, 11:25; Hortonville, 11·35;

Greenville at 12·15 p.m.; Kimberly at 1· Combined Locks, 1:35; Kaukauna at 1:55; Little Chute, 2:50 and Appleton at 3·40. The dragon is due at the Shopko Discount Department Store on State 47 between Appleton and Menasha between 5 and 5:15 p.m

There the Outagamie dragon will be joined by another float touring Winnebago County. Policemen from the two counties will deliver the drugs collected from drug stores, and the Appleton sanitation department will dispose of them.

Organizers of the first Drug Alert Day are the Drug Council Inc. of Outagamie County and the Winnebago County Mental Health Association.

Mrs. Grafton Ray, chairman of Drug Alert Day, said all but two drug stores in Outagamie County agreed to set up displays and collect medicines brought in by families

She said the method and whereabouts of the drug disposal are being kept confidential to prevent the drugs from getting into the hands of possible users

Thursday Morning Fire Was in Storage Garage

The early morning fire Thursday in which three Appleton firemen were injured was not in the Korth Upholstery Shop, 214 N Morrson St., as reported Thursday in The Post-Crescent, but in a storage garage behind the shop.

Damage to the garage was extensive and the fire did spread to a corner of the shop by a store room, where damage was minor.

The Korth Upholstery Shop is presently open for business and operating as usual, according to company officials

The fire was reported by Everett Sell, owner of the buildings, at 12:16 a.m. Firemen were at the scene for two hours and returned again at 3 a.m. for another 45 minutes.

Injured in the fire were Lt. Lloyd Eisner, who was overcome by smoke; Deputy Chief Harold Kramer, who stepped on a nail, and fireman Tom Corbett, who cut his hand

Oneida Bridge Opened a Little Late

A malfunctioning traffic gate delayed the announced opening of the Oneida Street drawbridge by five hours this morning, but by 10 a.m. traffic was once again using the structure that has been closed for repairs the past several weeks.

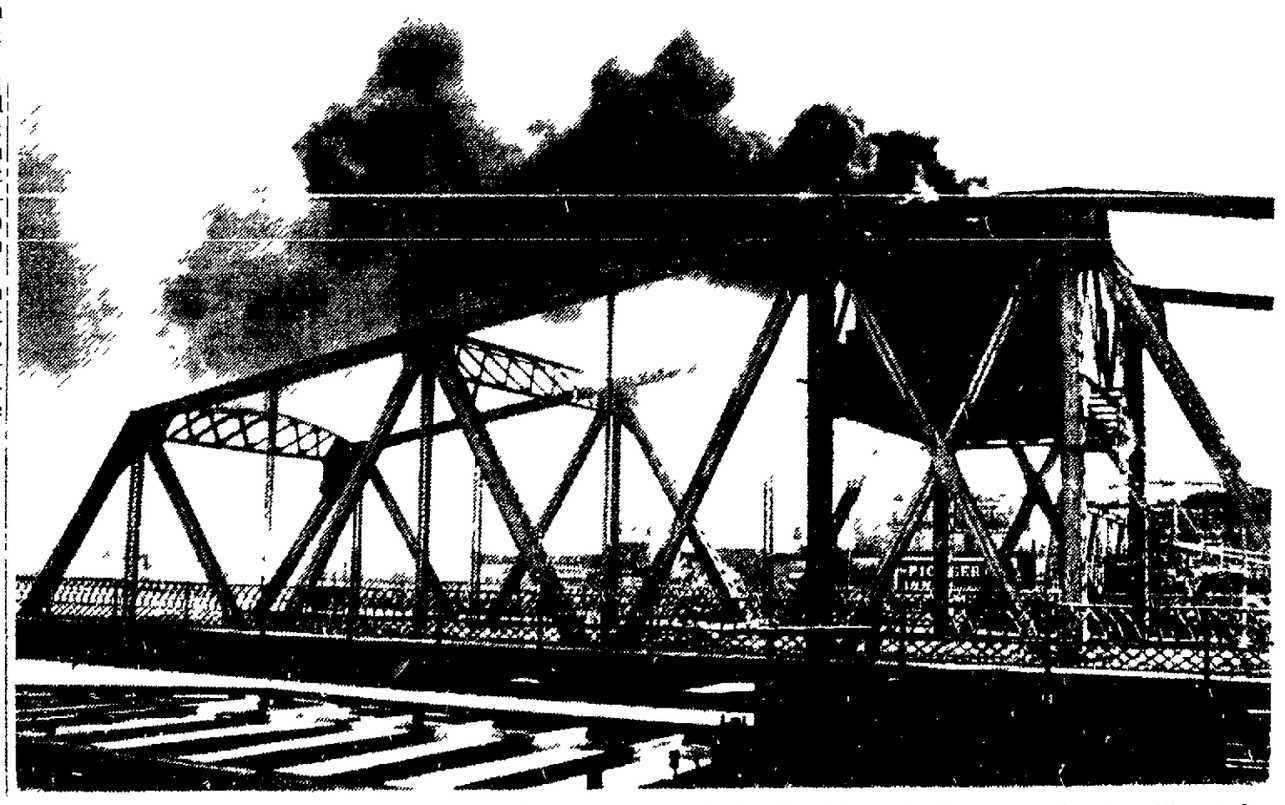

According to City Engineer Thomas Harp, one of the gates that drops to block street traffic when the bridge is raised for boats refused to function properly.

As a result, plans to remove barricades and allow traffic to use S. Oneida Street approaches to the bridge at 5 a.m. today had to be put off.

"It's been a little bug of one kind or another all week," observed Harp concerning efforts to reopen the span. Earlier, an electrical locking device that hold the bridge down had to be re-wired after short-circuits were discovered. That problem scrapped plans to open the bridge Tuesday.

Workmen have rebuilt an abutment that cracked due to slipping pavement on the hill at the north end of the bridge, and painters have been painting the steel portion of the span.

Some pairting is still to be done, the motorists are advised to use caution. One lane may be closed for short periods until the painters finish.

A Fire Thursday afternoon did extensive damage to the bridgetender's shack atop the Main Street bridge in Oshkosh. Firemen blamed sparks from a welder's torch for the blaze. A damage estimate will not be made, as the bridge—closed to traffic since Sept. 15—was being dismantled to make room for a new span.

Board, Negotiators Okay Contracts for Neenah Teachers

NEENAH — Tentative agreement has been reached on a 1972 contract for teachers, but the terms are not likely to be released until final approval, sometime next week

Negotiating teams for the Neenah Education Association (NEA) and the board of education reached a settlement Thursday night but the agreement hinges on what the teachers, as a group, do

The NEA team is expected to recommend to the teachers that they accept the terms They are expected to meet early in the week. The school board must also give its approval of the contract before anything is final

Joint Release

The announcement of the tentative agreement came this morning in a joint release from the negotiating teams Since the teachers have not seen the terms, however, nothing more was released

The teams have been meeting since May, and although the meetings are closed to the public, both have given out joint releases following the meetings to keep the public informed on what is going on

The board's team had asked the teachers to keep the salary schedule of the current calendar year The NEA's team has asked early that the base salary of $7,450 be increased to $7,889 If the salary schedule remained the same, it would still affect a 3 3 per cent built in increase.

Some of the requests by the teachers have been a two-year contract to take stress off the 1972 budget, increased pay for some co-curricular activities; a change in the chest x-ray requirement, and dues check off

Teachers have also brought up the idea of a sick leave bank which would provide extended sick leave for a lengthy illness Teachers would contribute part of their sick leave to the bank on an annual basis to provide extended coverage for the disabled member

As far as reduction of staff, the teachers felt that in the event of this, it should be accomplished following systematic guidelines using a seniority system The board's negotiators have felt, however, that this is a management right and should not be part of a master agreement

Dues Check-Off

The NEA has been strong in regard to dues check-off. It has felt that if the board can make voluntary deductions for Community Chest, it should also be able to accommodate the NEA by authorizing voluntary deductions for NEA dues

During the negotiations, there have also been discussions involving differentiated staffing, professional growth, planning time, teacher loads and staff provision

The school board is hard pressed for money this year, and the NEA's team has pointed out that it has taken the economic situation of the community into consideration in its proposals

The master agreement is for the calendar year

Freedom Starts Non-Graded Teaching

FREEDOM — An individualized non-graded communicative arts program, developed by teachers in cooperation with parents, began this fall at Freedom Elementary School

The program, which has been in the works for three years, is totally comprehensive because it involves preschool children through those age 13 It is built around a single curriculum area — communicative arts — and does away with such subdivisions as reading, language, spelling and penmanship

"It is our goal that every child be treated as an individual with defined needs And it is our goal that every child will be helped to develop to his fullest potential, placing success within reach," explained Duane Doersch, reading consultant.

The program is built around a three-unit system, with all children involved in one of the units Teachers are assigned to each unit in a non-graded situation, treating children of different ages at predetermined levels of development.

A guide has been developed for each teacher, which is skill oriented and is used to check the necessary skill weaknesses of each child.

Freedom YAK

The new phase of the program, according to Doersch, is known as "Freedom YAK," which stands for "you and kids," and involves parents of preschool children.

The parents of these preschoolers are organized into neighborhood units to discuss and share information with each other

Besides drawing on their own knowledge, an established guide is designed by a group of parents from the school district as well as other school personnel such as kindergarten teachers, speech therapists, psychologist, guidance counselors, school nurse, reading consultant, the principal and the superintendent.

"It is our belief that parents have many good ideas to share with each other so that their children will become better equipped for a more formal learning situation," Doersch commented.

He also added that this program does not suggest parents establish formal learning situations in their home, but rather valuable, informal everyday suggestions that could be practiced in the home.

Weston Sewage Plant Plan Offers Savings

NEENAH - MENASHA — A Department of Natural Resources recommendation that the new sewage treatment plant addition be designed to handle a 40 million gallon daily load still loomed today as the main barrier to a 30 MGD plan outlined in a final report of local industries' Roy F. Weston alternative released Wednesday.

Copies of the final report were sent by James Asmuth, chairman of the Industry Stream Improvement Committee which claims the membership of nine local industrial firms, to the sewerage commission, local city officials, the state DNR and Consoer, Townsend and Associates, the Chicago firm contracted to design and build the addition by the commission.

The report supercedes an interim report submitted on May 27 by Weston, of Wilmette, Ill , and claims a cost reduction of $9,350,000 if its sludge reaeration modification process is accepted and implemented. C&T's May estimate was $24,000,000 Weston's places total capitol costs for its alternative at $14,650,000.

The Weston process, which does not include primary treatment, also claims that a reduction in construction time, due to the reduction in required facilities, would be "significantly less" than the construction of a conventional activated sludge process by C&T

The sewerage commission voted June 14 to construct a 40 MGD plant, after that flow was recommended in a letter from Thomas Frangos, head of the DNR's environmental protection body.

The DNR controls federal and state grants.

At its last meeting, commissioners learned that DNR, which had virtually approved 25 per cent of the addition's funding, intended to give a priority to the Twin City project in letters to the Environmental Protection Agency's regional office in Chicago

If the C&T plan is approved by the federal agency, the expansion project would probably quality for an additional 55 per cent funding package from the federal government, to be allocated in increments.

State and federal grants, therefore, as had been indicated during a meeting of local officials with EPA authorities in Chicago in mid-July, would defray 80 per cent of the total $24 million expansion.

The 75-page Weston report claims four advantages not found in the process designed by C&T. Weston's system would, the report asserts:

—Eliminate the need for expensive and space consuming supplemental primary clarifiers with no detrimental effect to final effluent quality.

—Accomplish higher rates of removal of biological oxygen demand substances,

—Provide a system that is "more stable, less prone to upsets," and,

—Result in more manageable sludge that would reduce requirements for air flotation and vacuum filtration facilities.

Weston compares a 1972 capital cost of its 30 MGD system with the 40 MGD proposed by C&T. Weston claims a 1972 capital cost of $13.1 million utilizing the reaeration process on 30 MGD, compared to a cost of $14.65 million for the C&T 40 MGD plan. Operating costs of $1.61 million would be incurred for its 30 MGD unit, compared with an annual cost of $1.69 million for the 40 MGD.

Engineers Upset

"Our engineers are pretty upset about this," said Gilbert Krueger, commission president this morning of the Weston final report. Krueger charged that Weston was "actually calling the DNR a liar."

"I refuse to be excited," Krueger said of the Weston plan. He rapped what he termed was Weston's lack of proven experience in the field in joint municipal wastewater treatment. Such a lack would reduce the Twin Cities to "guinea pigs," he charged.

Commission Atty. William Giese and commissioner Karl Forsgren reacted to the timing of the Weston report, wondering if perhaps it hadn't been returned too late.

Sewer Check-Up Goes to Council

NEENAH — Although there's still a few technicalities to be ironed out, a clear water separation program will be brought in for city council endorsement on Oct 6 and the special committee is hoping to get it started before the end of the year

Meeting Thursday, the clear water committee put the finishing touches on the recommendation it plans to take into the council which includes conducting a pilot program on the homes of city officials and aldermen

Sewer Hook-ups

The long range intent of the committee is to devise a workable inspection program which will find and correct foundation drains which are hooked directly into the sanitary sewers

There's a two-fold purpose First to reduce shock loads and overloading at the sewage-treatment plants, and second, to alleviate basement flooding during heavy rainfalls by reducing the clear water infiltration

The timing on getting the project started, depends first on city council approval, and then hiring the inspectors to conduct the house-to-house survey to find the illegal hookups.

Two Inspectors

The committee decided that the inspectors, (there will be two of them hired under the Emergency Employment Act) will work under the direction of the public works department

However, the plumbing inspector will be called on to orient the inspectors on what to look for in finding the hookups.

According to J J Kraus, director of administration, the two inspectors will be put on the payroll as soon as the red tape involved with the EEA is worked out This should be October.

The procedure, which is being recommended by the committee, includes an initial check and if corrections are needed, an order will be issued giving the home owner from 90 to 150 days to have the necessary repairs made, depending on what has to be done.

According to Wayne Bryan, public works director, the only home owners who won't have to worry about corrections, are those who have properly functioning sump pumps and drain tile

He said that very few homes built before 1930 had drain tile, and without drain tile there's a good chance that rainwater is finding its way into the sewers

Menasha To Move Car Lot

MENASHA — Complaints from nearby residents have convinced Mayor James Adams that a fenced area for impounded cars should be at the city garage, not behind the police station

The area for impounded cars was requested by the department back in August. In the past, the department has left the impounded cars in the open parking lot behind the police station off Tayco Street

Police officials — to prevent instances of vandalism and theft of the impounded autos — wanted to put a fence around part of the lot

When area residents heard about it, they bristled. Despite the fact that the only difference between the proposal and what has been done in the past is that there will now be a fence.

"I can't blame them, really," Adams said of the people who complained They feared it would lower property values

After an original flap, the common council gave Adams authority to put the fence where he wanted it Police officials still wanted it behind the station, because that would save them the costly and inconvenient necessity of having to travel out to the city garage every time someone wanted his impounded car back

Adams gave the go ahead The department went to the lot Wednesday and started digging holes for the fence posts Residents came out to object, and the project was ended before it had begun

"Rather than create a lot of problems, we're just going to put it (the fenced area) near the garage" and "go with the inconveniences," Adams said

Police officials said the extra distance to the fenced area will create problems in handling the impounded autos.

Julie Steps Lightly After Cast Is Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House press aides report Julie Nixon Eisenhower is walking, though "gingerly," after having the cast removed from her left leg

The President's daughter broke her toe some five weeks ago in the Atlantic Beach, Fla , elementary school where she had reported for a teaching assignment.

Doctors at Bethesda Naval Hospital decided Thursday the toe was mended enough to take the cast off

Kaukauna Burning Ordinance Sent To Committee for Consideration

KAUKAUNA — The health and recreation committee has referred a burning ordinance to the legislative committee of the city council for study and recommendation.

The ordinance was drafted by City Atty. Donald Green after he and committee members studied burning ordinances adopted in several other communities. The council has been debating such a move for over two years, but never has been able to reach agreement on the wording of such an ordinance.

The proposed ordinance states, "Purpose of this subsection is to prohibit or strictly control the burning of materials because of the air and water pollution which results from such burning. It is felt that only by completely prohibiting the outside burning of rubbish, leaves and other combustibles, can this unnecessary pollution be abated."

The ordinance would prohibit open burning of any wood, grass, trash, rubbish or other materials except upon application for an issuance of a time specific permit by the Department of Public Health and the Fire Department. It would not apply to the burning of wood in interior fireplaces nor to the burning of charcoal of similar substances outdoors for non-commercial cooking when such burning is done without danger of spread of fire.

It would require a permit from the same agencies for use of outdoor portable incinerators, drums, barrels or other containers, or outdoor or inside fireplaces for the burning of leaves, trash, garbage or refuse.

Permitable burning would have to be done in a safe and nuisance free manner in accordance with fire department rules and regulations and at a time and location specified by that department.

Copies of all burning permits will be examined semi-annually by the chief of police, public works director, fire chief and public health director who will be responsible for establishing future permit issuing policies. It also would grant those departments issuing permits the right to cancel the permit.

The legislative committee is expected to move for adoption of the ordinance at the October council meeting, unless some changes or alterations are deemed necessary.

Hearing on Qualifications Of COG Set

A senate public hearing has been rescheduled for 2 p.m. Thursday in Madison on a bill which is the Fox Valley Council of Governments' best chance to regain federal aid being withheld because of a legal entanglement.

The bill, A734, would qualify COG as a recognized comprehensive planning agency, under the attorney general's interpretation of state law. The attorney general's office ruled recently that COG and similar agencies were not so qualified.

About $100,000 in 1971 and 1972 U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development 701 grant funds hangs on the ruling.

The bill wasn't initially considered controversial. It had an Assembly hearing and was passed 93-5. Then it was endorsed unanimously by a Senate committee, but was stalled when certain senators and others, including Gordon Bubolz, chairman of the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission, contended it was controversial.

An earlier Senate hearing date was cancelled.

committee recommendations, which probably will go to the fiscal board, the school board's financial arm, and the board of education, should be practical and hold implementation possibilities. But, he added, he didn't think the committee should go into details on cost aspects.

Hetu said he didn't know when the committee would come in with a report. Sager said, however, that he didn't expect the board of education to pursue any building programs until it received a report from the committee.

The committee was set up after a controversy about the old Jackson and Columbus School buildings flared up earlier this year. The two are among the oldest in the school system and have been questioned as to whether they allow for the same quality of education that newer school buildings allow for.

Nixon Rapped For Dealings On Capitol Hill

Sen. Byrd Tells Oshkosh Audience Of Court Situation

OSHKOSH, Wis. (AP)—President Richard Nixon's dealings with Congress "for the most part have been amateurish," Senate Majority Whip Robert T. Byrd, D-W. Va., said Thursday night.

The President has been "remarkably unsuccessful in getting his own party vote," Byrd told an Oshkosh State University audience. "President Nixon has good personal relations, but poor communications with Congress."

Byrd.who has been in Congress 19 years as both a representative and senator, speculated Nixon might nominate a woman to an upcoming vacancy on the U.S. Supreme Court. Such nominations must be approved by the Senate.

"The President is a political animal, and an astute one. He might well nominate a woman," Byrd said.

But, Byrd noted that the President has said he would appoint a southerner and would continue to appoint conservatives to the high court. He has two appointments facing him how, to replace recently resigned Justices Hugo Black and John Harlan.

Byrd said he knew of no nationally known woman attorney or judge who would meet those criteria.

"President Nixon would like to be the first president who nominated a woman to the Supreme Court," said Byrd, ading that there may be another vacancy coming up and Nixon might well nominate a woman for that spot.

Justice Thurgood Marshall has been ill and Justice William Douglas hasn't been feeling well, creating the possibility of another vacancy, Byrd said.

Football Field Problems Arise From Over Use

KAUKAUNA — Open use of the football field at the Doty Bayorgeon Recreation area has resulted in some maintenance problems for members of the park department.

The health and recreation committee is conducting a study of other areas suitable for football. Park Supt. Victor Luedtke has been instructed to contact Kaukauna High School Athletic Director Guy Krumm to determine whether some other area owned by the school system could be utilized for football play.

Presently the high school teams together with some grade schools use the field in the recreation area. The extensive use makes it difficult for crews to properly repair and maintain areas for varsity high school games.

Former Appleton Doctor Killed in Auto Accident

Dr. Ernest N. Krueger, 71, former Appleton physician, was killed last week in an auto accident near Crater Lake, Ore., on a return trip from Alaska.

Dr. Krueger practiced medicine in Appleton for 2 years before retiring to California in 1963. He was a graduate of the University of Minnesota medical school.

He is survived by his widow in San Marcos, Calif., five sisters and one brother.

Young Heart Patient Dies While Hunting

Gordon Schroeder Jr., 21, an Appleton resident who was the youngest patient to undergo two triple-bypass heart operations, was found dead Thursday evening in Menominee County.

An autopsy was to be performed this afternoon to discover the cause of death, according to Menominee County police. Schroeder had reportedly gone hunting alone Thursday afternoon.

Schroeder became well known in the area because of his multiple operations over the last three years.

He was afflicted with a hereditary disease called familia hyperchloesterenia which involved a high cholesterol level in the blood.

The cholesterol had caused his heart arteries to age at an abnormally fast rate. The condition seemed to be checked before his death.

Schroeder was attending the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. He formerly went to the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, Fox Valley Campus.

He is survived by his mother, a sister, a brother and his grandmother.

Friends may call at the Wichmann Funeral Home from 4 until 9 p.m. Sunday and after 9 a.m. Monday until the services 9 a.m. Monday until the services, which will be held at the funeral home at 11 a.m. Monday.

Brewster St., Appleton is being held in St. Elizabeth Hospital for observation after she sustained cuts and bruises when her car and the dump truck in the background collided at the intersection of Mason and Winnebago streets at 7:45 a.m. today. Police report that Stephen P. Hietpas, 20, 1225 Hoover St., Little Chute, driver of the truck, was traveling east on Winnebago Street when the accident occurred. He sustained a bump to the head and was also taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Jail Equipment Funds Okayed

Criminal Justice Committee Cuts Outagamie Requests

An Outagamie County request for $34,882 in federal funds to help finance electronic equipment for the new jail was approved by a 10-county committee but only after more than $8,000 of the requested funds were deleted.

The total program, including the 25 per cent local share, is $46,510. The 10-county East Central Region criminal justice committee eliminated $13,000 of that total, which was for a burglar alarm system connecting private businesses with the sheriff's office.

Those systems are the responsibility of private agencies, the committee decided.

Approved was equipment for a central monitoring system, an intercommunications sound system, panic alarm system, two-way radio system, an interrogation monitoring system and tape recorders, plus television sets to monitor Huber law prisoners.

The jail, costing about $2 million equipped, is slated to be ready in about a year.

The funding request for the equipment still must be approved by the Wisconsin Council On Criminal Justice but it is likely to approve it since the funds are available.

The committee also approved three hand-held radios for the Calumet County Sheriff's Department.

Appleton Man Takes Own Life

John Charles Grogan, 26, 1913 W. Franklin St., Appleton, died at his brother's apartment at 620 S. Story St. Thursday.

Grogan's body was discovered by his brother, Tim when he returned from school about 3 p.m.

Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps ruled that Grogan's death was a suicide.

Kemps listed the cause of death as a massive cerebral hemorrhage and brain lacerations

Kimberly Library Use Rises Substantially

KIMBERLY — The Public Library completing its first full year in the new municipal complex has drawn more people particularly adults, than last year.

Adults withdrew 10,487 books, 3,179 non-fiction and 7,308 fiction, compared to 1,779 non-fiction and 4,819 fiction the previous year when the total was 6,598, according to figures supplied by Joan Fleming Librarian.

Juvenile usage also increased, but not as dramatically as adult. Juveniles during the past year withdrew 33,716 books including 25,320 fiction. The previous year they withdrew 31,987, of which 25,987 were fiction. Total books, magazines, pamphlets and other material for the last year was 47,334 compared to 40,174 the previous year.

During the 1970-71 year, 705 books were added to the shelves compared to 509 the previous year. Use by residents outside the village increased slightly during the past year from 8,627 to 8,887, a drop from 21.47 per cent to 18.78 per cent of total usage.

The Kimberly library has a policy whereby anyone in Outagamie County may be issued a withdrawal card without fee, but residents outside the county must pay a fee of $1 per month or $10 per year per family. Those from outside the county who use facilities at the library without checking out materials are not charged.

Nation Has Safe Water Supply for Drinking

cost the city $15 million, and Appleton didn't even come close with its bonding capacity," Stegemann said.

That left Lake Winnebago, with algae, warm temperature and inadequately treated sewage affluents, but regarded as better than the Fox River and only three miles away.

Safe Supply

The intake and pumping station cost $2.1 million, and the outlay for water treatment plant was $1.8 million. A good deal of equipment was installed to assure the city a safe water supply.

Stegemann was asked why they had to hire two consulting firms to make detailed reports.

"Appleton has a water commission, and it also has a City Council," he replied

Maintenance and restoration of wells was discussed by Lavern Nelson, of the Madison water utility, and Roy Wobril, of the Layne-Northwest Co

"Wells require regular repair and maintenance just as equipment does," Wobril emphasized "Through proper treatment, wells in service for many years often can be restored to their original full capacity."

Chemical Reaction

Wells in limestone decline in capacity when channels become plugged as the result of chemical reaction. Acids and other chemicals can be introduced to get the channels open again.

"The use of accurately placed explosives is the procedure that works best with wells in sandstone," Wobril said. "Many sandstone wells have been rehabilitated by such treatment "

Chemical treatment also is employed for wells drilled in unconsolidated sands and gravels. This is an exptremely tricky business, however, Wobril warned.

In all cases, he said, well restoration may be done only with state Department of Natural Resources approval and in accordance with specific requirements.

Nelson told of a well in Madison which was pumping up large quantities of sand for several years There was thought of abandoning it, and finally the pump failed.

"We put in a new pump, reduced capacity by 400 gallons per minute, and it's been operating satisfactorily without a bit of sand since 1967," the utility official said.

Softening Process

John Staus, an engineer with Donohue and Associates, Sheboygan, described a new type of water softening process installed in Platteville. Replacing an old conventional fixed bed softener, it employs continuous action exchange to give the city a blended product of approximately 60 parts per million hardness, down from the 325 ppm as it comes from the sandstone aquifer.

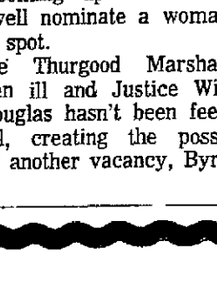

Phillip J Utic, general manager of the Green Bay Water Department, was elected chairman Thursday of the Wisconsin Section of the American Water Works Association.

Others named at the business session during the 50th annual meeting here are Nathan E. Miller, Milwaukee, vice chairman, and John Skorupski, South Milwaukee, senior trustee.

Empty Tissue Boxes Creates Target Game

BY CAPPY DICK

Four empty facial tissue boxes and a supply of clothespins are the equipment needed for today's homemade target game.

Toss Clothespins

Stack the four boxes together as in figure one and tie them with cord or fasten them with tape Print a point value on each box, also as in figure one. Make the top box worth 20 points. The box beneath it is worth 15, the next lower box is worth 10 and the bottom is worth five.

The object of the game is for the players to stand 10 feet away from the stack and toss clothespins to land in the openings.

Each player is allowed to toss 10 clothespins, one after the other. Keep track of the total number of points he earns with his tosses.

It is then the next player's turn. After he has tossed the 10 clothespins, his score is added and a note is made of the total.

The game continues in this way until all the players have had a chance

Peterson Lists His Proposals For Convention

Winnebago Group Told Democrats Need More Delegates

OSHKOSH — The question of the number of delegates to the Democratic National Convention next summer is "still up in the air," National Democratic Committeeman Donald O. Peterson of Eau Claire told Winnebago County Democrats Wednesday night in Oshkosh.

Speaking at the organization's monthly meeting at the Gray Fox Restaurant, the Democratic official said the size of the convention should, however, be decided by the end of this year.

Peterson said he has recommended a convention of 3,000 delegates to a party commission which is studying proposals for convention reforms.

He said Democrats cannot have a small convention, limited, say, to the number of members of the House of Representatives, if it is to represent all levels of the party.

Other changes proposed for the 1972 convention next summer at Miami, Fla., and expected to be acted upon by the national committee, include:

— Elimination of the traditional alphabetical roll call of states.

— Selection of the chairman and the vice chairman from opposite sexes.

— Elimination of speeches and demonstrations for "favorite son" presidential candidates.

Peterson said that 20 states had no rules governing selection of delegates to the 1968 national convention; charging that delegates, by and large, represented not constituencies but themselves.

He added that only 13 per cent of the delegates were women, and that blacks and young people under 30 were represented even less.

In passing, Peterson scored the selection of Miami as the site of next year's Democratic convention, declaring that the national committee was not given an opportunity to vote on the matter.

He said he would have preferred that the convention be held in Louisville, Ky.

"We have a new voter in 1972," the national committeeman told county Democrats in another part of his talk.

He said that the 250,000 Wisconsin people between the ages of 18 and 21 who will be able to vote in a national election for the first time next year present the Democratic party with "a tremendous opportunity."

Peterson told Democrats that it doesn't matter whom they support for president in 1972 so long as he is a Democrat and they get out and support him.

GRAN TORINO two door has a unique front end treatment which differentiates it from the grille of the Torino. With a double "egg-crate" texture, the top half of the grille is framed by bright molding. The framing is completed at the bottom by the bright bumper cutout to the grille contour. 1972 TORINO is now on display at Van Steen Ford, 3030 W. College avenue. (Adv.)

1972 Torino Sports Sweeping Changes, New Model Names

Torino for 1972 sports its biggest change since it started the intermediate market as the Fairlane a decade ago. A new body design provides a sleek contemporary appearance combined with a new body-on-frame construction to give Torino a new dimension of quiet and rid qualitites.

Torino is so new even the name was changed. For 1972, there are nine Torino models replacing the 14 available in 1971. The three series in the intermediate line are Torino, Gran Torino and Gran Torino Sport, plus three station wagons.

"The 1972 Gran Torino will be the most exciting new car on the road this year," said S. H. Van Steen of Van Steen Ford, 3030 W. College Avenue. "In a year when there will be fewer design changes, Torino offers a new look and a remarkably improved big car ride which we have never before offered in an intermediate size car."

Exterior Design

Even though the sheet metal and chassis are all-new, the long-hood, short-deck styling distinctive of Ford Division car lines is retained. The front end of the Gran Torino, Gran Torino Sport and Gran Torino Squire is dominated by the recessed oval-shaped grille which has a double "egg-crate" texture. The base Torino front features a full width argent painted grille.

All models have a one-piece rear bumper with horizontal taillamps. The bumper is integrated into the design and notched at the lower center for the license plate which is mounted in the lower valance panel.

Ventless and frameless door glass is incorporated on all models. Recessed door handles and windshield pillars angled at 60 degrees enhanced the smooth lines of the car. All roofs have a thinner, more modern appearance.

Interior Design

New, sculptured high-back front bench seats are standard on all Torinos and high-back bucket seats are available on all Gran Torino, and Gran Torino Sport two-door hardtops. A new Flight Bench seat is part of the Brougham interior on Gran Torinos.

Seat trims are available in all-vinyl, cloth and vinyl, and pleated ComfortWeave vinyl. There are five different matching door panels. The Gran Torino Squire interior trim features horizontal-pleated seat upholstery designed to simulate bucket seats.

The 1972 Torino offers a new concept in instrument panel construction by combining the best qualities of steel and plastic. A two-tiered instrument and contol cluster faces the driver. All instruments are in pods in the top tier, providing maximum viewing convenience. (Adv.)

Neenah Girl, Lloyd Bridges In CBS Movie

BY TV SCOUT

8:30 - 10 Channels 2-7 — "A Tattered Web" on The New CBS Friday Night Movies is the second film from Metromedia Producers Corp., which turned out to be last year's hit, "Maybe I'll Come Home in the Spring." Like that film, this was done entirely on location, including a home which belongs to an assistant director. It has a superb performance from Lloyd Bridges as a hard-nosed police detective and a pair of fine acting jobs from Neenah's Sallie Shockley (a regular on Sarge) as his eloved and sheltered daughter and Frank Converse as his son-in-law, a decent chap whose deviation from his marriage vows traps them all in the "web." Anne Helm is also impressive in a small role of the girl Converse is seeing and whose murder triggers the action. Broderick Crawford plays a drunk.

7:30-9:30 Channel 5 — World Premier Movie has "Lock, Stock and Barrel," an engaging love story of two young marrieds trying to make their way to a homestead in a lush Colorado valley. Along the way, this pair, winningly played by Tim Matheson and Belinda Montgomery, face many obstacles: her angry father (Jack Albertson) and dumb brother (John Beck); some ragtag soldiers, led by Neville Brand, a temptress (Felicia Farr, who is Mrs. Jack Lemmon) and, ultimately, a startling disclosure about the minister (Burgess Meredith) who married them. Claude Akins, always a reliable actor, nearly steals the movie with his performance as a self-proclaimed friend and protector to the young couple.

7-7:30 Channel 5 — The D.A. is concerned with an ecological case. The series also introduces regular Julie Cobb, first met at a party in Stafford's (Harry Morgan) back yard. Anyway, D.A. Bob Conrad handles a case against a shipping company accused of dumping oil off the coast, but his evidence is insufficient for conviction.

7:30-8 Channels 11-9 — Bob Claver, executive producer of The Patridge Family, thinks TV should do more ethnic humor. Tonight's episode is the answer. A Jewish mother, beautifully played by Kay Medford, descends on the family for a week as a result of a contest she has won. She takes over and is helpful enough, but when she wants to go to a local lover's lane with Keith (David Cassidy) and she tries to fix Shirley Jones up with a nice Jewish doctor — well that's enough for Patridges' Complaint.

7:30-8:30 Channels 2-7 — David Janssen, as O'Hara, United States Treasury, is working in ATF (Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms), with the accent on Firearms. After a tip by a man who works part time on an army base, O'Hara gets on to the trail of stolen rifles which are being sold for no good use.

8-8:30 Channels 11-9 — Pete (Lloyd Haines) has a major triumph in his class when he gets a new pupil, a severe stutterer, to speak in Room 222. The boy can even put up with a bit of tittering from his classmates. But a videotape machine and some film of the boy's inability to talk, sets him on a plan of revenge which makes Pete furious and the boy made enough to — but you figure it out.

8:30-9 Channels 11-9 — The green-eyed monster is good for several laughs on The Odd Couple. With Nancy's (Joan Hotchkis) brother (Fred Beir) visiting, and Felix (Tony Randall) on a week-long assignment in Canada, Oscar (Jack Klugman) feel it's safe to set brother up with Felix's ex (Janis Hansen).

9-10 Channels 11-9 — There are five segments on Love, American Style, none great but all containing some laughs and not too much of a point. The first has Tony Roberts as a young lieutenant given a luxurious hotel suite for a weekend. In other segments, Kay Medford and Lou Jacobi are a couple about to celebrate a wedding anniversary with an announcement of a divorce to the family, and anyone who can't figure out the twist soon after this starts, has never watched TV. Stiller and Meara play a prisoner and his wife making a conjugal visit to his cell. James Darren, Jack Mullaney and Maud Adams are dressed as monsters for movie roles, with Darren out to date the girl. Kay Ballard is married to Stubby Kaye, who only wants to sleep.

Freedom School Group To Attend Open House

FREEDOM — The Parent-Teacher Organization will attend an open house at 7:45 p.m. Monday at the elementary and junior high school.

An open discussion will be conducted after the tour. Coffee will be served.

The Musical Comedy "Promises, Promises" stars Will Mackenzie, left, and Mace Barrett in the two male leads and Sydnee Balaber, the new David Merrick discovery. The production, in the Blue Series sponsored by Oshkosh Town and Gown, will be at 8:30 p.m. Saturday in Oshkosh High School Civic Auditorium.

'Promises' Another Hit For Talented Foursome

Bright Musical Comedy to Open Season Saturday for Oshkosh Town and Gown

OSHKOSH — The combined talents of four persons led to the successful staging of "Promises, Promises" which will be presented at 8:30 p.m. Saturday as the opening selection in the Blue Series of Town and Gown. The musical comedy hit will be presented at the Civic Auditorium.

Those four persons are Neil Simon, who wrote the play based upon the movie "The Apartment," Burt Bacharach, who wrote the music, Hal David, who wrote the lyrics and David Merrick, whose production of the play added one more hit to his long line of Broadway successes.

Cast in the starring roles are Will Mackenzie and Sydnee Balaber, aided in major roles by Alan North, Mace Barrett and Channing Chase.

The play is about a young bumbler who finds that his bachelor apartment is desired by his married, suburban-dwelling employer who seeks an in-town place where he can take a girl friend. He is promised promotions in return for the loan of his apartment.

Soon, other executives are lining up to reserve the apartment on other evenings. The ambitious hero is comically caught up in a web of guilt feelings over this shabby deal, discomfort over having to sit on cold park benches waiting for his philandering business associate to vacate his premises and anguish over discovering that the girl he secretly adores is one of the anonymous girls visiting his apartment when he's not there.

Mackenzie spent two years on Broadway in "Hello, Dolly," appearing with Carol Channing, Ginger Rogers, Martha Raye and Betty Grable when each had the starring role. He also appeared with Tommy Steele in "Half a Sixpence."

Actor Background

He toured widely with Tom Ewell and Rosemary Prinz in "The Apple Tree," with Arthur Godfrey in "Our Town," with Art Carney in "Time Out for Ginger," with Julius LaRosa in "Come Blow Your Horn" and with Tom Poston in "The Fantasticks."

He has appeared on TV in such shows as "Mod Squad," "That Girl," "The Governor and J.J.," "The Debbie Reynolds Show" and "The Ed Sullivan Show."

Miss Balabar has appeared on Broadway in such shows as "High Spirits," musical version of Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit" and in Richard Rodgers' "Do I Hear a Waltz?"

She was spotted by Rodgers while singing in a night club act. Her singing engagements include such New York places as Upstairs at the Downstairs and the Playboy Club, in Chicago at Mr. Kelly's and at various resort hotels.

Alan North has appeared opposite Ann Sothern in "Gypsy," Jayne Mansfield in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," Betsy Palmer in "South Pacific" and Sherry Britton in "The Best of Burlesque." He has appeared in many of Neil Simon's plays and on more than 150 live and filmed TV shows.

Mace Barrett has been a "stand-by" for Jack Cassidy and Steve Lawrence as well as appearing in stock companies and musicals both on tour and on Broadway. Miss Chase has combined appearances in TV soap commercials with various acting roles on Broadway and in touring companies.

Jessel Requests Lower Payments

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer George Jessel has asked Superior Court for permission to reduce support payments for his 9-year-old daughter.

Jessel, 73, acknowledged paternity in a settlement made shortly after the girl's birth and agreed to $500 monthly payments to the mother, Joan Tyler, 37.

But his attorney said Wednesday that Jessel no longer works steadily, has had financial setbacks and wants the payments cut to $150 a month. Miss Tyler said Jessel has a sizable income.

A court commissioner said he would rule at a later date.

World Finance Talks Unlikely To Get Results

By STERLING F. GREEN
AP Financial Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be much talk, mainly critical of the United States, but little visible action when the finance ministers and central bankers of 118 nations meet in Washington next week

The American delegates know what they want It is a $13 billion reversal of its balance of payments position to be brought about by a general upward revaluation possibly averaging around 15 per cent in the currencies of the world's other great trading nations.

But officials indicate they will be surprised if the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund, scheduled here from Monday through Friday, produces a neatly wrapped-up bundle of new exchange parities.

Small Groups

Progress may be made, they agree, but it is likelier to come in behind-scenes huddles of small groups, or quietly arranged bilateral talks between the U S and other delegations than in the splendid ceremonial, sessions at the Sheraton Park hotel

But the gathering of money men provides an opportunity for head-to-head parleys which, American officials suggest, might produce some guidelines for an across-the-board overhaul of exchange rates before the year-end.

Looking still farther ahead, both the ceremonial speechmaking and the backstage bargaining may produce a greater result—a stronger international consensus on the ultimate goal of cutting the world's moneys from their ancient link to gold

Driving Rights

The substitute for gold, many American and foreign monetary specialists believe, may be found in IMF's own 1969 invention, the "special drawing rights," or SDRs.

SDRs are the so-called paper gold, a medium of exchange introduced in 1969 to enlarge the world's supply of funds for payments between governments in settlement of trade balances and other international shifts of capital.

The use of SDRs, it is argued, could eliminate both gold and dollars as the standards for world currency values. Dollars would be worth so many SDRs instead of so much gold; the yen and the pound would be worth so many SDRs instead of so many dollars.

But this is a longer-term target of the monetary reformers. The immediate aim is to restore a workable table of currency values to replace the exchange rates which were scrapped on Aug 15, when President Nixon announced his New Economic Policy.

The IMF is the central authority of the free world's monetary system Therefore it stands in the eye of the financial hurricane loosed by the American president.

But it is pure coincidence that the IMF's board of governors—one governor for each member country—will be meeting at this crucial moment. The fund's governors always meet in September, and always meet simultaneously with those of the World Bank.

The two lending institutions were conceived jointly at the Bretton Woods, N.H., conference in 1944 as the twin mechanisms of a new and better postwar economic order.

The bank—officially titled the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development—was created to supply long-term loans, first for the rebuilding of war-smashed Europe and Japan, later for the economic building of underdeveloped nations

The IMF was to furnish short-term loans of currencies to governments which, because of temporary balance-of-payments problems, ran short of the currencies they needed to settle their international accounts

By its timely giving of loans and guidance, the Bretton Woods founders believed, the IMF could help countries avoid devaluations, currency speculation, impairment of world trade, and the development of the kind of rival trading "blocs" that existed before World War II

Despite IMF there have been many devaluations; the U S. is one of very few governments which have not resorted to this device when exports lagged and payments problems rose. And each foreign devaluation left the U.S. dollar relatively more over-valued.

Withdraw Offer

When Nixon dropped his bombshell six weeks ago, he simply withdrew this country's long-standing offer to pay out gold for dollars, at the rate of $35 an ounce, to any government which presented dollars for exchange.

Unhitched from gold, the dollar's value "floated" The values of the currencies of all the other non-Communist countries came unglued simultaneously, because their values were fixed in terms of dollars.

Nixon wanted Germany, Japan and other countries with strong currencies to revalue their currencies upward; thus, indirectly, the dollar would be devalued. Foreign goods would cost more in American money and U S. goods would be cheaper in foreign markets. Ultimately the effect would be more U.S exports and fewer imports; the huge and persistent deficit in the U.S. balance of payments would be corrected.

The overseas reaction was shock, resentment and resistance The U S move would make French, German, Japanese and other foreign exports less competitive in America and abroad. The money shift would be felt abroad in fewer jobs, less income

During the past six tense weeks of huddles in Brussels, Tokyo, London, Washington and elsewhere, the top financial officers of the six European Common Market countries, Japan and other powers have sought a solution.

The Common Market failed to find an agreed position even among its own members. Japan made a valiant, costly try to preserve the yen's old relationship to the dollar; finally it "floated" the yen—a sign that it eventually would permit some revaluation

But apparently the only general agreement they will bring to the IMF meeting is that the United States should come partway, by devaluing the dollar directly—that is, by increasing the price of gold. The U S thus would share in the political unpopularity of the revaluation

Spray of Bullets Halts Attempted Berlin Escape

BERLIN (AP) — East German border guards foiled three escape attempts with a hail of automatic weapons fire today

Many bullets slammed into heavily populated West Berlin houses One bullet smashed the window of a bedroom in which a 3-year-old child was asleep

It was not known if three persons involved in two escape attempts over the Berlin wall were injured although one man was seen being dragged away.

In a third incident near Helmstedt, East German guards opened fire capturing one of two men trying to cross a mine field to the West. The other man was last seen running back into East Germany.

The American Berlin commandant, Maj. Gen. William W. Cobb, sharply protested the two incidents in wall area districts in the American sector of Berlin

Cobb said that many families with children lived in houses struck by East German bullets.

"It is deplorable enough that shots are fired at those whose only crime is a desire for freedom, but such reckless use of automatic weapons in a densely populated area, endangering the lives of innocent people, is most contemptible," Cobb declared

The East Germans, apparently on special alert since the signing of the four power Berlin agreement on Sept. 3, have been doing a lot of wall shootings since then The agreement is supposed to ease tensions in and around Berlin.

In the past the Communists have ignored Western protests against shootings

In Munich, the Bavarian state Interior Ministry reported two Czechoslovaks seeking asylum in West Germany were turned over to Czchoslovak officials

A spokesman said the two men, a 24-year-old truck driver and his 19-year-old brother, were unable to provide sufficient evidence that they fled Czchoslovakia on political grounds.

The pair arrived near the Bavarian border town of Regen late Wednesday night. Bavarian border guards turned them back after thorough questioning, the spokesman said.

Teacher Wage To be Tested In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The federal government has chosen teachers in Jefferson Parish (county) as the target for the first court test of President Nixon's wage-price freeze.

The Justice Department filed a complaint in U.S. District Court here Thursday seeking an injunction against scheduled pay hikes for 2,800 public school teachers in the parish, a suburban area adjacent to New Orleans.

The first pay checks under the new salary scale are scheduled to be given out today, but the government asked that cuts in next month's checks be made as compensation for the alleged overpayments.

Judge Blake West scheduled an Oct. 7 hearing on whether to grant a preliminary injunction and order the cut in October checks

"Teachers employed by the Jefferson Parish school system have not earned any wages under the 1971-72 teacher salary schedule for any period prior to Aug 15, 1971 Payment of said increases will violate Executive Order 11615," the government complaint said

State Busing Ruling Will Be Appealed

RACINE, Wis (AP) — A decision by the Wisconsin Supreme Court upholding a section of Wisconsin's school busing law concerning private school children will be appealed to the U S. Supreme Court.

Garth Seehawer, an attorney for 11 Roman Catholic and three Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod schools in Racine, said the section of the law requiring attendance areas of the schools of the same religious denomination not to overlap if public busing is to be provided is unconstitutional

This section violates the 1st and 4th Amendments to the Constitution, he said.

80,000 New Federal Jobs Anticipated

HEW Force Will Double to Operate Welfare Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the heels of record relief spending last year, the government is planning to hire an unprecedented 80,000 new federal officials if President Nixon's proposed welfare reform is enacted.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced Thursday that national welfare costs rose 27 per cent to $16.3 billion in fiscal 1971 and disclosed that HEW's 107,000-man force must almost be doubled to run the planned Family Assistance Welfare system.

Although welfare spending by all levels of government rose $3.4 billion in the year ending June 30, the number of relief recipients decreased during the last quarter of the year for the first time since 1968.

11 States

With 11 states cutting back welfare eligibility and payments, the number of persons receiving public assistance in June dropped to 14.3 million, 22,000 fewer than May.

"There is an obvious tightening up in the states," said John D. Twiname, head of HEW's social and rehabilitation service Another HEW official, Richard P. Nathan, deputy undersecretary for welfare, said a large cadre of new federal relief officials would be needed to man the planned 4,000 offices nationwide of the Family Assistance Program

The proposal for federalization of welfare, which would replace 200 separate state and local relief systems, has passed the House but is stalled in the Senate Finance Committee. Under it, a family of four would receive a minimum of $2,400 a year from the government with benefits flowing for the first time to the so-called working poor.

Nathan said at least 18 months would be required after congressional passage of the plan for the computer-based federal system to become operational For one thing, he said, possibly 25 million persons would have to be interviewed to determine their eligibility for benefits, including reinvestigations of the 14.3 million now receiving relief.

Officials Dine On Food for Poor

By JOHN B. LENGELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional and administration samplers of a poor-man's buffet describe the government food handouts as good and tasty.

The buffet was thrown by Sen. Charles Percy, R - Ill., Thursday as part of the first look in decades at the federal commodity food program.

"We are trying to focus not on the farmer whose surplus is bought, but on the poor people, who have to eat it," said Percy, a member of the Senate Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs.

The buffet looked like the food in steam trays in an Army mess hall. There was rice, chicken, pork, scrambled powdered eggs, powdered milk, and processed cheese.

"I find it very tasty," said Richard Lyng, the assistant secretary of Agriculture in charge of the program.

Lyng said that he had sampled the food two or three times before "I'm not sure how the milk was put together. But, yes, it's very tasty," he said.

"For the most part, the meal is quite good," said Percy.

According to an Agriculture Department study, however, the typical handout diet provides only 54 per cent of the needed daily calories and only a fraction of the nutrients considered necessary to good health

No legislation has yet been proposed, although Percy and committee staff members have suggested that the program's food could be bought with nutritional needs in mind instead of merely absorbing surpluses

Eligibility will get some attention from the committee, too. As it is, each of the thousand counties participating in the program sets its own standards. Some counties will not provide the food to families on welfare; others will not provide it to families that aren't.

Badgers Eye Upset

Tough LSU Defense to Invade Camp Randall

MADISON, Wis., (AP) — To Charles McLendon, highly successful football coach at Louisiana State, the game begins with defense.

And if the Tigers pick up their trend of last season—and so far they have—Wisconsin may be in for a long afternoon Saturday.

Eighteenth-ranked LSU and surprising Wisconsin will meet for the first time at Camp Randall, and a capacity crowd of 77,280—the first since the facility was enlarged in 1966—is expected.

Football fever is running high here after the Badgers' impressive start—a 31-0 victory over Northern Illinois and 20-20 tie last week with Syracuse, considered the class of the East. But LSU is expected to be their toughest test so far, especially on defense.

Led Nation

McLendon has a nine-year record of 70-24-4 for a winning percentage of .735 and his Tigers have won five of seven bowl games in that span. His teams led the nation in rushing defense the last two seasons.

The Tigers opened last season by losing to Texas A & M, 20-18, but in their next eight games allowed a total of only 42 points. This year the Tigers were pasted by Colorado in their opener, 31-21, but showed their old form last week by defeating Texas A & M, 37-0.

Coach John Jardine said early in the week he didn't expect the Badgers' Neil Graff, the Big Ten's top passer last year, would have much luck with long passes against LSU.

However, that was before it was learned brilliant cornerback Tommy Casanova would be a doubtful starter because of a pulled muscle. Casanova's picture was on the cover of a national magazine recently with the caption: "best player in the nation."

Two Quarterbacks

LSU goes with two quarterbacks, Paul Lyons and Bert Jones. Lyons is considered the better runner and Jones the better passer, although their passing statistics would indicate otherwise—Lyons with 10 completions in 19 attempts for 134 yards and Jones 10 of 28 for 84.

Fullback Jim Benglis and Chris Dantin lead the Tiger runners, with Benglis showing a 13.6 yards per carry average on 150 yards in 11 carries.

Tight end Ken Kavanaugh is the top receiver with seven receptions for 95 yards and a touchdown.

"They're extremely quick," Jardine said. "I think people will be amazed at the reaction time of their defense personnel."

The Badgers will test LSU's defense with a balanced offense centered on Graff and running back Rufus "Roadrunner" Ferguson. Graff has completed two-thirds of his passes in two games and last week was 16 of 24 for 229 yards and a touchdown.

After scoring two touchdowns against Northern Illinois, the 5-foot-6, 186 pound Ferguson had what Jardine called his best game ever with 149 yards rushing and two touchdowns against Syracuse.

Defense, supposedly a Wisconsin weak spot with seven regulars from last year graduated, has been bolstered im-Albright, a senior who missed all of last year with an injury and was granted an extra year of eligibility by the Big Ten.

Albright made seven tackles and recovered a fumble against Northern Illinois, and a national magazine (Sports Illustrated) named him the nation's defensive player of the week after he made six solo and five assisted tackles against Syracuse and blocked an extra point attempt to save the tie.

A key matchup will be that of Wisconsin offensive tackle Keith Nosbusch against Ron Estay, LSU defensive tackle and all - America candidate.

Only 210 pounds, Nosbusch gave away 51 pounds against Syracuse's all-America candidate, Joe Ehrmann, and will give away 25 to Estay. Nosbusch beat Ehrmann consistently, although Ehrmann is not considered as quick as Estay.

Two Wisconsin reserve defensive backs, Chuck Richardson and Randy Freis, suffered head injuries when they collided during Thursday's workout. Richardson needed seven stitches to close a forehead gash and was taken to University Hospitals for observation.

Jardine said sophomore Brian Harney of Fond du Lac will start at middle linebacker. Dave Lokanc, the injured regular, is expected to be available for reserve duty.

Giants Beat Astros, 2-1, Lead Dodgers by 3 Games

BY KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Break up the San Francisco Giants . . . and wake up the Los Angeles Dodgers.

With just a week to go in the nervous National League West race, it appears the Dodgers need a more-than-giant effort to catch front-running San Francisco.

"I don't think Los Angeles can overcome their lead," said Houston Manager Harry Walker after the Giants knocked off his Astros 2-1 Thursday night and took a reasonably-comfortable three-game lead.

You know, he could be right? Each team has six games left and any combination of four San Francisco victories or Los Angeles defeats will hand the Giants their first title since 1962, when they won the National League pennant.

Big Break

"This victory has got to be a big break for us," said Gaylord Perry, the big San Francisco right-hander who pitched a stunning three-hitter. "Especially big in the Astrodome, where we haven't won much the last few years."

Perry's power pitching followed a superlative performance by Juan Marichal, who spun a six-hit, one-run job Wednesday night.

It gave hope to the Giants' stretch run.

"Those two can win it for us," said Manager Charlie Fox of the Giants. "Pitching is the name of the game."

In the other National League, games the Pittsburgh Pirates bounced the St. Louis Cardinals 5-0; the New York Mets beat the Chicago Cubs 5-4 and the Philadelphia Phillies tripped the Montreal Expos 6-4.

The Chicago White Sox whitewashed the California Angels 5-0 and the Oakland A's nipped the Milwaukee Brewers 5-4 in American League games.

Spiritual Lift

Winning in the Astrodome not only boosted the Giants' lead in the West, but also gave them a spiritual lift. They had won only five of 30 games at Houston before winning two of their three-game set.

The two straight victories, incidentally, composed San Fancisco's longest winning streak since early September before the Giants started a slide that cost them most of a once-commanding 8½-game lead over the Dodgers.

"Things are just going the Giants' way now," said Walker.

Things went their way right away Thursday night when often-injured Willie McCovey smashed his 18th home run in the fourth inning to give the Giants a 1-0 lead. They scored the inning run when McCovey was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded, forcing in a fifth-inning tally.

Perry then gave up one of his three hits, a home run to light-hitting John Mayberry in the bottom of the fifth.

Invade Cincinnati

The Giants now move to Cincinnati for a three-game set starting tonight and finish up the regular season with a three-game series at San Diego. The Dodgers take on Atlanta Friday, Saturday and Sunday and wind up with a three-game series at home with Houston.

Willie Stargell drilled a two-run homer, his 46th, and Nelson Briles pitched a six-hitter as Pittsburgh beat St. Louis. Star-

Games Saturday:
Lawrence at Grinnell
Coe at Monmouth
Ripon at Cornell
Carleton at Knox
Beloit at St. Olaf (Non-conf.)

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent Sports Editor

The best "line" on Saturday's Lawrence-at-Grinnell Midwest Conference football game would seem to be this: If the game is close, bet on the Pioneers . . . if it's one-sided, the Vikings will be on top.

In the six years since Ron Roberts took over the LU coaching helm, the Vikes have beaten Grinnell only twice (18-6 in 1966 and 47-0 in 1967). The other four games have been taken by the Pioneers — by an incredible aggregate of only seven points.

The frustrating rundown for LU looks like this: In 1965, Grinnell won, 18-16 . . . In 1968, it was Grinnell by a 10-8 margin . . . In 1969, Grinnell provided, 14-13 . . . and last year, Grinnell rallied for a 19-17 win.

LU, then, in its visit to Iowa tomorrow, will seek its first win over Grinnell since the 1967 "super" team went undefeated.

Repay Knox

Last weekend, the Vikes repaid Knox in full (31-7) for a last-minute loss in 1970. Tomorrow, they hope to continue the revenge motif against a Pioneer team that lost, 13-0, to a strong Monmouth unit lask week—in a game that was closer than the score suggests.

The Vike attack, which generated 328 yards last Saturday, will again be directed by passing-running threat Doug Smith.

The strong LU running game is headed by rookie Steve Blomberg, who made a brilliant MC bow with a 171-yard rushing day against Knox. (Blomberg also caught two passes for 10 yards and returned five punts for 73 yards)

Leading Vike receivers, in addition to Blomberg, include John Stroemer, Dave Rothschild and Dave Arakawa

The potent Vike defense, which blunted all but one Knox scoring threat (a deep pass produced the touchdown) is headed by tackle Gary Haese and all-conference linebacker Steve Shepard.

Ken Zwolinski, who returned a blocked punt for a touchdown against Grinnell last year, is again stationed at a defensive halfback for Lawrence.

Grinnell's dangerous roster includes a number of players who carried key roles in last year's win over LU. For example, Washington Alston, who scored the winning TD on an 11-yard run, is back. So is Mario Bognanno, who scored on runs of 15 yards and one yard in the Vike game.

Alston and Bognanno usually go both ways. Bognanno last year was named an all-MC linebacker, while Alston was a second-team honor choice at the same position.

Receivers Ed Hirsch (6-2) and Jim Pirolli (6-1), who caught key passes in scoring drives last year, are also back as regulars.

Bill Dicks, a 185-pound senior, has taken over the QB spot from the now-graduated Gary Johnson, holder of 11 school passing records.

Ripon (1-0) and Cornell (0-0) clash in another key MC game Saturday. Monmouth, rated second only to defending champion St. Olaf, will be heavily favored over Coe. The Oles will be participating in non-conference action against Beloit.

Cincinnati Has Pair Of Individual Leaders in AFC

NEW YORK (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals took two spots among the National Football League's individual leaders Thursday with quarterback Virgil Carter and receiver Eric Crabtree each ranked No. 1 at his specialty.

Carter was the American Conference's leading passer with 22 of 30 completions for 273 yards while Crabtree leads in receiving with the eight Carter passes he caught in a romp past Philadelphia.

The other AFC leader is Baltimore's Norm Bulaich with 198 yards gained rushing.

In the National Conference, Donny Anderson of Green Bay leads in rushing with 99 yards, Bob Grim of Minnesota is tops in receiving with seven and Craig Morton of Dallas is No. 1 in passing with 10 of 14 for 221 yards.

Saban Confident

Broncos Hope to Make Run for Roses With Horn

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — A year ago, the Denver Broncos startled their American Football Conference brethren by breaking from the gate with a 4-1 record.

Their successes included a 26-13 stunning of the then world champion Kansas City Chiefs, conquerors of .. Minnesota's mighty Vikings in the 1970 Super Bowl.

Unanimously consigned to the basement in pre-season forecasting, they were not supposed to do that sort of thing. And, as the season wore on, they did permit the prognosticators to save some face, winning only one of their last nine games to emerge with a mediocre 5-8-1 record.

Broncos Ready

Despite the unsettling swoon, Coach Lou Saban is convinced the Broncos are ready to make a run for the roses this year, an opinion he expects them to substantiate against the Packers in Milwaukee County Stadium Sunday afternoon.

The man largely responsible for this show of confidence, curiously enough, is quarterback Don Horn, an athlete who has yet to fulfill the late Vince Lombardi's prediction that he would become "the greatest quarterback in National Football League history" as the potential successor to Bart Starr.

Horn was plagued with highly erratic radar while wearing Packer colors in 1970, completing only 28 of 76 passes and throwing 10 interceptions, a performance which undoubtedly hastened his departure in a January trade for Alden Roche.

Made Believer

Apparently renewed by a change of scenery, he has made a believer of Saban, who calls the flamboyant former San Diego State field general the key to Denver's 1971 hopes.

Poetically, Horn will be paired with the talented young Alabamian who is the new heir apparent to Starr's Packer mantle, Scott Hunter. Coach Dan Devine announced Thursday that the ever confident rookie will be his starting quarterback against the Broncos

Primary Asset

Horn's arm, always his primary asset, and his take-charge approach have impressed Saban, who has been on the prowl for a quarterback ever since he left the University of Maryland campus in 1967 to become the Broncos' head coach and general manager.

The team, Denver publicity director Bob Peck reports, also is sold on the outspoken Californian. "The players like him," he says. "He runs the team well, throws the ball well and throws the ball well under pressure."

The Broncos' board of strategy already was wel satisfied with Denver's defense. The

A's Mar Bristol's Plan

Bases-Loaded Walk Sinks Brewers, 5-4

OAKLAND (AP) — Manager Dave Bristol of the Milwaukee Brewers won a battle of strategy Thursday night-but lost the ball game to Oakland.

In a radical defensive move in the last of the ninth, Bristol used five infielders and only two outfielders with Joe Rudi at bat and the bases loaded.

Rudi, who admitted he couldn't find anywhere to hit the ball, struck out. But Anoel Mangual then walked to force in the run that gave the A's a 5-4 victory.

Bristol explained that if a fly ball were hit to the outfield, the run would have scored any way. He used the odd defense once before this season and it helped win a game against the California Angels.

Good Baseball

Manager Dick Williams of the A's agreed with Bristol's strategy. "It's good baseball," he said. "You block all the holes and make it tough on the batter."

The losing pitcher was Ken Sanders, who gave up a double to Rick Monday leading off the ninth inning.

Larry Brown moved Monday to second with a sacrifice, and then Bristol ordered intentional walks to the next two batters to load the bases. Rudi fanned but Mangual then drew a very unintentional walk to end the game.

The Brewers took the early lead in the see-saw battle on a fourth inning homer by Dave May and another by John Briggs in the sixth.

The A's tied the score 4-4 in the seventh. Gene Tenace singled off starter Marty Pattin and Sanders came in to retire the next two batters. Pinch-hitter Tommy David walked and then another pinch hitter, Mike Hegan, singled to tie the score.

Bengtson Credited With Reshaping Bad San Diego Defense

SAN DIEGO (AP) — There are new faces in the San Diego defense lineup and a new one on the sideline directing them. But the biggest change in the Chargers' defense is that it can now be counted on to hold up its part of the game.

San Diego, which has finished third for the past five years, has always had the ability to score with an explosive aerial attack. But the defense was inconsistent.

Statistically, for instance, San Diego was 10th on defense in the American Conference of the National Football League last season, giving up an average of 298.7 yards per game. Only Cleveland, Boston and Houston finished with poorer averages.

But this year, under the leadership of new defensive coach Phil Bengtson, the Chargers have come up with 12 interceptions in seven games and have held their last three opponents—Los Angeles, Atlanta and Kansas City—to two touchdowns apiece.

Chiefs Scoreless

And in holding the Chiefs scoreless in the second half last Sunday in the regular season opener, the San Diego defense gave up just 44 yards and two first downs, enabling the offense to battle back and pull off a 21-14 upset.

The head coach, Sid Gillman, awarded a game ball to each defensive player.

Certainly much of the credit for the tough new defense must go to Bengston, the former head coach at Green Bay who served as defensive coach for nine years under Vince Lombardi before taking over the top job from him.

But Bengston gives most of the credit to his players.

"They're playing with lots of enthusiasm and lots of hustle," he says. "They've developed a very aggressive attitude.

Proper Attitude

"The proper mental attitude is the key to this whole business," he says, "and coaching can only instill it up to a certain point. Then it's up to the player to perform."

Bengston said the first thing he did on joining the Chargers "was to make an extensive study with the other coaches of our personnel and we decided what had to be strengthened. We knew we had to improve our pass rush and in some way get more interceptions."

The new faces on the defense are all on the line, where end Steve DeLong is the only returning starter. And the press rush has improved.

John Tanner, a rookie from Tennessee Tech, is sharing action at the other end position with second-year man Tom Williams.

At the tackle spots are Ron Erst, picked up in the Lance Alworth trade with Dallas, and Kevin Hardy, a third-year man acquired from Green Bay for a first round draft choice.

Charge Big Business Monopoly

Congress to Investigate Pro Sports

WASHINGTON (AP) — After hearing charges that professional football, baseball and basketball have become big business monopolies, a Congressional subcommittee has decided to conduct an antitrust probe into all major team sports.

A senate judiciary subcommittee examining a professional basketball merger bill heard three days of testimony this week that the three sports have enjoyed special tax breaks and no government regulation.

Thursday, acting chairman Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., told his staff to start gathering material and a broader list of witnesses for the resumption of the hearings Nov. 9-11.

"Organized sports asks to be treated as monopoly," said Sen. William B. Spong Jr. D-Va., while appearing before the committee Thursday.

Spong Disturbed

Spong said he is "disturbed by the growing domination of the field by big business interests and big business psychology."

He added that "there is serious question about the claim of organized sport to special consideration under the antitrust laws and its right to other forms of public support it receives."

Ervin, the Senate's constitutional watchdog, had earlier warned that if the basketball merger bill passes, he would propose creation of the post of federal athletic commissioner to regulate all major professional sports—baseball, football, hockey and basketball.

Because all professional sports except baseball fall under the antitrust laws, the American and National Basketball Association are seeking a temporary exemption to merge.

Baseball was exempted by a 1922 Supreme Court opinion holding that the sport was "not a subject of commerce."

But Spong said that more recently the court has referred to the 1922 decision as a "a ruling which at best was of dubious validity" but which would be upheld "as long as the Congress continues to acquiesce."

Pro sports operating rules of the player draft and reserve clause were described at the hearing as a clear violation of antitrust laws and perhaps unconstitutional as well.

Broncos Confident

Coloradans sacked enemy quarterbacks 50 times in 1970, second best record in the National Football League, and followed up that performance by felling Miami's Bob Griese five times in last week's 10-10 tie with the Dolphines.

"The addition of cornerback Leroy Mitchell in a trade has really improved the defense," Peck noted, "and Saban feels the only other way to improve it is to keep them from playing too much. . .And Don Horn is the key to that."

New Restraint

The Packers' Doug Hart, who has been studying his former colleague on film, finds considerable evidence of the "old" Don Horn. But he also finds indication of new restraint.

"Don is still a dangerous passer," he said, "and he's pretty good in play selection. . .And he can throw quickly under pressure — he's always had a quick release.

"But now he appears to be throwing more short passes. He's throwing to both backs quite a bit. But he still has a couple of outside receivers that he'll test you with on the long ball."

Hart politely declined comment on Horn's assertion the Packers "are a team I know we're going to beat."

"I can't think of a player who has left a team who didn't want to beat the team he had left very badly," the Pack's veteran strong safety diplomatically observed.

PACKER PATTER — Devine, who again viewed practice from a golf-cart-mounted wheelchair Thursday, reported there now is a chance that injured defensive tackle Mike McCoy will be available against the Broncos.

"There's some hope that Mike will be able to play," he said. "He looked pretty good this morning. In fact, he looked better than I thought he would. Before practice, I was about ready to write him off."

Devine said that another casualty, middle linebacker Jim Carter, is likely to be ready. Carter has been hobbled by a pulled ham string muscle, suffered three days prior to last Sunday's opener against the New York Giants.

"Jim may not start," Devine said, "but he will be able to play."

Commenting on his announcement that Hunter would start at quarterback, he pointed out, "This decision will probably be made each week. It's conceivable that Scott will start some weeks and that Zeke Bratkowski will start in some others."

Devine effervesced over the practice performance of placekicker Lou Michaels, asserting, "Lou has been doing some fantastic kicking the last two days . . . He's been kicking them through there without any trouble, despite the wind."

On the subject of his own confinement to the wheelchair, occasioned by a broken leg suffered in the fourth quarter of the Giant game, Devine said, "I feel like I'm getting into it out here more than I thought I would.

"I don't feel quite as helpless as I thought I would. I'm just trying to stay out of the way so nobody has to avoid me."

The Packer leader pronounced himself "very pleased" with the manner in which coaching aide Dave Hanner has directed the week's practices. "Dave, he said, "is a good man."

Eleanor Says Broncos Will Down Packers

BY ELINOR KAINE

Detroit Lions 21 — New England Patriots 10

Greg Landry, Lion QB, was once New England's favorite son, breaking records at University of Mass. Landry will have to do better than he did against Minnie, won't he? We shall see if last year's Monday Night Jinx is still working this season.

Washington Redskins 27—New York Giants 13

Home opener should motivate Giants, but Giants were handed Packer victory on a platter.

Miami Dolphins 31—Buffalo Bills 17

Dolphins pass defense will have to work.

Dallas Cowboys 17 — Philadelphia Eagles 10

One can't expect a spectacular passing duel without spectacular passers.

Cincinnati Bengals 24 — Pittsburgh Steelers 14

Steeler coach Chuck Noll blames Terry Bradshaw's annual regular-season demise on the press, although Pittsburgh papers have been closed down for one of the longest strikes in history.

Cleveland Browns 10 — Baltimore Colts 7

Could be an upset, even with Colts at home, if Browns' QB Bill Nelsen stays hot and healthy.

Denver Broncos 23—Green Bay Packers 17

Don Horn returns, and Broncs can pull off an upset if Pack makes as many mistakes as last week against Giants.

Minnesota Vikings 24 — Chicago Bears 10

Bears victory last week came as the result of seven gifts; four interceptions and three fumbles. Why is Norman Snead on the Vike bench, pray tell?

San Francisco 49ers 28 — New Orleans Saints 13

49ers should certainly get to the passer better this week, but Saints at home are never pushovers.

Kansas City Chiefs 35—Houston Oilers 7

Whatever happened to Oiler defense??? Offense???

Atlanta Falcons 17 — Los Angeles Rams 13

Here is an Upset Special but Falcons will need to get lucky. At least Tommy Prothro came out of his pro debut healthy. Dan Devine didn't.

San Diego Chargers 23—Oakland Raiders 14

St. Louis Cardinals 24 — New York Jets 10.

Neither team has overwhelming quarterbacking, but Jets' anti-running defense at Baltimore was non-existent. Cards are supposed to have running.

Nevil Ties Archer in Golf Meet

Trevino 5 Back After 1st Round Of Robinson Open

ROBINSON, Ill. (AP) — Obscure rookie Dwight Nevil started out in the first round of the Robinson Open Golf Tournament "so early I had to stop and shake the trees to wake up the birds."

But the 27-year-old Texan wasn't complaining. That early start helped him shoot a four-under-par 67 and tie 6-foot-6 George Archer for the first-round lead in this $100,000 event Thursday.

Archer, along with the four players tied at 68—Lebron Harris, Larry Hinson, Mac McLendon and Jim Ferriell—all had early tee times and finished before gusty winds kicked up on the 6,585 yard Crawford County Country Club course and sent scores rocketing.

Troubled Lee Trevino, the biggest name in this tournament, fought those winds and a lack of concentration for a 72, one over par on the par 35-36—71 layout in a community of 7,200 just across the Wabash River from Indiana.

Trevino's mother is seriously ill in Dallas, and he left her side only in time to get here about an hour before his tee time.

About a dozen players were in a group at 69, all but two of them morning starters. They included Bert Greene, Jim Colbert and Mike Hill.

Defending champion George Knudson of Canada had a fat 75 and must improve if he is to survive the cut for the final two rounds when the field is trimmed at the end of today's round.

Mason Rudolph and J.C. Snead, besides Trevino the only members of America's victorious Ryder Cup team competing here, each had a 73.

Big 8 Has Taken 19 Straight From Big 10

Buckeyes Strive to Halt Jinx

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

Nationally sixth-ranked Ohio State will try to end a 19-game skein of Big Ten football defeats by the Big Eight Saturday in a key intersectional battle with formidable Colorado.

Sagging Big Ten gridiron prestige, deflated last week with a 3-6-1 record against outside competition, could perk slightly Saturday with at least five conference teams accorded a victory chance in a 10-game program.

Besides Ohio State (1-0), fourth-ranked Michigan (2-0), Minnesota (1-1), Michigan State (1-1), and Northwestern (0-2) are tabbed likely winners, all in home games.

Michigan Picked

Michigan, in high gear after impressive victories over Northwestern and Virginia, is rated three touchdowns better than UCLA, although Michigan coach Bo Schembechler asserts "This could turn into one of the best games of the college season."

Minnesota, showing well in a 35-7 defeat by top-ranked Nebraska, gets a 14-point call over Washington State.

Michigan State, shut out last Saturday by Georgia Tech 10-0, is a 7-point pick over Oregon State.

Northwestern, gaining painful experience in losses to Michigan and Notre Dame, is rated by 4 points over Syracuse which played Wisconsin to a 20-20 tie last Saturday. Rated an even choice is Indiana (1-1) in a Saturday night contest at Baylor.

Prospective Conference losers Saturday include:

Purdue (0-1), pegged a 20-point underdog against invading Notre Dame, No. 2 team in The AP's national poll.

Wisconsin (1-0-1), by 8 points against visiting Louisiana State which bounced back from a 31-21 loss to Colorado by blanking Texas A & M 37-0.

Illinois (0-2), scoreless in two successive defeats, by a whopping 24 points in a Saturday night game at Southern California.

Iowa (0-2), a 14-point underdog against Penn State, fresh from a 56-3 scuttling of Navy in its opener.

The Big Ten's five-year record against outside competition is a woeful 65-76-1, and the Big Eight has been foremost in rubbing salt into the Big Ten's wounded pride.

Ohio State, idle last week after opening with a conference 52-21 rout of Iowa, could fail to break the Big Ten's string of 19 defeats by the Big Eight.

Didn't Know

"Frankly, I didn't know there was such a record," commented Buckeye Coach Woody Hayes, dean of the Big Ten coaches. "But I don't think it's anything to get excited about."

Hayes never has concentrated on nonconference play, because "I don't think it means much."

Colorado, however, could makes some 85,000 Buckeye partisans unhappy at Columbus, Ohio, Saturday. The Buffaloes already have upset LSU 31-21 and trounced Wyoming 56-13

Little Chute OKs COG Land Plan

Board Accepts Future Village Development Guide

LITTLE CHUTE — Village board members Tuesday night adopted a resolution approving a land use plan developed by the Fox Valley Council of Governments to serve as a guide for future village development.

The plan incorporates many of the studies made by the planning agency on regional and community development for business, residential, park, sewer, traffic and other services.

The board accepted a quotation of $4,360 from Keller Painting Service, Willard, Wis., to sandblast and paint the interior and exterior of the Jackson Street water tower. Members also approved a contract with the firm to maintain both village water towers for the next 10 years at an annual cost of $2,100 per year.

Approval was given to hiring Fox River Boiler Co., Appleton, to retube boilers in the village hall at a cost of $1,200.

The board voted to rezone a portion of land on Wisconsin Avenue from R-1 residential to B-2 business as recommended by the planning commission. The rezoning had been requested by Ray Dakins to permit construction of a drive-in restaurant at the site which is near other business-zoned property.

Police & Fire Beat

LITTLE CHUTE — Damage to 15 major pieces of equipment at Fox Valley Construction Co., County Trunk CC, may exceed $1,000, according to police investigating a vandalism complaint at the firm.

The equipment, parked outside, included a crane, pavers, end loader, cement spreader and finisher and other heavy machinery. The vandals used an iron stake to punch holes in radiators, ripped off wiring, broke spark plugs and all gauges, smashed windows and in all damaged 74 different parts of the machines. The complaint was filed Tuesday by Jerry Conlon, representative of the firm.

LITTLE CHUTE — A complaint of theft and vandalism to a home at 621 Lincoln Ave., owned by Wisconsin Gas Co., Milwaukee, was reported to police Tuesday.

The unoccupied home is for sale by an Appleton real estate firm. Police found custom made drapes valued at between $400 and $500 missing and two doors and door frames damaged. Repair cost is estimated at $50. Toilet tissue was strewn throughout the home and police found evidence that a fire, which obviously burned itself out, had been ignited inside a garage attached to the home.

Lawmakers Delve Into Reasons for Criticism of DNR

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — State lawmakers continued their assault on the policies and public image of the Department of Natural Resources Thursday as they renewed questioning of resource board members.

State representatives queried four board members throughout the morning on policies ranging from state deer herd management to alleged favoritism of big business in pollution abatement proceedings as they said that the department has suffered a "public relations breakdown" in the eyes of much of the public.

The job of the department may be too large and the Legislature might have to undo the Kellett governmental reorganization merger of game management and environmental protection in the new agency, said State Rep. Francis Byers, R-Marion.

Need Relief

Pollution abatement enforcement is stricter for individuals and small business than it is for big business, charged Rep. Robert Thompson, D-Poynette.

"The people in my area of the state are screaming for relief. That's why we are here," he told Board Chairman Daniel Tyler of Phillips, John Potter of Wisconsin Rapids, Roger Minahan of Milwaukee and Prof. Gerard Rohlich of Madison.

Hunters want deer management powers taken away from the DNR because of mismanagement, he charged.

Natural resource and health personnel arbitrarily changed sewage disposal and well regulations for much of Door County, seriously damaging the local economy of the area and hurting individuals throughout the area, said Rep. Lary Swaboda, D-Luxemburg.

The decision to shift district DNR headquarters from Oshkosh to Green Bay was inefficient and uneconomical, Rep. Gordon Bradley, R-Oshkosh, told board members that department employes had advised him.

"You are suffering a public relations breakdown," said Thompson.

The board spokesmen opposed repeated suggestions that the Kellett merger of the old conservation and resource development departments be undone.

Time for Details

All such reorganizations need time in which operating details can be worked out, said Potter. The environmental protection responsibilities have gone through three rapid transformations in the past half dozen years and should not again be altered this rapidly, he said.

Minahan said that deer management always has been a touchy subject with sportsmen, but many hunters support the department's work, in addition to those who oppose it. Details of the management plans are scientifically calculated, he told the legislators. In recent years, while the number of hunters has multiplied rapidly, the size of the deer herd has remained constant without any increase in the amount of wild lands, he added. If hunters are having less luck now than they did in past years, it is because of increased competition, and not because of departmental mismaangement, said Minahan.

The board members denied big business is given a break in pollution abatement activities.

The economic impact of massive cleanup orders on large industries must be considered regarding local communities, said Potter.

"We must weigh the consequences of a swift cleanup," said Tyler. "I don t think that there is any one on the board or in the department that would want to cause economic hardship to these communities with industries on water. We must have accelerated cleanup, but what are we to do? Turn the key in the door?" he asked.

Natural Resources Committee Chairman Lewis Mitness, D-Janesville, asked whether any industries had closed up or left the state because of pollution cleanup orders, and not other factors.

Potter said that abatement orders were the final "straw that broke the camel's back" in several instances.

The state should not stop issuing orders because of such results, but no one should make such decisions before knowing what this type of impact is to be, said Potter.

Final Decision

The final decision as to whether to consider the economic or pollution factors rests with Natural Resources Secretary Lester Voigt, Potter added.

Rohlich said that any appearance of "favoritism" caused by granting longer enforcement periods to large industry than to individuals or small businesses were because of the much higher cost and more complex problems faced in abating pollution in large scale and often antiquated industry.

The Door County decisions to limit sewage disposal techniques and to require that wells be drilled to a 170-foot depth, rather than to 100-feet as formerly permitted, was based on public health needs, said Rohlich. Those needs must be considered more than the impact on an area and include the protection of the state and nation, he said.

Polluted Water

Minahan said that people concerned about the economic impact of the changed requirements should consider the economic impact polluted drinking water would have on Door County.

Swaboda suggested that state financial aid in such instances be considered.

Bradley was told that the decision to change the regional headquarters site rested not with the DNR, but was made by Govs. Warren Knowles and Patrick Lucey.

Minahan said that the department is being forceful in pollution abatement, pointing to the quick closing of production at the Port Edwards Wyandotte Chemical Corp. plant that was dumping mercury compounds in the Wisconsin River.

State Leads Way

Potter said that "Wisconsin has written the book" on much of state antipollution work in recent years in the nation, and that resource board policies and departmental action are taking effect.

"I personally predict that within five years there will be no pulp sulfite mills in the State of Wisconsin. That is because of orders issued by the DNR," he said.

"I hear more criticism about the DNR than all the other state agencies put together. There has to be something wrong," said Rep. Clarence Wilger, a former conservation warden.

"I think criticism is a good thing," said Rohlich. It reflects public concern and interest, he said.

Little Hope for Tax Distribution Panel

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Both Democrats and Republicans are expressing the belief that the Senate conference committee members appointed Thursday to help work out a state tax redistribution proposal will be unable to reach a compromise with Assembly members.

Democrats charge that Republicans Milo Knutson of La Crosse, Myron Lotto of Green Bay and Jack Steinhilber of Oshkosh, who were named to the panel, have all indicated opposition to shared tax reform.

"Snowballs will be rolling down the hills of hell before this committee reports," said Sen. Dale McKenna, D-Jefferson.

'Will Get Nowhere'

"It's a futile, fruitless talk because it's going to get nowhere," said Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek.

Knutson, Lotto and Steinhilber will serve with Democratic Reps. Raymond Tobiasz of Milwaukee, Carl Otte of Sheboygan and Ernest Korpella of Washburn.

Knutson's district would gain $114,871 under the current proposal, although the city of La Crosse would lose $946,067. Lotto's district would lose $172,607 and Steinhilber's district would lose $883,077.

Democrats attempted to remove Knutson, who had argued strongly against the bill in floor debate, and replace him with Republican Sen. James Devitt of Greenfield, who they considered more likely to compromise on the issue.

Schriber Steps In

Lt. Gov. Martin Schriber, the Senate's presiding officer and a Milwaukee Democrat, favored the move to replace Knutson with Devitt.

"The chair believes that although the senators are honorable and competent," he said, they "lack a desire and philosophical outlook" to seek a compromise.

But the assistant Republican majority leader, Raymond Johnson of Eau Claire, said the three GOP selections were well qualified for assignment to the conference committee and Schreiber shouldn't attempt to select a replacement for any of them.

"The lieutenant governor's duty is to preside over the Senate, not tell the majority how to vote," he said.

$300 Million

An estimated $300 million in state revenue would be shared with local governments under the proposal, but no district would have all of its communities gaining or losing if it is adopted.

Tax distribution is considered vital by Gov. Patrick Lucey and many other Democrats, especially those from Milwaukee who seek a greater share of state aids.

The Republican-controlled Senate refused to agree to amendments made in the Democratic - controlled Assembly—thereby setting the stage for creation of the conference committee.

Death Ruled Accidental

Migrant Worker Died of Injuries From Bicycle Fall

The death of a 55-year-old migrant worker has been ruled accidental, according to Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps.

Kemps reported that a pathological examination had indicated the injuries were about four days old at the time of Jesus Martinez's death.

Outagamie County sheriff's officers indicated that Martinez had fallen from his bicycle onto the pavement of State 187 on Sunday, Aug. 29, and he was found dead in his route 1, Shiocton, house Sept. 2.

"We can find no indications of foul play and are satisfied that Martinez died as a result of that fall," Kemps said.

Kemps had ordered the post-mortem examination after a roommate of Martinez said the man had been ill the night of his death.

He had told Outagamie County Sheriff's officers that Martinez threatened to kill him and took a swing at him before lying down.

Kemps reported that Martinez had fallen from his bicycle on other occasions and had been aided by authorities at those times.

Wisconsin Boosts Farm Exports

Buyer Acquaintance

Royer, who is first vice president of the National Cheese Institute, said it is necessary now to renew friendships with overseas buyers. "We felt it important to get over and see our friends on the other side."

There is little fear surtax on imports will cause trade retaliation in foreign countries if the taxes are modified, he said, but added trade limits "definitely," would occur if the surtax is not eased.

Trade Problem

David Howe, Milwaukee, of the United States Department of Commerce, said the fate of agricultural exports may depend heavily on the reaction of the Common Market recent surtaxes enacted on imports to the United States.

"A lot will depend on what we do with that 10 per cent surtax on foreign imports," he said.

European experts have indicated they will not retaliate with trade barriers if the United States lifts the surtax. Scheduled drops in European tariffs may not occur, however, if the surtax is maintained. Howe said limits on manufactured goods actually could be increased in Europe.

At the present time "realistic," supply and demand levels have increased the price of dairy products on world markets, he said.

Japanese Plan

The firm is attempting to extend it's sales into Asian markets and participated in the Tokyo food show. As a result several outlets have been developed for specialty cheeses in Japan.

State experts may make a repeat visit to Japanese markets, said Reese. Although the visit still is being planned Alice in Dairyland, Marsha Lindsay, Manawa, might visit the country to "sell," Wisconsin cheese to Japanese consumers.

Wisconsin firms participating in the Cologne Food Fair are Ant Nellie's Foods Inc., Clyman; California Canners and Growers, Fond du Lac; Bond Pickle Co. Inc., Oconto; Fall River Canning Co., Fall River; Packerland Packing Co., Green Bay; Purity Cheese Co., Mayville and Sanna Inc., Madison. # McIntosh Champ Winnebago Apple

BY V.W. PEROUTKY
Winnebago County Agricultural Agent

OSHKOSH — It's a good time now to survey the tree fruit crop and plan for next spring. The apple crop locally is fairly good and the season has produced good color in healthful tree-ripened fruit.

The number one apple here and in all Wisconsin is the McIntosh. George Klingbeil, university extension horticulturist, said it represents more than a third of the entire crop. It's a late fall and winter storage apple ideal for eating fresh, in salads, and it makes good pie.

Other excellent apples are Cortland, Minton, Melba, Kendall and McCowan. These all are descendants of McIntosh but are not as popular as McIntosh in Winnebago County.

Spartan and Cortland are gaining in popularity. Gentle handling of apples is essential to insure long storage. Apples kept in a refrigerator in plastic bags, or in other cool storage, will keep many weeks. Later this fall, Delicious and Greenings will be for sale. These winter varieties may keep until next spring if stored in bags in a cool basement room.

Jaycees Schedule Campaign to Name Outstanding Farmer

An estimated 60 Jaycee chapters in Wisconsin have started programs to name Outstanding Young Farmers, as part of an annual program, according to Richard Brodhagen, Shawano, state Outstanding Young Farmer (OYF) chairman.

Chapters will name local winners until Jan. 1, and a state winner and two runners-up will be named Feb. 12 during a banquet in Shawano. The state winner will enter competition for national honors.

Brodhagen said the contest was being sponsored by Central Soya-Master Mix which has backed the event in recent years.

Farmers honored in the program must be from 21 to 35 years old and are cited for farm progress, conservation work, and aid to their communities.

No Exceptions To Restraints, Nixon Pledges

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — President Nixon promises that wage-price restraints to take effect Nov. 14 will "cover the whole economy" and—depending on interest rate trends—could encompass regulation of rates on consumer credit.

Nixon parceled out a few more clues to his thinking on future anti-inflation policy in a question-and-answer session at a Thursday night dinner meeting of the Detroit Economic Club.

The hour-long quiz was broadcast nationally by some radio networks.

At a Sept. 9 news conference, Nixon spoke of wage-price restraints on major industries following the Nov. 13 expiration of the current freeze. This was widely interpreted at the time as indicating Nixon leaned toward very selective curbs.

Phase 2

His new pronouncement, however, embraced all segments of the economy, although he emphasized that his Phase 2 program to be announced in mid-October will concentrate on areas which, in the absence of restraints, could contribute most strongly to continued inflation.

The chief executive was asked by one member of a 10-man panel how soon he planned to return to a "free economy."

Nixon said his wage-price stabilization effort will continue until "we have cooled the fires of inflation."

Most panelists were leading members of Detroit's industrial-mercantile-financial community and the questions reflected business concerns and viewpoints.

Outside cavernous Cobo Hall, several thousand demonstrators paraded for a variety of causes. Some opposed the freeze, some the Vietnam war, some the handling of the Attica, N.Y., prison revolt. The President, arriving and departing by a rear entrance, at most caught only a glimpse of the protesters as he left to return to Washington.

Nixon, who had never before talked of possible curbs on interest rates, told his listeners "the matter is still open." He noted the Federal Reserve Board has standby authority to regulate consumer credit.

He suggested he might urge use of those powers if he is dissatisfied with the trend of interest rates during the balance of the freeze. But he noted that interest rates are lower than when he imposed the lid Aug. 15.

Only one question dealt with foreign policy outside the economic area. Nixon was asked what he hoped to achieve by his planned visit to Peking and whether recent mystery-clouded events in Communist China might alter his intentions.

"I do not expect the current developments to change our travel plans," he said. He was not asked to interpret or explain those developments, nor did he volunteer any elaboration.

As for his motive, he said he and Premier Chou En-lai of mainland China recognize the "deep differences" between their two countries. He said it is his aim to "talk about them and not fight about them, now or 15 years from now."

In 10 or 15 years, Nixon predicted, Communist China will be a "significant nuclear power" with a population of 900 million to one billion. If kept outside the family of nations, he contended, China could become a great danger.

No. 1 Problem Is Economy

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — The Gallup Poll says the chief concern of the American people is the state of the economy, not the Vietnam war.

Gallup surveys over the last seven years have indicated the war was considered by more people to be of primary importance than any other issue.

But 45 per cent of the 1,495 persons interviewed last month said the economy was uppermost, with 25 per cent saying the war was the No. 1 problem, the poll reported Thursday.

In a June poll, 33 per cent of those interviewed said the war was the primary problem and 22 per cent cited the economy.

Those interviewed in the August poll also said the economy would be the major issue in the 1972 presidential campaign.

Lawmaker Hinted as Justice Nominee

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has thrown out a broad hint that he may nomi- of two openings on the Supreme Court.

nate Rep. Richard H. Poff, a Virginia Republican, to fill one

Poff's chances appeared brighter after Nixon discussed with members of the Economic Club of Detroit the kind of candidates he was considering. "Teachers, legislators for example with great experience on the House and Senate Judiciary Committees—this gives you an idea," he said Thursday.

John Harlan

Poff, 47, is the second-ranked Republican on the House Judiciary Committee. He helped pilot Nixon's crime control legislation through Congress last year and is considered a "law and order" conservative of the sort the President would turn to for the high court.

Against Bills

He already has the backing of the committee chairman, Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., and the ranking Republican, Rep. William M. McCulloch of Ohio, though he voted against civil rights bills they sponsored in the 1960s.

A second place on the Court opened Thursday when Justice John M. Harlan retired. Harlan, 72, and suffering cancer of the spine, stepped down six days after Justice Hugo L. Black, who is in critical condition at the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

In announcing Harlan's retirement, White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon was expected "to move as swiftly as possible to find two highly qualified individuals to fill the vacancies."

Death Penalty

The court opens its new term Oct. 4. Hearings are scheduled to begin Oct. 12 with argument on the constitutionality of the death penalty. Only justices on the bench when a case is argued are permitted to take part in the eventual decision.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said that once the nominations are made the Senate would act on them as quickly as possible. In the past the Senate readily approved two Nixon nominees, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice Harry A. Blackmun, and rejected two others, Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. and G. Harrold Carswell.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said Burger and Blackmun "reflected the conservative element" and that he hoped the nominees to succed Black and Harlan would represent "more moderate elements of American opinion."

Ziegler said Nixon would use the same "strict constructionist" standard he used in the past. This means a restrained view of the Court's functions and a reluctance to upset state or federal laws.

Speaking in Detroit the President said appointment of a woman was a possibility and that he was more interested in a prospect's judicial philosophy than his region.

Most prominently mentioned as a potential woman nominee is Rita Hauser, a New York lawyer who was active in Nixon's 1968 campaign and has served as the U.S. representative to the United Nations Commission on Human Rights.

The hint about Poff came about when Nixon said he might select someone other than an experienced judge.

"Justice (Felix) Frankfurter, a teacher, was a great justice," he said. "Justice Louis D. Brandeis, one of my heroes, was a great practicing lawyer."

He then went on to speak of teachers and legislators.

Burger, Blackmun, Haynesworth and Carswell all were federal appeals court judges when they were named for the Supreme Court. Justices William J. Brennan Jr., Potter Stewart and Thurgood Marshall also had judicial experience. Justices William O. Douglas and Byron R. White had none when they took their seats.

Harlan's retirement ends a 16-year Court career noted principally for judicial scholarship and the theory that Bill of Rights safeguards should be applied to the states only when necessary to ensure "fundamental fairness."

Dissenting Opinions

He wrote more than 200 dissenting opinions and was recognized as the leader of the conservative wing, a distinct minority following the departure of Frankfurter in 1962.

Harlan's philosophy was probably best expressed in a 1964 dissent from one of the apportionment rulings that have required states to make legislative districts equal in population.

"The Constitution," wrote Harlan, "is not a panacea for every blot upon the public welfare; nor should this Court, ordained as a judicial body, be thought of as a general haven for reform movements. If the time comes when this Court is looked upon by well-meaning people—or, worse yet, by the Court itself—as the repository for all reforms, I think the seeds of trouble are being sown for this institution."

Tall and serene, he looked the part of a Justice and was the grandson of one, the first John Marshall Harlan, who served for 34 years. He took on

50,000 Minnesota Turkeys Tested for Contamination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government inspectors are checking 50,000 Minnesota turkeys slaughtered for Thanksgiving tables to see how many contain harmful residues of an industrial chemical that also was discovered in chickens this summer.

The turkeys were impounded over the past six weeks at Swift Dairy & Poultry Company in Detroit Lakes, Minn., a subsidiary of Swift & Company, the nation's largest meat packer.

Dr. Kenneth M. McEnroe, head of Meat and Poultry inspection for the Agriculture Department, said Thursday the turkeys were from "six or seven flocks" grown by producer Peterson-Bidding of Wadena, Minn.

Source of Contamination

There was no indication of the source of the chemical PCB contamination, McEnroe said. Not all the turkeys were thought to be tainted, but to be sure, he said, all were held at the plant for further tests.

Comparatively little is known of the PCBs, or polychlorinated biphenals, chemically similar to the pesticide DDT. But laboratory tests have linked them with skin disease, liver damage, and birth defects.

Officials said Swift & Co. voluntarily kept the suspected turkeys from the market after "a number" of the 50,000 birds showed PCB residues larger than the five parts per million allowed by the Food and Drug Administration.

Swift said it notified the government on Aug. 6 that a PCB problem existed. The Agriculture Department did not announce it until a week ago and did not identify the plant.

Asked if the USDA attempted to hide the contamination from the public by waiting so long, McEnroe replied:

"This is totally wrong. We didn't deliberately withhold anything from the public. We wanted to find out first if we had a problem."

The department was involved in another PCB episode in July when 88,000 broiler chickens, thousands of eggs and tons of feed were destroyed. At that time the source of contamination was a PCB leak into fish meal at a feed plant in Wilmington, N.C.

Harris Declares Himself Candidate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma announced today his candidacy for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, saying he will try to "call this country back to the greatness that is in us."

'I intend to try to turn this country around before it's too late," the 40-year-old senator said as he became the second declared entry in a crowded field of Democratic White House prospects.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., is the other announced candidate. Both are liberals.

Harris had been a certain presidential entry since July 16, when he announced he would not run again for th Senate but would instead explore the prospects for a White House race.

not run again for the Senate campaign-style appearances in 19 states, concentrating most heavily on Florida, New Mexico and California, three presidential primary states around which his advance strategy has been fashioned.

"Most people don't believe that it makes much difference what politician is elected," Harris said. "They don't really believe things are going to change. . .

"I believe that a president can call this country back to the greatness that is in us," Harris said. "I mean to try."

Harris began his announcement statement by talking about his family. He said his father is a small farmer in southwest Oklahoma who "works twice as hard as most Americans" and cannot now pay his mother's medical bills "He's hurt and angry about this," Harris said. "He knows it doesn't have to be that way."

Militant Wife

Harris said his wife, LaDonna is "a militant woman and an activist member of the Comanche Indian tribe.

"She resents the fact that maximun security prisons are mostly peopled by blacks, chicanos, American Indians, Puerto Ricans and poor people," Harris said. "She never believed that George Jackson was shot in the top of the head from a guard tower. Something told her that the Attica hostages didn't die at the hands of the prisoners. She was right."

Harris said his daughter, Kathryn, a college senior, 'wonders why a government that can trace Angela Davis to a motel room can't stop the heroin traffic."

Federal Center Provides a New Start

JFK Rehabilitation Center Lets Youths See the Light

By CRAIG AMMERMAN
Associated Press Writer

MORGANTOWN, W. Va (AP) — One night this week, three young men climbed out a dormitory window, raced across a dimly lit campus and disappeared into the darkness.

Another evening at the same campus, a young man looked up from a pool game during a dormitory dance. "Man, this place is called prison," he said, "but it's the first decent chance I've had to do anything in 17 years."

He had gotten a message that the three who ran away had missed.

Most inmates at the Robert F. Kennedy Youth Center do see the light—a light that the federal government is trying to find for a troubled correctional system that has led to Atticas and San Quentins.

"What we're trying to do," says a youth center official, "is to say to troubled young men and women that we want to help. how about giving us a chance."

Rehabilitation Experiment

The chance—for 235 young offenders here—is a multimillion-dollar rehabilitation experiment which has produced convincing results in less than three years.

Without bars or high wire fences, the Kennedy Youth center is easy to leave. And many have escaped—about 100 since the facility opened in December 1968.

But records also show that more than 300 of the 400 who have been released from the center are still free—a success rate of about 75 per cent.

"That's not an ideal figure," says Roy Gerrard, former director of the center who is now deputy director of the U.S. Bureau of Prisons. "But it's a lot better than any other place I know of."

Federal prison officials in Washington, said that no comparative figures are available on the success ratio of conventional correction institutions for young offenders.

No Sound Chance

Inmates who escape from the Kennedy center don't get a second chance there. Records show that most of the 100 escapees were apprehended and sent elsewhere, mostly to maximum security institutions.

There are no cells at the Kennedy center. Instead, there are individual rooms in seven dormitories that dot a 250-acre campus just outside Morgantown, home of West Virginia University.

Scattered on the grounds are athletic fields, a gymnasium, classroom buildings and an indoor swimming pool, part of an $11-million physical plant.

For the center's 210 males and 25 females, who range in age from 16-23, life is far different than at practically any other penal institution.

"The objective is to normalize the environment, to keep an offender in the same community environment in which he must eventually live," says Jay Flamm, center director.

All inmates are involved in some kind of educational or work program.

Money Important

An important ingredient in the formula is money. Flamm says the government spends about $34 per day on each inmate, easily the highest per capita expenditure of any federal penal facility. This cost includes the $11 million price tag on the physical plant.

The average expenditure for all federal prisons is about $10.50 a day for inmate, according to federal prison officials in Washington.

All Kennedy Center Inmates receive at least six hours of instruction per day in areas lavishly equipped to teach electronics, woodworking, power technology, graphics, aeromechanics, basic and remedial education courses and data processing.

Classes are taught by 22 instructors hired as guidance counselors and then trained to teach vocationally.

Discussion Groups

The counselors attempt to work in small discussion groups outside of classes. Gerrard says they have been quite successful in avoiding the problems of race and homosexuality that plague most penal institutions. The center population is about 50 per cent black.

Most of the inmates here are persons who have stepped outside the federal law for the first time. They are referred here by the courts and by other penal institutions when officials spot a potential for rehabilitation

"Society hasn't come up with many answers for corrections," Gerrard says. "A lot of the things we're doing at Kennedy might point the way to a better future."

Friday Dances

A typical Friday night at the center will find a dance in one of the dormitories, where coeds and social workers from West Virginia University come for the evening.

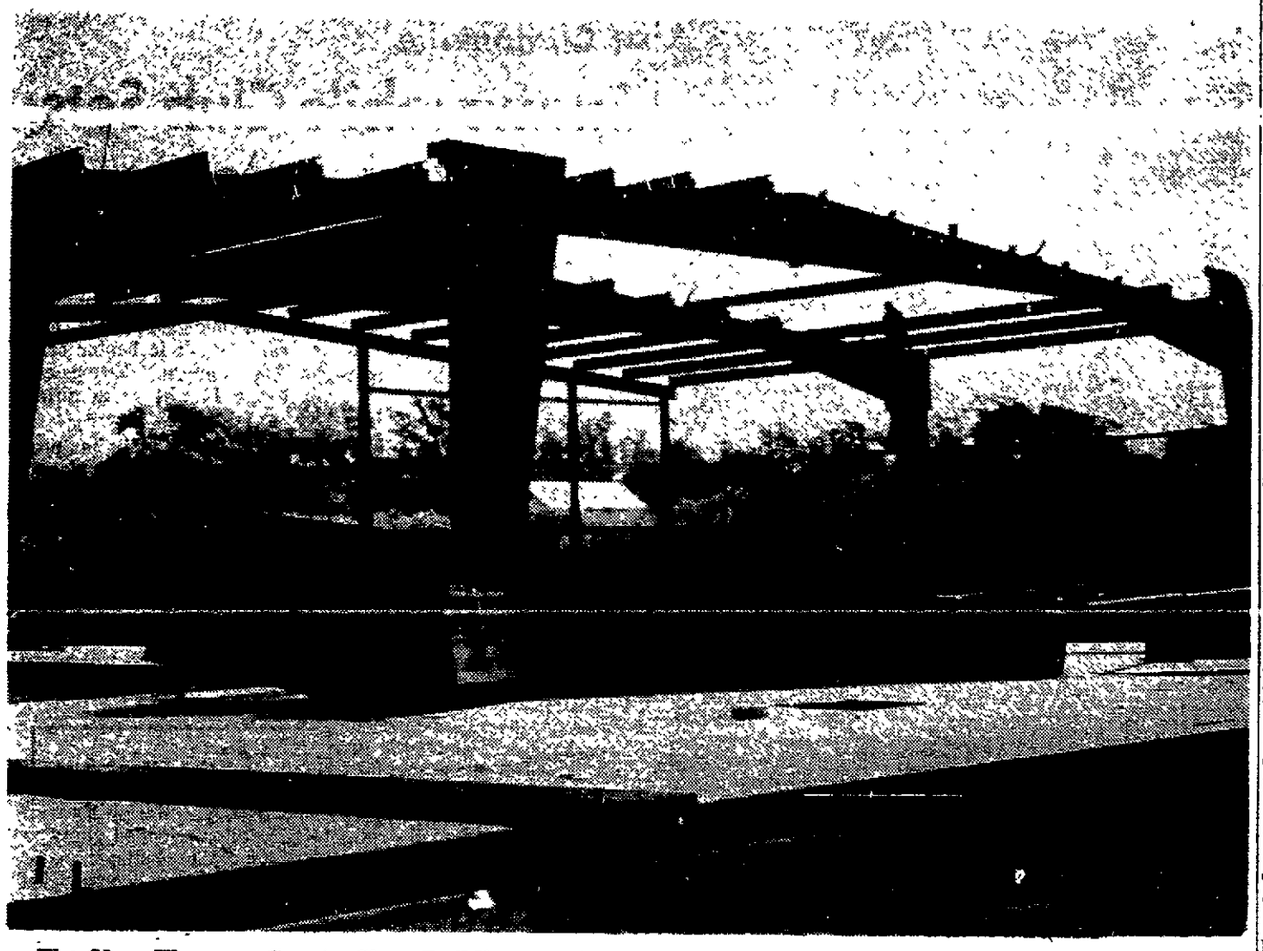

"The mission of the center is a pioneering one," says Flamm "What we're finding is that you can do things differently and make go of it."

"At the center the students know we care and will try to help them," Gerrard says. "That's what it's all about anyway. The answers we're finding can be applied in other places, if the public is willing to pay the price."

Outside a dance one recent Friday night, an inmate who was to be released in two days said his life may have been turned around in the past nine months.

"If you could see where some of us come from," he said, "you'd know why more don't run away. This place is better than most of our homes. And some of us have found out here that this might be our last honest chance to turn our life round."

Policy Change Eyed by New Welfare Chief

New employes in the Outagamie County Department of Social Services will be expected to live in the county and remain with the agency at least two years.

The new policies were outlined for the county's Board of Social Services Thursday by James E. Stamp, who takes over as welfare director Monday. Today is his last day as a supervisor in the Dane County Department of Social Services where he has worked the past 12 years.

Stampp said that while he knows he cannot make it legally mandatory that new welfare department employes live in the county and stay on the job two years, he will ask that it be done in the interest of loyalty. He said he intends to make every attempt to enforce the policies.

Employes who live outside the county can't properly serve or represent the people they are expected to work with, Stampp explained.

Several welfare agency employes presently live outside Outagamie County, he said, including one caseworker who recently was given permission to move to Oshkosh.

Former welfare director Alfred R. Eggert, whom Stampp replaces, lived in Shawano County. He communted to Appleton.

The social services board voted unanimous support for Stampp's policies regarding residency and tenure.

Although it was not brought out today, personnel turnover has been one of the major problems of the county welfare agency in the past couple years.

The board authorized Stampp to fill two positions, that of case aide and clerk.

Stampp said the shortage of case aides is one of his most pressing immediate concerns. He termed "deplorable" the 11-month caseload lag in one area of medical assistance.

Stampp told the board he "absolutely will not compromise quality" in hiring departmental personnel. He said he intends to "hire the best people available."

He added, "I will let the positions go unfilled rather than put in people of poor quality."

In other business today, the board heard from Kenneth Gibson who, with his brother, Keith, founded Honeyrock, a preschool and day care center opening Oct. 4 in St. Joseph Grade School, and Mrs. Ray Rindt, a member of the advisory committee of North Side Day Care Center, 3310 N. Durkee St.

Gibson and Mrs. Rindt asked the county to consider making arrangements whereby children of working welfare mothers or welfare mothers receiving job training can receive services at the new day care facilities.

The county is now providing babysitting funds, totaling nearly $50,000 annually, for the welfare mothers, the board was told by Martin Downs, member of a recently-named welfare advisory committee.

County's Taxes May Hold Line

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

With several big "ifs," Outagamie County Executive Alvin Woehler expressed optimism Thursday that the county might be able to hold the 1972 tax rate to the present $4.75 per $1,000 equalized valuation.

Outagamie County will be working with its first executive budget in history for 1972. The budget schedule calls for Woehler to present his budget to the board at the October session. The executive budget will then be referred to the policy and finance committee for its review and recommendations before coming back to the entire board for action in November.

Woehler said that three major departmental budgets have not yet been submitted to him — social services, county health center and Golden Age Home — which could affect the total budget picture.

"I think we will be able to hold position at this point," Woehler said. He said the highway budget is about the same as this year's while the airport and parks budgets are down.

Social Services Review

A review of the social services budget is scheduled for Sept. 30, Woehler said, to give the new social services director, James Stampp, time to make his own review of the programs.

Two other factors which could have a major effect on the budget are the labor contract negotiations and state action involving medicaid.

Labor negotiations are a big question mark at this time, Woehler said. Because of the wage and price freeze, the board's personnel committee has been talking mainly working conditions with the unions and waiting for government actic. before talking money.

Woehler said he plans to ask Corporation Counsel William Schuh for an opinion on whether the county can set up its normal budget provision for salary increases in the event of a continued limitation on wages.

Lump Sum

Because contract negotiations frequently are still in progress when the budget is adopted, the county has been simply putting a lump sum of money in the budget to cover any salary increases for the coming year.

Woehler also indicated there is a possibility the state could cut back on medicaid benefits which would throw a bigger burden on the social services budget.

The county executive praised department heads for their cooperation in keeping budget requests to a minimum, particularly in the area of capital outlays.

He said he plans to have the completed budget ready for the Oct. 12 board meeting, but if it gets delayed he will ask authority to submit it directly to the policy and finance committee.

Grand Army Home Facility

Officials Discuss Building Details

KING — Engineers from the state and a partner from the architectural firm which designed the new activities building at the Grand Army Home for Veterans met Thursday with contractors and home personnel to go over details on the building before construction begins the first week in October.

Byron Thomas, general construction superintendent, Bureau of Facilities Management, reported that the site preparation began Sept. 17, work on the building will begin about Oct. 4 and the building has a 10-month construction schedule.

General Contractor

Fred Reckrey, Bureau of Facilities Management, will be on site during construction.

Ellis Stone Construction Co., Stevens Point, is the general contractor. Peters Plumbing and Heating, Omro, is the plumbing contractor. The heating and ventilating contractor is Bob G. Engler Co., Inc., Horicon. Burckhardt Electric, West Bend, has the electrical contract. The landscaping will be done by Amble Bros., Verona. The elevator will be installed by Northwestern Elevator Co., Milwaukee.

Site Proposal

The construction contracts for the building total $1,032,000 and the total cost, including equipment has been estimated at $1.5 million.

The new facility will be paid for by the veterans who reside at the Home, from excess assets at the time of admission and the time of death.

Gus Martinsons, project architect, explained that his firm had spent considerable time studying the problem of where to locate the building. "We felt strongly that the building should be on the lake for the members to have a sheltered place to enjoy Rainbow Lake at all times of the year."

The 36,000 square foot, tri-level building will consolidate varied activities at the Home, with plenty of accessible open areas, he said. There will be recreation offices and areas, a post office, rooms for hobbies, a woodworking shop, photographic dark rooms, game and music rooms, a museum and library. There will be space for two bowling lanes, to be equipped by donations from veteran organizations.

The concrete structure, he said, will be nestled in the hill side and we have tried to preserve as much of the beauty of the natural environment as possible.

Wall Retained

The sea wall at the lake's edge will remain, he said. The retaining wall near the old pumping station will be removed when that pumping station is demolished next week. There will be a number of retaining walls at various levels constructed and landscaped adjacent to the building.

"Every effort will be made during construction to prevent any soil and debris going into Rainbow Lake," Thomas assured the home administration.

Commandant Arlin C. Barden asked that every precaution be taken during the construction to make the immediate roadways and area safe for members who will want to watch the construction project.

Special Area

The engineers will consider a suggestion by Arlie Danielson, superintendent of buildings and grounds, to construct a special area near the site for "sidewalk engineers". On other construction projects, a special site has been designated and temporary bleachers installed for those who wish to watch construction.

The "unofficial groundbreaking" started last Friday when workmen from Ellis Stone Construction Co. started tearing down Marden Hall and removed several of the old frame cottages.

Stockbridge Offers Class In Consumer Mathematics

STOCKBRIDGE — A new program — consumer mathematics — has been introduced into the high school curriculum to replace the traditional general mathematics, board of education members learned Thursday night.

The new program relates to mathematics in everyday living, Supt. Donald W. Meyers explained. It deals with budgets, buying and selling, banking, taxes and the general use of mathematics.

A total of 19 students in ninth through twelfth grades are participating in the class. Mrs. Karla Cihla is in charge of the program.

Also added to the curriculum this year is Art II under the direction of Larry Schmitt. Art was introduced into the school last year with services contracted through CESA 10.

Teacher Contracts

Teacher contracts were ratified for Mrs. Cihla to teach mathematics full time and for Mrs. Lois Hack to teach French and take care of library duties four periods a day. The new teachers are replacing Francis Slattery who has retired. Slattery had been with the system 26 years. A recognition dinner in his honor is planned by the Alumni Association at St. Mary Church hall Oct. 31.

Correspondence confirming the State Appeal Board decision reversing the ruling of CESA 10 Agency School Committee which detached a 59 acre parcel from Stockbridge and attached it to Hilbert was commented on by board members attending the appeal hearing.

It was stated that the appeal board felt that parochial transportation was the reason for asking detachment rather than education. Members also mentioned that the appeal board indicated that "there was not much difference in the educational offerings of the two schools" and noted that Dr. Clements of Stevens Point State University, a strong advocator of a small school system spoke on his research.

Resignation Accepted

The board accepted the resignation of J. Pat Wagner, vocational guidance director of the mobile vocational laboratory. Meyers reported that interviews are being accepted for the position and a meeting is scheduled with the administrators of the four schools involved next week to discuss the matter further. Wagner will work towards a PHD at the University of Wisconsin.

In a related matter, it was agreed to cooperate with Brillion's request to pay on a monthly basis for the mobile guidance services. This will eliminate Brillion paying interest on borrowed money.

An agreement for special education was signed for CESA 10. Eleven special education pupils are attending school in the former mechanical drawing room. Meyers reported that the situation was working out very well, and the children were participating in vocal music, physical education and art.

Other Business

In other business, Math Moehn Jr. will be engaged as janitorial aide for three hours each night. The annual faculty dinner was set for 7:30 p.m. October 19 at Gobbler's Knob.

No action was taken on a parent request for a sophomore boy to attend the Cooperative Brillion Vocational School next year. Board members felt that the program now offered at the high school included everything that had been offered at Brillion, and that an open house should be conducted to inform parents of the improved curriculum.

Approval of bus routes was tabled until next meeting to allow time for any problems to be ironed out.

Board members will participate in the Homecoming parade Oct. 23 when the Indians meet Sevastopol. Tentative date for the school board legislative dinner is Oct. 27 and the next scheduled board meeting at 8 p.m. Oct. 28.

Tour of Waupaca Hospital

WEYAUWEGA — The people of Waupaca County will have to decide what kind of facility and treatment they want for their mentally ill and whether they are willing to spend the money for a new hospital to fill these needs.

When they make that decision they will have to convey it to their county board.

This was the gist of the messages and observations made Thursday when 100 municipal officials and their wives and interested residents toured the Waupaca County Hospital at the invitation of the Waupaca Association for Mental Health, the board of trustees and the hospital superintendent.

Sheltered Workshop

Following a tour of the 75-year-old facility, Dr. Inam Haque, hospital psychiatrist, told the group briefly about the minimal treatment program and some of the needs.

A sheltered workshop would be a most beneficial addition to the hospital program, he said. "This would be ideal therapy for a number of our patients, something to give them assurance, make social readjustment and sustain the progress they are making."

He called for a change in community attitudes with regard to the employment of some patients who are able to work outside the hospital.

Patient Transportation

"These men and women have skills, could hold down certain kinds of jobs and could work away from the hospital, but there are still people who are afraid of them," he commented. He explained that those patients cleared for employment were just like any other workmen in the community and there was no need for fear.

Another thing that the public might consider in assisting patients at Waupaca County Hospital would be to provide transportation, he suggested.

Dr. Lloyd P. Maasch, who takes care of the physical needs of patients three mornings a week and is on call for emergencies, described his role as physician to the patient population which stays around 150 men and women.

The board of trustees is continuing to do the best it can with what it has, William Freiberger, chairman, said in reviewing the hospital's operation.

The building does not come up to standards set to qualify under Title 19, which has meant an annual loss of $37,000 a year since the hospital was dropped in July, 1970.

The whole hospital needs a new sprinkling system which would cost from $50,000 to $100,000, complete new lighting, and many other major repairs, Freiberger commented.

Wait for Decision

The present approach to the situation is to make the necessary repairs on the building, do everything possible for the safety of the patients, and wait until a decision is made, he said.

Last fall, following an extensive study by a special hospital committee, the Waupaca County Board chose to take no action on the request by the hospital board of trustees for a new building. One major factor in that decision was that the Division of Mental Hygiene and Health Department had not clearly defined the role of the county hospital in the total treatment program.

There were questions of whether Waupaca County should build its own facility, since approximately half of its patient population at that time were residents from other counties; join with Shawano and Menominee counties or other counties in building a multi-county facility; or send its patients to another county for care.

Center Will Get Organ

Senior Citizens Can Arrange to Take Free Music Lessons

WAUPACA — An electronic spinet organ will be placed in the local Senior Citizen Center on Oct. 11 and instruction given without charge for one year to any interested area senior citizen.

Persons interested are urged to call the center and schedule practice, instruction, or playing time.

The center was chosen as one of three in the state for a demonstration program. The project is made possible by the Department of Health and Social Services through funds from the Older American Act to the University of Wisconsin, University Extension.

"It is prompted by the conviction that there are many persons who have always wanted to play a keyboard instrument but never had the time or the opportunity to learn," explains La Vern Hanke, chairman of the local center's advisory committee. "We expect that many will take advantage of this chance in their retirement years to bring music into their lives."

The organ is equipped with earphones, so anyone recapturing their musical techniques, or learning to play, can do so without embarrassment and without disturbing others.

Drug Alert Day Is Saturday in County

A dragon will be loose Saturday in Outagamie County.

Saturday is Drug Alert Day, and the dragon — actually a 20-foot float — will dramatize the volunteer collection of old and potentially dangerous drugs from family medicine chests.

Students in a woodworking class at Seymour High School built the frame work of the float, which is being decorated by county 4-H junior leaders at a barn north of the city.

A Drug Alert Day message will be broadcast from the auto pulling the float on its tour of the county. The schedule of the tour is: Seymour at 10 a.m.; Black Creek at 10:20; Shiocton at 11; Stephensville, 11:25; Hortonville, 11:35;

Greenville at 12:15 p.m.; Kimberly at 1; Combined Locks, 1:35; Kaukauna at 1:55; Little Chute, 2:50 and Appleton at 3:40. The dragon is due at the Shopko Discount Department Store on State 47 between Appleton and Menasha between 5 and 5:15 p.m.

There the Outagamie dragon will be joined by another float touring Winnebago County. Policemen from the two counties will deliver the drugs collected from drug stores, and the Appleton sanitation department will dispose of them.

Organizers of the first Drug Alert Day are the Drug Council Inc. of Outagamie County and the Winnebago County Mental Health Association.

Mrs. Grafton Ray, chairman of Drug Alert Day, said all but two drug stores in Outagamie County agreed to set up displays and collect medicines brought in by families.

She said the method and whereabouts of the drug disposal are being kept confidential to prevent the drugs from getting into the hands of possible users

Citizen Complaints Reveal Discontent With DNR Policies

BY TIM WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Brewing public discontent over the policies and management of the Department of Natural Resources surfaced Wednesday as state lawmakers questioned DNR board members for hours over citizen complaints regarding details of state conservation policy.

"There is no agency in the state of Wisconsin that is more controversial, or subject to more vilification than the Department of Natural Resources," said State Rep. Francis Byers, R-Marion.

Both the "monolithic" nature of the state agency and its duties in highly controversial areas combine to make the organization suspect in the eyes of many state citizens, Byers told DNR board members John Potter of Wisconsin Rapids, Roger Minahan of Milwaukee and Daniel Tyler of Phillips.

The accumulation of "vast powers in one agency" reinforces this suspicion, said Tyler. "I wonder if it is good policy to vest enforcement powers, along with arrest and adjudication powers in one agency," he said.

Related Story A-3

After a "clandestine" meeting with dissatisfied departmental wardens from throughout the state, Byers said, he led a group of legislators in drafting a bill which would separate those enforcement activities and grant them to the state Department of Justice.

"The role of the policeman is never a very popular one and in times like this it is unpopular," replied Tyler. "We do have responsibilities that we are bound to carry out. We are bound to step on toes, and there is bound to be dissatisfaction" with DNR activities because of the wide scope of its work, he said.

The department was aware of the meeting with the discontented wardens, but feels that there are many wardens elsewhere in state service who are not unhappy with changes brought by the Kellett reorganization of state government and with uniform state districting ordered by Govs. Warren P. Knowles and Patrick J. Lucey.

Potter said that that Kellett reorganization within the state has caused many of these complaints within the warden corps. Operational efficiencies require that wardens be put on problems of environmental protection in times of pollution trouble and that environmental specialists be used temporarily for warden's duties during times such as deer hunting season, said Potter.

Don't Like to Move

Some wardens are unhappy at being forced to transfer the location of their work because of the gubernatorial decisions, but the department is doing as ordered, he said.

"The people who live in Black River Falls don't want to move to Eau Claire and the people who live in Oshkosh don't want to move to Green Bay. If you don't believe that, just ask Sen Jack Steinhilber," said Potter of the complaints.

"But these are decisions by Mr. Voigt and his staff," said Potter of Natural Resources Secretary Lester P. Voigt. "They have to be worked out. I think we'll be hearing rumbles for the next year or so, however."

The bulk of the complaints, however, fell into far more specific and localized categories, as lawmakers from the Assembly Natural Resources and Environmental Protection committees brought repeated citizen complaints to the board members.

Most centered on departmental policies affecting land purchase and sales, including the long-standing and controversial Kettle Moraine State Park development, and policies regarding water rights and use, including environmental protection.

Same Rules

Several suggested that the state agency is not requiring state agencies to abide by the same rules as private citizens and industry in the protection of the environment, and Rep. Terry Willkom, D-Chippewa Falls, criticized development of Lake Wissota State Park in his area of the state.

The park was placed in the midst of a residential area with high property values, he said.

The park was placed in the original ORAP bill 10 years ago by the Legislature as a "sweetener" required to win enough votes to pass the measure and the department had to develop it, replied Potter.

Decisions regarding the park were nevertheless made incorrectly, said Willkom. A fish spawning area in the lake was wiped out to create a sand beach, he said.

The Costs of Not Saving Mass Transit

The estimate that car-worshiping Americans are shelling out $1 a mile to get where they want to go and then often not getting there as fast and as easily as they would like strikes the reader as pretty high and difficult to document. But if the idea was to challenge the way things are going, more of those types of reports are needed.

The figure came from Dr. J. Herbert Holloman, a former assistant secretary of commerce who now is a consultant at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. What he was talking about, said Holloman, was the social costs of transportation by automobile. By this he meant the costs in pollution, to public health, of changing property values, the use of more and more land and of traffic accidents.

The way Holloman figures it, government could provide for free public transportation systems or even pay people to use such systems and still come out ahead on the deal if it contrasted such activities to the total cost to society of continuing to be chained to meeting the demands of the automobile. Compared to the size of the problem, Holloman said, the amount the nation is spending on technical and engineering studies into other means of transportation is miniscule.

While the researcher may be charged with over-stating his case as far as costs to the car owner are concerned and with coming up with solutions which may not stand the test of economics, there is no questioning his statement that the nation's priorities are out of whack when it comes to urban transportation. There is agreement on this point but the question is what to do next.

The urban mass transit assistance law passed by Congress last year is a start. The law provided for $3.1 billion in federal assistance in the next five years and pledged that there would be $10 billion for this purpose during the next 10 years. Yet, the federal Department of Transportation has estimated the capital investment needs of adequate mass transit as totaling as much as $34 billion for the next decade.

More importantly for communities the size of the Fox Cities, the federal act provides money for technical study grants and development programs.

Mass transit is one of the subjects being studied in a general transportation study of the Council of Governments here, but maybe we should be considering a specific study on that subject alone.

Rescuing mass transit most often is put in terms of providing transportation for those who may have no other — the elderly, for example — and in saying the demands of the automobile for space and concrete have reached the diminishing point of returns. Adding the social costs of plunging ahead without questioning, as Holloman suggests, is not a bad idea.

Pros and Cons of Acupuncture

There has been some amount of humor expressed since our new contacts with China about acupuncture, an age-old Chinese system of using tiny needles to puncture parts of the body to encourage the cures of various ailments.

One explanation is that this merely takes the mind of the patient off his painful symptoms by developing some new sore spots. William Buckley has suggested that New York Times editor James Reston, who had an emergency appendectomy while recently in China, needed a few more punctures so he could see the light of horror that has accompanied the Communist rise to power.

But at least the new half-way open door policy means that some Western scientists can now travel to mainland China and perhaps learn more about various other systems of medicine.

Currently three American doctors of repute, Dr. Paul Dudley White and Dr. Edmunds Dimond, both cardiologists, and Dr. Samuel Rosen, an ear specialist, have been visiting China. They may not come back enthused about acupuncture but they may have the opportunity to find out something more about it.

Some scientists are fond of saying that their speciality crosses all borders and ideologies. That this is not specifically true has been obvious from various disputed Russian claims over the years. The various arts cannot be so considered either when their purpose is to prove that one particular form of society is the answer to all ills.

But contact and communication can't hurt.

Japan on the Security Council

Whatever is decided in this session of the United Nations about the admission of the Peking regime and in what category, it is bound to be vehemently opposed by a great many people.

The United States has now taken the lead in proposing that Peking not only be represented in the General Assembly but receive China's permanent position on the Security Council. Such positions are held only by China, now somewhat ridiculously represented by the Nationalist government on Taiwan—which obviously does not control the vast majority of Chinese—the United States, Great Britian, the Soviet Union and France. The setup was authorized when the United Nations Charter was written.

Well, why not change the Charter?

At the time it was drawn up, the countries which were named as permanent members were the most powerful on earth without which decisions that could be enforced could not be made. But since that time many things have happened. England's empire has dwindled away and it even lacks the complete support quite often of the members of the British Commonwealth. France, particularly now without the late Charles de Gaulle, hardly speaks for all of Europe. No one doubts the power of the United States or the Soviet Union but Japan is in effect the most influential nation in Asia if not the strongest in military terms. Why not write an entirely new formula for permanent members?

They could be hemispheric, although there would be bitter battles over which would represent Africa and Latin America, for instance. Or could permanent members as such be done away with entirely, extending the veto power to all Security Council members?

In actual fact the concept of the Security Council, like that of the whole United Nations, has changed since it was created. The power in the General Assembly now rests with the myriad of small countries, in particular those of Asia and Africa, especially when joined for various reasons by either the Western bloc or the Communist one. The Security Council was long ago made impotent by the veto power used so many times by the Soviet Union, a few times by France and once by the United States. The purpose of the United Nations, once conceived as a means to prevent all future wars, is now two-fold; it has numerous agencies which do help in the fields of health, education, sanitation and nutrition in underdeveloped countries and it provides a forum for debating hot national and political issues. Both responsibilities indirectly may accomplish in part its original purpose.

If the Security Council cannot be abolished, if the representatives of the Communist and Nationalist Chinese insist neither will give in to the other, if there still must be permanent members if only for the sake of prestige, why not replace China's seat with that of Japan? At that point both Taipei and Peking might refuse to have anything to do with the U.N. in any capacity.

But in any case this will probably happen to one or the other and the balance would not be so suddenly changed. Such a suggestion by the United States could also help to strengthen our badly strained bonds with the Japanese and help maintain in power Premier Sato's friendly government.

Appleton Post Office Robbed

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for Sept. 16, 1871.

On Tuesday morning last the Post Office was broken into and robbed of fractional currency and postage stamps to the probably amount of $60 or thereabouts.

The thieves must have been well posted in the movements of the clerks, as well as the interior of the office, as they made the raid between the hours of 5 and 9 o'clock, the only time the office is entirely unoccupied.

Corwin Patton, one of the clerks, was absent since he was practicing with the Band. Capt. Otto, the other clerk, closed the office at 8 o'clock as usual, leaving a lighted lamp on the table, turned down low.

It must have been soon after that the thieves broke out a light of glass in one of the back windows, opened the sash lock, and entered. Three plane irons were there and, probably, with one of them, one of the table drawers containing the currency was pried open, the contents of the other drawer emptied into that and with the booty the thieves left. Doubtless the thieves sorted out the small change on Market Street, in the rear of Dr. Douglas' residence because that's where the empty drawer was found.

25 YEARS AGO
Friday, Sept. 20, 1946.

President Harry S Truman fired Henry A. Wallace as secretary of commerce that day. The move was called a dramatic reaffirmation of the country's stand at the Paris Peace Conference and a backing of the policies of Secretary of State Byrnes.

Dr. Andrew C. Berry, professor of mathematics at Lawrence College, was presented with the Medal of Freedom Army award for exceptional service rendered as a civilian in a combat zone. His citation read in part: "Dr. Berry arrived on Guadalcanal at the headquarters of the Thirteenth Air Force in June of 1944 and promptly began his first assignment, the preparation of a computer for predicting the effectiveness of anti-aircraft fire directed against our airplanes. He put into the hands of responsible officers a badly needed technical tool which made it possible to plan methods of attack which improved the chance of safe return of our bombing crews."

What Might be Best Role For New York Governor?

BY KEVIN P. PHILLIPS

WASHINGTON — For a number of reasons, not least his increasingly frequent meetings with President Nixon, Nelson Rockefeller is being spoken about as a 1972 GOP Vice Presidential replacement for Spiro Agnew.

But some associates of the New York governor are speculating — and just speculating — on another possibility: that within the near future, Rockefeller might become U.S. Secretary of State.

Should President Nixon propose Rockefeller for any 1972 vacancy left by Vice President Agnew, the nomination would be bitterly opposed by GOP conservatives. Besides, from Rockefeller's point of view, the Vice Presidency is a political shelf whose occupant has always been cramped and uncomfortable. The fact that the office, however wearying, has become the staging ground for the Presidency may not be persuasive to the Governor. In 1976, he will be 68, and probably too old to parlay the Vice Presidency into a run for the White House.

Tired of Governing?

Talk about the State Department luring Nelson Rockefeller to Washington presupposes that he is tired of governing New York, of which there is considerable evidence. Friends say that Rockefeller's ego has exhausted the Empire State's challenge by his winning re-election to a fourth term with a record majority, and then helping squeeze his hated foe, Mayor John Lindsay, out of the Republican Party. Now Rockefeller finds no further cheer in humdrum state administration, a recalcitrant legislature, and the thankless prospect of more situations like the Attica prison confrontation.

If Nelson Rockefeller is interested, President Nixon has good reason to want to bring him into the Cabinet. The New York Governor's wealth, influence, and political acumen can be enormously helpful to Mr. Nixon's re-election bid in just those areas — New England, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and the Great Lakes — where the President is in trouble. Back in August, after the President made his parochial school aid pledge to the Knights of Columbus, he and Attorney General John Mitchell huddled with Rockefeller for a far-ranging political discussion. Once Rockefeller's lawyer, Mitchell handles much of the White House liaison with the New York governor.

Nelson Rockefeller, who loves a challenge, can clearly find one if he takes the top job at the State Department. Not just the center stage of a crucial era in international affairs, but the challenge of political survival — of re-electing the President whose defeat would put him out of a job, and cost him another niche in history.

As Secretary of State, Rockefeller would not be the red flag to conservatives that he would be as a replacement for Spiro Agnew. Foreign policy and defense are two of the Governor's hardline areas. Indeed, he may even be to the right of current White House thinking.

The State Department has a definite appeal to Rockefeller. He served there in 1944-45 as Assistant Secretary for Latin America; his international interest and expertise are widely acknowledged; and his connections are unmatched (from the Chase Manhattan Bank to the prestigious, Rockefeller-backed Council on Foreign Relations). Nobody in the Republican Party could come into the State Department with the clout of Nelson A. Rockefeller; he might even be able to give the place its long-hoped-for overhaul.

How About Kissinger?

Certainly he would come with full authority. Rockefeller's assumption of the Secretaryship of State could only be like a feudal lord assuming a new fief. Any such position would have to impinge on the prerogatives of Henry Kissinger, the President's currently all-powerful assistant for National Security Affairs. Because Kissinger used to work for Rockefeller, the New York governor's personality and background would tend to re-subordinate his onetime aide.

If Rockefeller were to quit New York, he would leave the governorship in what he considers highly trained and capable hands — those of Malcolm Wilson, his lieutenant governor and loyal understudy for 12 long years. Not only does Rockefeller have great faith in Wilson, but New York political circles believe he has given Wilson a pledge to resign before his term is up so that Wilson can run in 1974 as the incumbent governor.

All of this is speculation, of course. But it's not hard to imagine Nelson Rockefeller spurning the wearisome problems of New York to participate in the grand restructuring of U.S. international relations.

'OK, THEN — IF IT DOES CAUSE DAMAGE TO WILDLIFE, MASSIVE EARTHQUAKES AND DESTRUCTIVE TIDAL WAVES, WE PROMISE NOT TO HOLD TESTS HERE AGAIN!'

Lowered Voting Age Presents Challenge To Both Parties

BY ODY J. FISH

MADISON — The lowering of the voting age from 21 to 18 was a desirable and overdue measure long advocated by thoughtful leadership in both political parties. It creates, however, a whole new set of problems to be evaluated and resolved.

Adequate publicity has been given to the sheer statistics. Much speculation exists as to how many young people will vote and which political party is apt to secure the majority of their vote. Actually the support for the 18-year-old vote had to be predicated on the justice of it. That many would not exercise their newly won ballot and that one party would gain more than the other does not negate the basic rightness of the constitutional change.

Ody J. Fish is the newly chosen Republican national committeeman for Wisconsin and served for five years as chairman of the Republican party state committee. He is also a member of the Board of Regents of the University of Wisconsin. His report substitutes for the usual column of John Wyngaard, who is on vacation.

Obviously the political parties face a challenge — not just to secure the support of 18 to 21-year-old voters but to increase their belief in and participation in our method of government. The idealism of youth tends to magnify our deficiencies and cloud our accomplishments. Both the deficiencies and accomplishments are very real. No form of government lends itself better to corrective measures for the former and expansion of the latter.

Must Be Accepted

The appeal to the young voter cannot be merely a drive for greater membership in formal political party organizations. Rather it must concentrate on the establishment of a climate of acceptability for programs.

One of the big arguments now is the "town and gown" conflict. In small communities with a large percentage of students, the courts seem to be holding that indeed the student can vote at his school rather than as an absentee voter from the precinct of his non-school residency. This will create concern on their knowledge and willingness to be involved in issues not directly connected to their student lives.

It also raises the question of determination of out of state tuitions. If, for purposes of voting, a student from Illinois is declared a resident in his college community, can the school then charge him out of state tuition?

Could Change Date

One solution could be changing election dates to a summer schedule. This will probably be attempted for at least local elections.

All innovations bring along problems as well as solutions. In our free society it is imperative that the problems be minimized and the solutions expanded to give opportunity to participate to all citizens.

What Are Reasons For Having Children?

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

If we are going to cut down seriously on our population growth — and I think it is an absolute necessity — then we will first have to change our simple-minded attitude toward the parents of large families.

Most people who meet me for the first time ask about my family, and when they find I have five children they emit little murmurs of admiration and respect, as if I had done something notable.

Now I am pleased and proud to have these children, but there was nothing especially meritorious about their conception. Their existence does not testify to my virility, or even to any exceptional fertility, and certainly is no evidence that I am suited for parenthood.

Anybody with the nominal equipment can have children; it is no great achievement. Indeed, in most cases it happens during a fit of absent-mindedness. No child should ever be called a "mistake," but some are certainly miscalculations.

Parents with four children are not twice as good or twice as loving or twice as intelligent as parents with only two children. True, they have more experience, but as Bismarck said of his donkey, "He has been through nine campaigns with me, and knows no more than he did after the first."

Apart from our population problem, I am convinced that an immense number of people who have children should not have them, and do not particularly want them, except as "symbols" of family life. What they want are ideal children, not real ones; and as soon as the real ones show no intention of conforming to the ideal in the parent's mind, they are treated as burdens, shipped away to school, or otherwise neglected.

Somebody once said that if many people had not read about romantic love and seen it on the screen, they would never look for it themselves. I believe this, and along with it I believe that if many people were not ashamed to be thought deficient in "family feeling" they would never have children.

Nor have I noticed that the parents of large families exhibit any more proficiency in bringing them up, except in terms of establishing a barracks-room regimen which is necessary for simple survival. Some studies have indicated, in fact, that children coming from large families suffer from a lack of sharply-defined personality and lack a sense of individual identity.

At any rate, we have to begin to recognize that it is the quality of parenthood that is more essential than the quantity. Rousseau, be it remembered, wrote a masterly book on education — and then sent his five children to a foundling home. He was more honest than most.

Potomac Fever—

We're moving 13,000 tons of nerve gas from Okinawa to Johnson Island. That's a nice place to visit, but you wouldn't want to die there.

The Navy says it has to have the new F-14's to protect its aircraft carriers, which need replacing to accommodate the new F-14's.

And Bill Proxmire says the cost of the F-14 is up to $16.7 million and rising. Couldn't we get by with just one if we took real good care of it?
